LAYMAN ASKED BY WAGNER ELECTRIC DIRECTORS TO QUIT

President Refused Request Made Recently at Instance of Bankers Financing $6,000,000 Company.

LAYMAN WITH THE CONCERN 28 YEARS

In Statement, He Says He Expects to See Firm Through Embarrassment as He Did Year Ago.

The resignation of Waldo A. Layman of 22 Kingsbury place, as president of the Wagner Electric Manufacturing Co., a $6,000,000 corporation, was requested recently by the company's Board of Directors, the Post-Dispatch has learned. The directors' action was taken at the instance of bankers financing the company.

Layman declined to resign, and he said last night that he expected no further development, and that he desired to remain at the head of the company until it shall pass through its present embarrassments, which he attributes to general business conditions.

Edward B. Pryor, chairman of the Committee of Bankers which requested a change in the executive leadership of the company, said last night that he had no statement to make. He would not indicate whether the request will be renewed, or what the attitude of the banks toward the company will be.

Layman With Firm 28 Years.

Layman has been with the Wagner company 28 years, and has been head of the firm 7 years. He is chairman of the Board of Directors, and is a large stockholder. He began his career with the company as a draughtsman.

The Wagner company was organized in 1891, and has an authorized capital of $7,500,000, of which $6,000,000 is outstanding. Besides Layman as president, the officers are: Vice presidents William S. Thomas, A. H. Timmerman; general counsel, Albert Blair; secretary-treasurer, Robert L. Hedges; assistants, Harry C. Davis and J. W. Wescott.

In the early part of the war period, the Wagner company filled large orders for munitions for the British, French and Russian (Imperial) governments. The profits of this business were large. In the later war period, after the United States entered the war, the company was a large producer of munitions for the United States Army, but the profits were not nearly so large as those made on the contracts for the allies.

Division Over Use of Profits.

Bankers are said to have held that the company did not use the earnings of the early war period, to a sufficient extent, in reducing its indebtedness to banks, but instead put its profits into extensions and new equipment, which are said to have proven beyond the demands of its more recent business.

The company's present obligations to banks amount to something more than $4,500,000.

The company's stock, which has sold as high as $275 a share, has been quoted, in the last few weeks, on the Stock Exchange, at prices between $20 and $30 a share.

Statement by Layman.

Layman, when seen last night by a Post-Dispatch reporter, said regarding the action of the Board of Directors:

"Since that action was taken harmony has re-established itself in the institution, and I do not expect any further development along the line of that action.

"I am a large individual stockholder in the company, and I have never sold a share of stock.

"The company is undoubtedly doing its full share of business, and its rehabilitation is only a matter of business revival. The company's embarrassments, such as they have been, were due to its growth, and especially to the larger demand for its products in 1920, resulting in over-extension in banks, and excessive inventories when general collapse of all business occurred in the fall of 1920.

Crisis Last Year.

"I have absolute confidence in the business, and its current operations will compare favorably with any electrical company in the country, and favorably in general with any other industry in St. Louis.

"I have gone through a crisis of the company, in 1900, which was more serious relatively than the present situation, and I expect the company to get out of the present situation, with its banks and friends giving it the usual support to be expected in the circumstances.

"I have devoted my entire business career to the company, and expect to do so to the point of the company's complete recovery from

The cabinet officials would be required to attend Senate sessions Monday and Thursday and House sessions Tuesday and Friday to give information asked for by resolution or in reply to questions of members of Congress.

PREACHER HELD IN DEATH OF HIS WIFE

The Rev. Dr. J. A. Spencer Arrested on Murder Charge at San Jose, California.

By the Associated Press.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 20.—The Rev. Dr. John A. Spencer, formerly of Santa Rosa, was arrested here tonight on a warrant charging him with the murder of his wife. He is held at the county jail. Dr. Spencer refused to discuss the charges against him, but asked who had sworn to the complaint.

Mrs. Spencer Was Reported Drowned Last July 27.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA ROSA, Cal., Aug. 20.—A warrant charging murder was issued at Lakeport late today for the arrest of the Rev. John A. Spencer, District-Attorney Hoyle of Sonoma County announced, in connection with the death of his wife, Mrs. Emma Spencer, who was reported drowned in Clear Lake July 27 last.

Mrs. Spencer was alone with her husband when she died. The husband was quoted as saying they were boating on Clear Lake when their craft overturned. His efforts to save his wife were futile, he said. A Coroner's jury brought in a verdict of death by drowning.

Friends of the preacher's wife asked for further investigation and the body was exhumed and an autopsy performed.

Issuance of the warrant followed the report of the autopsy surgeons today.

Persons well acquainted with them said tonight the couple had become allenated about a year ago and Mrs. Spencer for a time went to live at the home of friends. They said that when a woman friend of the pastor moved away from town a reconciliation was effected, and she returned to her husband.

HYDE'S CONVICT CHAUFFEUR SAVES GIRL FROM DROWNING

Charles Fromme Rescues Miss Elizabeth Campbell, Unable to Swim, in Pool at Cassville.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CASSVILLE, Mo., Aug. 20.—Charles Fromme, convict chauffeur for Gov. Hyde, saved a young woman from drowning in the swimming pool at Roaring River, an Ozark resort, eight miles from Cassville, yesterday afternoon. She was Miss Elizabeth Campbell, 17 years old, daughter of William T. Campbell, a lawyer, residing in Kansas City.

Miss Campbell, who had not learned to swim, when floating, saw from the marking on the side of the pool that she was in water six feet deep. She became panic-stricken and began to flounder.

Fromme, in his bathing suit, was sitting at the edge of the pool, about 50 feet from Miss Campbell. She had gone down a second time before he reached her. He swam with her to the side of the pool and lifted her out.

At the time, Fromme was waiting to aid Caroline Hyde, the Governor's 10-year-old daughter, in learning to swim, but the child had not reached the pool from the Hyde cottage a short distance away.

The Governor and his family motored from Jefferson City to Roaring River, arriving Wednesday, and will remain until Monday, when they go to Joplin, where the Governor is scheduled for a speech Tuesday.

Miss Campbell was in the water again today.

AGREEMENT WITH RUSSIA SIGNED; FAMINE AID READY

Hoover Calls Meeting of All American Relief Agencies for Wednesday to Discuss Feeding of Starving Children.

$10,000,000 SAID TO BE AVAILABLE

All Supplies Will Be Dispensed Under Supervision of Americans in Far-Reaching Plan Free From Soviet Interference.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Secretary Hoover today sent out a call for a meeting next Wednesday of representatives of the various American relief organizations to discuss the question of feeding the starving children of Russia. Practically every welfare organization in the country will be represented.

While it is announced that the work of distributing food in Russia will be done by representatives of the American Relief Administration, of which Hoover is president, nearly every large American organization has offered to aid in every way possible.

These organizations, which go under the title of the European Relief Council, include the American Relief Administration, American Red Cross, Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, Knights of Columbus, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Catholic Welfare Council and American Friends' Service Committee.

Plans for Russian relief announced today contemplate the expenditure of approximately $10,000,000 for food to be distributed among starving children. Every cent of this money, it is said, will be spent in the United States and every bit of the food dispensed will be under the supervision of representatives of the Relief Administration.

At the suggestion of President Harding the State Department has arranged to expedite the issuance of passports for relief workers going from the United States to reinforce the staff already on the ground. They will proceed by direct routes in Southern Russian, from Danzig, and other centers where relief stores have been assembled.

Officials of the Relief Administration today were arranging for the charter of several steamships at New York to carry food cargoes.

Program Includes Combating of Epidemics.

By the Associated Press.

RIGA, Aug 20.—The agreement between the United States and Russia providing for American relief for the famine stricken district of Russia, was signed this morning by Walter Lyman Brown, European representative of the American Relief Administration, and Maxim Litvinoff, representative of the Russian Famine Committee.

Hope that the signing of the agreement would lead to further relations between Russia and America was expressed in speeches made by M. Litvinoff and M. Meirovitz, the Letvian premier.

Russia is, by the terms of the contract, made the beneficiary of a far-reaching program which includes not only providing food for the people of the famine stricken Volga region, but the combatting of epidemics. The task of preventing the outbreak of contagious diseases among the fugitive thousands, who have fled from their homes, is considered great.

Cholera in Many Districts.

Cholera has appeared in various districts, and there is in many places danger of epidemics such as have in the past swept away myriads of victims and reached distant parts of the continent.

It is understood orders have already gone to Hamburg, Danzig and New York, directing that relief ships be loaded with food and medicines for Russia. Actual work in Russia may possibly commence in a little more than a week. The first food train will leave for Russia early next week, but will be preceded by the first corps of American administrators.

Political and commercial activities will be outside the realm of the workers' duties, and any violation of this clause of the agreement may be cause for expulsion from Russia, upon proofs being submitted to the directors of the relief work. All Americans engaged in feeding and caring for the famine sufferers will enjoy diplomatic rights.

Russian Committee to Co-operate.

All relief shipments will be transported free of charge to points selected by the Americans, who will have absolute control of distribution. It is the plan to restrict relief measures to those people who are in

INSIDE STORY OF STATE DEPARTMENT NEGOTIATIONS FOR GERMAN TREATY

President and Secretary Loath to Tell World Congress "Peace by Resolution" Plan Is Ineffective.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1921.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The strategy behind the administration negotiations with Germany over the making of a new peace treaty is just coming to light. It is one of the most interesting inside stories which official Washington has developed since the war.

The truth is President Harding and Secretary Hughes have been loath to announce to the world that the plan whereby Congress was to make peace by resolution is after all ineffective.

The executive branch of the Government is finding out that it alone carries the burden of making peace with Germany and that the Germans are not jumping through the hoop at the mere nod of Washington but are actualy asking for a voice in making the treaty—a procedure in contrast to the moments at Versailles when the allies framed a treaty and called the German delegates into the room and commanded them to sign on the dotted line.

When Congress passed the joint resolution declaring peace, it was believed that peace had been accomplished and that a formal proclamation of peace would follow in the natural course of events. The Department of State opposed such a course, putting up the argument that, if America announced by proclamation that she was at peace with Germany, the United States would be playing its last card, so to speak, and would have no leverage upon Germany in the negotiation of a peace treaty. So the proclamation has been held up pending the outcome of the parleys between American Commissioner Dresel in in Berlin and the German Government.

Administration Reticent.

But that isn't all. For weeks the White House and State Department have been reticent about the negotiations and, significantly enough, denials have been made of various stories as to whether the Versailles treaty would be resubmitted.

Members of the irreconcilable group in the Senate have stated positively their conviction that the Versailles treaty would not be resubmitted to the Senate. But the truth of the matter, it now appears, is that nobody in the Senate or even the executive branch of the Government, can be sure what the course of the administration will have to be. The Germans alone have the answer. And this is why:

The American Commissioner in Berlin approaches the German Government and says in effect:

"The American Congress has just passed a resolution of peace in which the rights of the United States under the Versailles treaty must be safeguarded. That's an instruction from Congress which we can't ignore. Now we know it will take months to work out a new treaty with all the important clauses of the Versailles treaty retained, so we suggest a temporary arrangement or agreement in which Germany pledges herself to make a treaty later with the United States in which the rights given America under the Versailles treaty are retained by America."

In other words, the United States has tried to get a reaffirmation of the Versailles treaty in advance of the negotiation of a formal treaty of peace with Germany. If Germany declines, then the administration simply says:

"Don't forget we signed the Versailles pact and we can simply ratify it with reservations that exclude the League of Nations covenant and Shantung and we still maintain intact all the economic and reparations clauses which relate to our rights."

If Germany Declines.

Should Germany, therefore, decline to make an agreement pledging America all the rights which the United States originally obtained at Paris, then the Versailles pact must be resubmitted with reservations.

The Germans are confronted with an alternative. They do not imagine that an irreconcilable group in the United States Senate will fight to the death any plan to resubmit the Versailles treaty, but, on the other hand, even the irreconcilable group will have to bow to the inevitable if President Harding and Secretary Hughes announce that no other course is open to America to get peace with Germany.

If the German Government, on the other hand, approves the memorandum handed her by American Commissioner Dresel for a temporary peace agreement, which is to precede the making of a new treaty later on, the embarrassment of the Harding administration will have been eliminated. Word from Berlin is eagerly—indeed, anxiously—awaited, for it will tell the story of whether a separate peace is feasible or whether the Versailles pact will have to be revived.

TYPHUS CASE FOUND ON LINER AT NEW YORK

Russian Woman and 65 Other Passengers Detained—Disease in Undeveloped State.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The Cunard steamship Aquitania was held up at Quarantine all day today because of the discovery of what the health officers declared was a case of undeveloped typhus in the second cabin. Although she came into port before dawn her passengers were not put ashore at the Cunard pier until 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Mrs. B. Zelzei, 42 years old, who came from Russia, was sent to Hoffman's Asylum as a typhus patient. Her two daughters, six and eight years old, and the 65 other passengers who had come in contact with here in the second cabin, also were sent to Hoffman Island. The woman on the voyage said her husband, who incurred the enmity of the Bolshevist officials, had escaped 18 months ago and gone to Philadelphia. She was seeking always thereafter to escape with her four daughters.

Two of these girls, 15 and 16, were murdered by Bolshevists before their mother's and their little sisters' eyes. Mrs. Zelzei said. Spurred by the fate of her girls, the mother redoubled her efforts to get out of Russia. She said she finally traveled through Germany to Cherbourg.

There they took passage for New York aboard the Aquitania, but how all the details of passports were arranged was not made clear. Two days out from New York she was taken ill and when the vessel arrived here the public health officials, always on the watch for typhus from Russia, held up the ship until a blood test could be made. The test was reported to have shown that typhus, as yet undeveloped, was present and the detention of the Zelzeis and the other second cabin passengers followed.

NO REUNION OF CONFEDERATE VETERANS PLANNED THIS YEAR

By the Associated Press.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 20.—According to a letter received by Gen. D. B. Morgan, commander of the South Georgia Brigade of the United Confederate Veterans, the 1921 general reunion of the United Confederate Veterans has been abandoned.

Nathan Bedford Forrest of Biloxi, Miss., secretary to Gen. K. N. Vanzant of Fort Worth, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, has written Gen. Morgan that because no city has invited the veterans, there will be no reunion this year.

SERGEANTS TOLD PROHIBITION LAWS MUST BE ENFORCED

Victor Miller Tells Men, "If You Do Not Desire Your Jobs Now Is Time to Resign."

SAYS HE NEVER SAW POLICEMAN IN ALLEY

Head of Board Warns Men Against "Lolling About Corners" and Taking Fruit and Candy.

Victor J. Miller, president of the Police Board, in an hour's talk with 130 precinct sergeants at Police Headquarters yesterday afternoon, told them what they would have to do if they hoped to retain their rank in the Police Department. The other members of the board and Chief of Police O'Brien were present.

"I have held similar meetings with Captains and Lieutenants," he said, "and the department has obtained no beneficial results. They have either failed to pass my instructions on to you or else you have paid no attention.

"If you do not desire your jobs now is the time to resign. There are 225 patrolmen eligible for promotion. A rattle snake will warn you before biting you, so the least that I can do is to warn you before preferring charges of inefficiency.

Enforce Prohibition Laws.

"You have taken an oath to enforce the laws, and that means all law, the prohibition law as well as those against any other form of crime. I know there are very few men in this department who are in sympathy with the prohibition law. I don't believe one out of 10 voted for it. But regardless of your individual views, it is a law just the same and if you do not enforce it you are just as guilty of neglect of duty as you would be were you to permit a burglar to carry off a safe.

"I have been informed that many patrolmen spend much of their time in soft drink saloons where liquor is being sold in violation of the law. You can't expect the saloon owners to obey the law if you permit your patrolmen to associate with them socially. Familiarity breeds contempt. I judge a policeman by his friends as well as by his enemies. If the saloon men are his friends I am suspicious of him.

"In traveling about the city I have never seen a policeman in an alley or on a dark street. I have seen plenty of them strolling the well lighted boulevards and lolling about on corners. Burglars do not plan their work in front of picture theaters. There is no excuse for the presence of a group of patrolmen on a corner at any time.

"Don't forget that you are working for the people. Don't be discourteous to citizens just because they happen to violate some minor ordinance. Save your hard-boiled stuff for the known crooks. It is too often the case that a policeman is gruff and bully with an inoffensive citizen or even a child and then when it comes to handling a real crook he acts in a ladylike manner. None of that is going to go. I don't ask you to kill the crooks, but remember you are getting paid for protecting society from that class and the sooner you make an enemy of him the better off you will be.

The Petty Grafter.

"One of the most disgusting things I know of is to see a policeman picking up fruit or candy or peanuts in small stores. They wouldn't dare go into a bank and pick up dollar bills. Yet the one practice is just as dishonest as the other. If you don't stop that petty graft don't look to me for sympathy.

"I don't know who put you on the force or who was responsible for your promotion to the rank you now hold, but let me tell you this. You'll hold your place from now on by merit only. Don't let any politicians or fixers tell you that they have a pull with this Police Board and that they can do this or that for you. Anyone who tells you that lies.

"Crime must be reduced and the board expects the Sergeants to produce that very thing. There should be no such thing as a truck burglary. Why, in many of that class of robberies, it takes from one to two hours to load the truck. If there is a policeman in St. Louis who cannot cover his beat in that period I want to know it. In the downtown district where most of those burglaries are committed it should take a patrolman not more than 20 or 30 minutes to tour his beat. I don't want to say that the policemen are co-operating with crooks, but if they are not they are asleep on the job.

"Discontinue the practice of having your patrolmen meet you at certain corners. That gives them a chance to loaf. Meet them as they are patrolling their beats and if you

TAX BILL FRAMED TO RAISE $3,347,000,000 IS PASSED BY HOUSE

Republican Revenue Measure Approved by Vote of 274 to 125, and Will Be Sent to Senate Tomorrow, Where It Will Be Taken Up at End of Recess Sept. 21.

EXCESS PROFITS LEVY TO END JAN. 1

Increase in Exemptions Under Income Tax Law for Married Men and Repeal of Other Levies in Many Changes.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The tax revision bill of 1921, estimated to cut $818,00,000 from the nation's tax burden by 1923, was passed late today by the House, 274 to 125, on an almost straight party vote.

Three Democrats supported the measure and nine Republicans voted against it.

The Democrats were: Campbell of Pennsylvania and Dupre and Lazare of Louisiana.

The Republicans were: Beck, Wisconsin; Clague, Minnesota; Keller, Minnesota; Lampert, Wisconsin; Michaelson, Illinois; John M. Nelson, Wisconsin, Sinclair, North Dakota; Voigt, Wisconsin, Woodruff, Michigan.

Representative London, Socialist New York, voted against the bill.

Compared with this number of Republican were 50 who voted for a Democratic motion to recommit the bill for elimination of the provision repealing the income surtax rates above 32 per cent. This motion was lost, 16 to 230, with one Democrat, Campbell of Pennsylvania, voting against it. The Republicans supporting it included:

Andrews, Nebraska; Dowel, Iowa; Gorman, Illinois; Hoch, Kansas; Hull, Iowa; King, Illinois; Kopp, Iowa; Little, Kansas; Michaelson, Illinois; Ramseyer, Iowa; Robinson, Kentucky; Strong, Kansas, and Volstead, Minnesota.

Bill to Senate Tomorrow.

The bill will be sent Monday to the Senate, where it will be taken up after the end of the recess on Sept. 21.

Meantime, the Senate Finance Committee will hold additional public hearings on the whole tax question and probably revise the measure in a number of details. As finally passed by the House with nearly 100 committee amendments, the bill is estimated to produce a total of $3,347,000,000 revenue this fiscal year, or $221,000,000 less than the estimate under the existing law.

As repeal of the excess profits tax and higher income surtax rates next Jan. 1, the full force of the measure will not be reflected in Government receipts until the calendar year 1923, but Republican leaders say that through repeal of the transportation and other taxes, reduction in the tax burden in the next calendar year will be approximately $512,000,000.

Changes in Present Levies.

The principal changes in present tax levies made by the bill, as passed, include:

Repeal of the excess profits tax.

Increase of the corporation income tax from 10 to 12½ per cent, effective next Jan. 1.

Repeal of the income surtax rates from 32 to 65 per cent inclusive.

Increased exemptions to head of families, effective as of last Jan. 1, to $2500 for incomes not in excess of $5000 and additional exemption for dependents to $400 from $200.

Repeal of the tax on life, fire and marine insurance policies and imposition of the corporation tax of 12½ per cent on all such insurance companies except fraternal, effective next Jan. 1.

Repeal of the taxes on fountain drinks, ice cream, and other beverages and the substitution of manufacturer's tax as follows:

Four cents a gallon on cereal beverages; five cents a pound on carbonic acid gas; two cents a gallon on fruit juices of soft drinks; three cents a gallon on still drinks, exclusive of mineral and table water, and ten cents a gallon on fountain syrups. These will go into force on enactment of the law.

Tax on Toilet Articles Repealed.

ILLINOIS MAN KILLS WIFE, SHOOTS HER FATHER, ENDS LIFE

Marissa Miner Fires on Woman in Auto on Country Road After Ordering Driver From Machine.

Francis J. Grady, 28 years old, of Marissa, Ill., a coal miner, shot and killed his wife, Mrs. Ella Grady, 25, at 4 p. m. yesterday on a road between Marissa and White Oak, later shot and critically wounded his father-in-law, Samuel Whitmore, 50, in the latter's home at White Oak and then went into the woods near the Whitmore home and fired two bullets into his own head, killing himself. Whitmore was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital at Belleville, where surgeons said that paralysis had resulted from his wounds and that he could not recover.

Grady and his wife, who formerly occupied a cottage at Marissa, separated four weeks ago and Mrs. Grady returned to her father's home. A week ago last Friday Grady visited the Whitmore home and tried to bring about a reconciliation. He quarreled with his father-in-law and knocked the latter down. Mrs. Grady went to her father's assistance with a corn knife and inflicted a cut on her husband's head, after which she chased him from the house.

Wife Had Sued for Divorce.

Last Monday Mrs. Grady filed suit for divorce at Belleville. She alleged that Grady, whom she had married Aug. 21, 1919, had an ungovernable temper, had treated her cruelly and had on more than one occasion threatened her with a shotgun.

A deputy sheriff served Grady with a copy of the petition at Marissa yesterday afternoon and later reported that Grady had apparently treated the proceeding as a joke as he laughingly referred to his wife's action as a "bluff." Grady accompanied the deputy to the depot and was still laughing about the divorce suit when the deputy departed for Belleville at 3 p. m.

An hour later Mrs. Grady, who had been shopping at Marissa, started to walk to her father's home. On the road she was met by a friend of the family, Leo Cuniff of White Oak, who, accompanied by his infant daughter, was driving his automobile toward White Oak. He invited Mrs. Grady to ride home with him and she got into the machine.

Ordered Driver From Car.

About ten minutes later the automobile party was accosted by Grady, who was walking in the direction of Marissa. Grady asked Cuniff to give him a ride and the latter stopped. Grady entered the automobile and a moment later drew a revolver from his pocket and pressing it to Cuniff's head ordered the latter to get out of the car with the baby. Cuniff obeyed.

Cuniff started down the road toward Marissa, but had gone only a short distance when he heard a shot. Turning around, he saw Grady running along the road toward White Oak. He went back to the automobile and found Mrs. Grady stretched out on the seat, with a bullet hole in her forehead. He drove with her to Marissa, where a doctor pronounced her dead.

When the news of the murder began to spread, a posse of Marissa citizens formed and started for White Oak in search of Grady. At the Whitmore home they found Whitmore unconscious on the floor in the front room. He was suffering from bullet wounds in the neck, left arm and left shoulder. A short distance from the house, in a wooded section, the posse found the body of Grady. He had shot himself twice in the head, and his revolver, with all chambers empty, was at his side.

The bodies of Grady and his wife were taken to an undertaking establishment at Marissa. An inquest will be held this afternoon.

HARDING URGES CONGRESS TO AID SHIPPING BOARD

Asks for Co-operation in Effort to Bring Losses Down to Minimum, in Letter to Senator Jones.

'UNSPEAKABLE LOSSES, UNUTTERABLE WASTES'

Men Capable of Handling Situation Make Sacrifice in Undertaking, He Says; $300,000,000 in Claims.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The closest co-operation between Congress and the administration, in an effort to bring Shipping Board losses down to a minimum, was urged today by President Harding in a letter to Senator Jones, Republican, Washington, read to the Senate during consideration of a bill carrying 48,500,000 for the board's activities. The President said there had been "unspeakable losses and unutterable wastes," which must be charged to the war emergency.

Chairman Lasker's effort to get big men to aid in putting the board on its feet was approved by the President, who said if they could end operating losses their salaries would be more than justified.

At the same time there was presented a letter from Chairman Lasker saying that, sooner or later, Congress would be called upon to appropriate $300,000,000 in outstanding claims inherited from the former administration.

President's Letter.

The President's letter, giving his views at length on the general shipping situation, follows:

"I could not fail to note the dissatisfaction expressed in both the House and Senate over the very unsatisfactory condition of the affairs of the Shipping Board, and the reluctance of Congress to make appropriations for the continued activities of the board without putting specific restraints upon the board's activities in employing agents of relief.

"From your position, you are probably as familiar with the affairs of the board as I am, and I hope you will make it a point to pay the exact but unpleasant truth before your colleagues.

"The Shipping Board situation is wholly an inheritance from the previous administration. It would avail nothing to attempt to outline how the intolerable state of affairs came about. Our great problem is curing the situation. The difficulty of this task becomes very apparent to me, and had its reflex in the delay in the final election of the Shipping Board.

"It is no easy thing to bring capable men to the solution of this task. Chairman Lasker is making a very heavy sacrifice to give his time and talents to this most difficult work. He has been able to bring many disinterested advisers to his assistance, but it is impossible for the board, in creating its various departments, to establish such organizations by the ordinary methods of Government appointment and compensation.

Men Called to Service.

"Many of the men called to service have been obliged to completely sacrifice their private interests and, in some cases, the sacrifice is made with the knowledge that the period of employment with the Government is only temporary. Under these conditions and because of the fact that hundreds of millions are involved, it is unavoidable that some compensation in responsible places are much beyond the ordinary run of Government compensation.

"There are approximately $200,000,000 in claims against the Shipping Board. No business man would venture upon the settlement of these claims without highly capable legal representation. The staggering losses in operation can only be cured by a board of operators whose members know something concerning the business. These men could not be secured without giving up private pursuits which are vastly more profitable than the average administration salary under the Government, and Chairman Lasker has proceeded with my hearty approval in the acquirement of men equal to this task. If their knowledge of the business will enable us to put an end to operating losses, as we very much hope to do, their acquirement for Government service will be justified a hundredfold.

Compensation for Helpers.

"The error heretofore committed seems to have been the employment of incapable men at excessive salaries, while the present program calls for capability, and the compensation is vastly less than in private pursuits. I have been at some pains to assume myself that there is no over-payments in selecting men for specific places, and I believe I can assure you that this over-payment has been avoided in recent appointments.

"I do not venture to make promises for the Shipping Board. I would like the Congress to know we are speedily arranging the discontinuance of many lines of service which are being operated at a loss to the Government, and we re hoping soon to have an end to all the unfortunate charter contracts under which the Government bears the brunt of all the losses. This is a very intolerable arrangement, and is being ended as speedily as the situation will permit.

"It must be kept in mind at all times that the administrative agents who are now asking for the confidence and co-operation of Congress are in no wise responsible for the condition of affairs which have shocked the country, and given the Congress such great concern.

"They have only recently been called to the service of correcting the intolerable state of affairs which we inherited, after which it is very much hoped they may make a gratifying progress toward the firm establishment of an American merchant marine.

"We Must Not Fail."

"We must not fail in our efforts now. There have been unspeakable losses and unutterable wastes. These things must be charged to the great war emergency and the feverishness of the country to build ships in a period of great anxiety and to then establish a merchant marine on the basis of the abnormal conditions which prevailed during the war emergency.

"We have time to think soberly now and the correction of this situation is a matter of firm resolution, and capable hands have undertaken the work. The waste can be halted almost instantly. The losses must be brought to a minimum at a very early day, and I very much hope the co-operation of the Congress and the administration will lead to gratifying results in the establishment of American carriers by sea which will meet our aspirations in founding a new and ample American merchant marine.

"We cannot allow the discouraging things which have gone before to prevent us facing the situation frankly, and I think it wholly consistent to resolve that the solution of this task is not an impossible thing to American genius and tenacity."

Mother and Daughter Whom She Forgives for Secret Marriage

STEAMER ST. LOUIS TO TOUR WORLD ON A TRADE TRIP

To Sail in January and Be Gone a Year, Showing American Products to Nations.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Plans to have the steamship St. Louis clear from New York early in January on a sales promotion trip around the world, carrying products of 300 leading American manufacturers into 50 foreign ports, were announced today by J. Herbert Anderson, president of the Anderson Overseas Corporation, owners of the St. Louis.

"I'll tell the world," is the slogan to be carried at the forepeak of the vessel, which will consume about one year on her voyage. Secretary of Commerce Hoover, chambers of commerce, manufacturing and advertising associations and many bankers, Anderson asserts, have approved the project. The idea is to foster and increase commerce by having products visualized to foreign buyers and to "cultivate new fields and till the old fields which have not been shot to pieces."

the present embarrassing situation, which is international in its scope."

Layman then made a statement relative to the company's finances.

Company's Finances.

"The merchandise obligations as of June 1, 1921," he said, "were approximately $1,170,000. The merchandise obligations as of Aug. 15 were approximately $160,000, a reduction of 87 per cent. Present merchandise obligations are about one-third of a single month's requirements, under normal operating conditions.

"Bank obligations reached a maximum Jan. 15 last. They were then $5,900,000. The bank obligations of Aug. 15 were $4,580,000.

"There was a reduction of bank obligations, since July 1, of approximately $310,000.

"The present rate of liquidation, continued for a full year, would allow the company to pay off approximately 40 to 45 per cent of its total obligation as of Jan. 1, 1921.

"The company has approximate gross assets of $13,000,000, against an approximate total liability of all kinds, $5,100,000. There are no bonds outstanding, or other forms of stock other than the common, which amounts to approximately $5,900,000."

BEER BILL REPORT IN DISFAVOR WITH SOME SENATORS

Hopeless to Expect Senate Acceptance of Conference Agreement on the Measure, They Say.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The conference report on the anti-beer bill, definitely agreed on today, and presented to the Senate, exempts a man's home from search without warrant obtained in due course of law, but requires no warrant to search other property provided an officer acts without malice and has reasonable cause to suspect the presence of liquor.

Along with the presentation of the report, word reached the Senate that prohibition leaders of the House had declared there would be no recess of Congress until the measure had been finally enacted.

Senate leaders, on the other hand, announced that it was hopeless to expect Senate acceptance, in view of the rejection by the conferees of the Stanley amendment; passed unanimously, and designed to protect the home and other property from indiscriminate search through imposition of heavy penalties.

Two Fail to Sign.

Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, who "bolted" the conference early in the week, and Representative Dyer, Republican, Missouri, failed to sign the report. It was approved, however, by Senators Sterling and Nelson, Republicans, and Representative Volstead, Republican, and Summers, Texas, Democrat.

The only point at issue in final deliberations of the managers was the searching provision. In reaching a compromise, both the Senate and House amendments on the subjects were discarded. In their place the conferees adopted the following section:

Section Y: That any officer, agent or employe of the United States engaged in the enforcement of this act, or the national prohibition act, or any other law of the United States, who shall search any private dwelling as defined in the national prohibition act, and occupied as such a dwelling, without a warrant directing such search, and who, while so engaged, shall, without a search warrant, maliciously and without reasonable cause search any other building or property, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined on first offense not more than $1000 and for a subsequent offense not more than $1000 or imprisonment of not more than one year, or both such fine and imprisonment.

False Representation.

"Whoever, not being an officer, agent, or employe of the United States, shall falsely represent himself to be such officer, agent or employe, and, in such assumed character, shall arrest or detain any person, or shall in any manner search the person, buildings or other property of any persons, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1000, or imprisonment for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

MRS. COHEN TO LET DAUGHTER'S MARRIAGE STAND

After Conference With Harry L. Tennenbaum, Her Son-in-Law, She Announces She Will Drop Annulment Suit.

COUPLE, BLESSED, TO GO ON A HONEYMOON

Wedding of Bernice Cohen, Whose Father Made a Fortune in Junk Business, Was at Little Rock July 5.

Mrs. L. J. Cohen of 22 Washington terrace, following a series of conferences with her son-in-law, Harry L. Tennenbaum, 20 years old, yesterday, announced last night that she would withdraw her suit to annul his marriage to her daughter, formerly Miss Bernice Cohen, 18, which took place at Little Rock, Ark., July 5. The suit was filed yesterday in the Circuit Court.

Mrs. Cohen said that she had extended her blessing to the pair and that they would depart this week on an extended honeymoon. She explained that her objection to the marriage had been based on their youth, but she added that she had become impressed by the sincerity of the bridegroom. The marriage was kept secret from Mrs. Cohen until a few days ago.

Abraham Tennenbaum of Little Rock, father of the bridegroom, attended one of the conferences at the Cohen home in the afternoon. He said he would stick to his son to the finish and fight the suit to annul the marriage. Later, when informed that Mrs. Cohen had decided to drop the suit, he expressed delight.

Friends of the young couple say that before the ceremony was performed the officiating rabbi took Miss Cohen aisde and admonished her of the seriousness of the contract and suggested that there was still time for her to change her mind, but she insisted upon going ahead.

Married in Arkansas.

Miss Cohen was visiting in Little Rock when young Tennenbaum persuaded her to marry him. They tried to obtain a license in Little Rock July 2, but were refused on account of their youth and the lack of parental consent. They went to Benton, Ark., the next day, and obtained the license. The delay of two days was due to the absence from Little Rock of the rabbi they wished to have perform the ceremony. On July 5 Rabbi R. Farber of Texarkana was summoned and performed the ceremony.

The bride returned to her home here and in the annulment petition it is asserted that she and her husband did not live together. When Mrs. Cohen heard about it she called up her son-in-law and told him she was going to have the marriage annulled and went to Little Rock. He and his parents started for St. Louis at the same time that Mrs. Cohen started south, and they passed on the way. Mrs. Cohen hurried back to St. Louis and filed the suit.

"She was just arrived at the age of 18 and was a school girl without comprehension to fully understand the seriousness of the marriage contract," the petition says.

Didn't Have Mother's Advice.

"In a spirit of fun and not intending to live with him as man and wife, she consented to be married without the advice of her mother or other relatives or friends. Shortly afterward she left Little Rock and they never lived as man and wife. It was the understanding of her and the defendant that she was to return to her school duties. When she arrived home she concluded it was a foolish, childish prank."

Leon J. Cohen, who was a junk dealer and made a fortune during the war, was killed by a train in 1917, shortly after he had purchased the Washington terrace home. He left personal property valued at more than $840,000.

The bride was a student last year at Washington University and plans were being made to send her to a Pennsylvania university this year. Tannenbaum is associated with his father in the junk business.

Under Cohen's will his wife was to receive one-third of his estate and $5000 was to be given to charity and the residue was to be divided among the four children.

SENATE REPORT FAVORS BILL TO FUND ALLIED DEBT

Majority Recommendation for Broad Powers for Treasury in Adjusting Questions at Issue.

DEMOCRATS AND LA FOLLETTE OPPOSE

Secretary Now Has Sufficient Authority to Negotiate Settlements, the Minority Statement Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The administration's bill for funding the allied debts was reported to the Senate today by the Finance Committee, of which Penrose is chairman, with a majority recommendation for its passage so that the Treasury Secretary may have broad powers in adjusting the questions at issue. An amendment requiring the funding to be completed within five years was added by the majority.

The freedom and broad powers with which the majority said the Secretary should be endowed, however, was attacked by Senator Lafollette, Republican, Wisconsin, and five Democratic members of the committee, who declared, in a minority statement, that this constituted a basis sufficient for rejection of the measure.

The Secretary, they contended, has now sufficient authority to negotiate the settlements, and they suggested that the obligations of the foreign Governments be held in their present form "until our Government shall have sufficiently crystallized its policy to know exactly to what use they can best be put."

The best and most practical method of handling the questions is afforded by the measure, the majority report declared, adding that it was necessary for someone to be authorized to deal promptly with the situation.

Assurance as to Practice.

Assurance was given that the Treasury Secretary does not intend to accept obligations other than those of the debtor country, in the case of the principal debtor countries, and that "it is not his intention to accept any German bonds unless it becomes necessary or desirable to do so in some now unforeseen special cases."

The minority report said the foreign obligations accepted should bear the same rate of interest that the American Government paid to raise the money loaned, and opposed the exchange of the obligations for those of countries other than the original debtors. The bill, it continued, would permit the Secretary "to make any bargain he wants to make" and "become the actual dictator of the disposition of eleven billions of dollars," with Congress "having abdicted control."

Agreement on Interest.

A majority of the committee agreed with Secretary Mellon, the report stated, that in the case of the principal foreign Governments receiving advances from the proceeds of Liberty bonds, the United States is committed to the postponement of the interest for two or three years (over two years of which have elapsed) and also to the spreading over subsequent years of the payment of the postponed interest installments and not to charge interest on the postponed interest at least during the two or three year period."

"However," it continued, "this obligation is contingent upon the foreign Government concerned carrying out with reasonable promptness funding of its short-time obligations held by the United States, after the United States shall be ready to proceed with such negotiations."

Regarding the conversion of the debts owing by Czecho-Slovakia, Greece, Rumania, Russia, Serbia, Poland and other countries, the report said these countries also owe large amounts to other countries.

"Their resources and their ability to pay differ widely," it continued, "and the conditions that will have to be dealt with cannot be foreseen."

The allied debt is covered by obligations to the amount of $10,141,267,585, which the Treasury now holds, and interest accrued and unpaid amounting to $943,534,750, according to the majority report, which stated the Government had been paid on the obligation $465,271,688.

TAFT DECLINES TO UMPIRE REPORTERS' GOLF TOURNAMENT

Chief Justice Thanks Washington Correspondent for Seeking to Amplify Jurisdiction.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Chief Justice Taft has politely but firmly declined to act as umpire in the Washington correspondents' first annual golf tournament to be played Thursday at the Washington Golf and Country Club with President Harding participating. In response to an invitation from Robert T. Small, chairman of the Committee on Officials, to perform his "first important judicial task" by deciding the winner, the Chief Justice wired:

"I greatly regret not to be able first to exercise my new judicial functions in such a critical and important controversy as that you describe, but it is impossible. I thank you for seeking to amplify my jurisdiction."

'Mystery Man of Europe' Is Drawn Into the Light

Sir Basil Zarahoff, Known Also as "Modern Monte Cristo," Now Called Shadow Behind Presidential Chair of Lloyd George.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1921, by the Press Publishing Co. (The New York World.)

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Although Sir Basil Zaharoff has exercised more influence than any other private individual on the policy of the allies both during and since the war, his name until now has not figured in debates in the House of Commons. Heretofore the curious and the observing have spoken of him at "The Mystery Man of Europe," varied occasionally as "The Modern Monte Cristo," but inquiry and comment have halted there. He has just appeared in a new and interesting light by Major Walter Guinness' designation of him as the "shadow behind the presidential chair of Lloyd George," thereby bringing his personality and his motives and political aims into rather conspicuous notice.

He seems to have been applying his powers to the correction of what he considers the mistaken policy of Great Britain in the nearest East. There is no doubt that he has been the chief supporter of the former Premier Venizelos of Greece. It is said he has financed the Venizelist party.

His money resources and his potency in European international finance seem alike boundless. At the outbreak of the war he earned the gratitude of France by averting a threatened panic on the exchanges. More recently he is believed to have been behind an important French bank and a syndicate formed to exploit the natural wealth of Upper Silesia, which Poland is fighting to control in the face of an opposing plebiscite. Thus, on one hand, he has been moving the Anglo-French policy in the interest of Greece, while in Poland he has been siding with France against Great Britain.

Interest at Monte Carlo.

Greek by birth, he is a naturalized Frenchman. Major Guinness says he is largely concerned in munition undertakings in various countries. Incidentally, he is reported to have supplanted the Blanc family in control of the Casino in Monte Carlo, which has long run the Monaco municipality.

During the war business at the Casino reached almost the vanishing point, while the maintenance by that institution of the municipality, where no taxes are paid, was as costly as ever. Zaharoff had previously been a large shareholder in the Casino. He came to its rescue with fresh capital when the war put it in straits, thus gaining control of the famous gambling resort.

His method in every enterprise is to work behind the scenes. Publicity he sedulously avoids. When it is thrust upon him he usually withdraws to some secluded spot, or seeks complete isolation in one of the chateaux he owns in Italy, France or Greece.

He has endowed a chair of Modern Greek in Cambridge University. In recognition of some services to the British state which have never been precisely defined, he has received the decoration of the Grand Cross of the Order of Bath and the Grand Cross of St. Michael and St. George. These honors are usually reserved for eminent military men or for public servants of the highest standing.

At his present age of 72, Zaharoff is immensely interested in aviation. Among his other activities in that line he has been founding chairs for its scientific study in Paris, in Petrograd and in London University.

Carries Himself Quietly.

With frail health as a sufficient reason, he always passes the three winter months in the Hotel de Paris, Monte Carlo. That establishment is one of the possessions of the Casino, but Zarahoff carries himself so quietly there that he moves unnoticed among the throng of visitors. He never enters the gambling room.

While he entertains with modest elegance, he accepts few invitations outside and no large or miscellaneous gatherings. As far as possible he keeps to himself, and his entire conduct is unobtrusive and simple. There is nothing about him to suggest that he is or ever was a "hustler." He shows no sign that he has been through great and complicated affairs.

He is credited with using his wealth for philanthropy as freely as for politics. He is unmarried, but enjoys the society of women. He stands about 5 feet 10 inches. His tall, spare figure is slightly stooped, and he walks in the slow and hesitating manner of an invalid. His dress bears the marks of long use, covering his figure loosely. The only article of wear to distinguish him is a particularly unbecoming reddish-brown soft felt hat, with a high and broad brim turned up all around. Altogether, in personal appearance, he is an unimportant and feeble-looking old man.

tions and proprietary medicines upon enactment of the bill.

Repeal of the 10 per cent tax on baseball, football and basket ball equipment, skates, toboggans, snowshoes and skiis, and reduction in the 10 per cent tax to five on tennis, golf and polo equipment, games and the like, the whole to come into force on enactment of the bill.

Exemption from the income tax of the first $500 of income from investment in building and loan associations, effective at passage of the law.

A reduction from 5 to 3 per cent on the levy on candy, and of from 10 to 5 per cent in the levies on fur articles and art and art works, and repeal of the tax on electric fans. These, too, would be effective when the bill becomes a law.

A reduction from 10 to 5 per cent in the tax on all yachts with motor or other craft less than 32 feet in length or of less than five tons carrying capacity exempted from this tax. This provision also would be effective upon enactment of the bill.

Exemption from the income tax of all allowances from the Federal Government for the service of the beneficiary or another in the military or naval forces of the United States, effective immediately the bill becomes a law.

Luxury Taxes Repealed.

Repeal of all the so-called luxury taxes now collected by retailers and the substitution of a manufacturer's tax of 5 per cent on the following articles, when sold by the manufacturers, at the sums given: Carpets and rugs, $3.60 a square yard; trunks, $30 each; valises, traveling bags, suitcases and hatboxes, $15 each; purses, pocketbooks, shopping and handbags, $4 each; portable lighting fixtures, $10 each; umbrellas and parasols, $2.50 each; fans, $1 each, and house or smoking coats or jackets and bath or lounging robes, $3 each. These changes would be effective upon the signing of the bill.

Before the bill was brought to a final vote there was a turbulent scene with the result that one committee amendment—that proposing a "tax investigative commission"—was left at the post. It is understood that an effort will be made to have the Senate committee insert it in the bill.

The House was thrown into disorder when Representative Connolly, Democrat of Texas, undertook to reply to a prepared address by Representative Mondell of Wyoming, the Republican leader, praising the tax measure. There were jeers and calls from the Republican side and protests from the Democratic side that Mondell was interrupting the Texas member without obtaining recognition from the chair.

Democrats Spring Surprise.

Order finally was restored, but when it came time to vote on the bill, the Democrats sprang a surprise. Representative Cockran of New York, rising to a question of "the highest privilege," introduced and had read a resolution criticising President Harding for delivering a message to the Senate on July 12 urging postponement of action on the soldier bonus bill without having members of the House present to hear him.

Representative Mann, Republican of Illinois, tried to shut off the introduction of the measure, but after a debate, Speaker Gillett ruled that it was privileged. The Republican countered with a motion to lay it on the table, which prevailed, and then the House got to a vote on the Democratic motion to recommit, offered by Representative Garner, Democrat of Texas.

Mondell in his address, said, it remained for a later Congress to fully revise the tax schedules "when we shall have passed beyond the shadow of the war overhang."

"In the measure we have relieved the burden where it is most clearly of an emergency character," he said.

"We have kept faith, and while some will rail against the measure for purely partisan purposes, it will receive the commendation of the great body of the American people."

actual distress, and to prevent Government employes and men in the army and navy from coming into possession of supplies.

The Russian Famine Committee will co-operate with the American Relief Administration and the Americans will not operate in districts where the Russians are able to provide rations. Race, creed and political status will be forgotten and reports of the work being done will be given the world without interference by the soviet government. Observers here have declared the agreement confers upon the American Relief Administration facilities never before granted any foreign organization by a Russian Government.

Phillip Carroll of Portland, Ore., will be at least temporarily head of the work of feeding the starving people of Russia, a task the American relief administration considers the greatest it has yet faced.

The first party of workers probably will leave here for Moscow on Thursday next.

The other members of the first party will include John P. Gregg of Portland, B. G. Neurland of California, Carlton G. Bowen, a Rhodes scholar, and Will G. Shaffrons of Denver.

Brown will return to London with his secretay.

Sale of Camp Funston Completed.

By the Associated Press.

JUNCTION CITY, Kan., Aug. 20.—Liquidation of Camp Funston, with the exception of one-quarter of the wartime cantonment which the Government retains, was completed today and a corps of experts set to work to check over the returns. FE TERM FOR LAYER OF WOMAN FROM ST. LOUIS

Fred R. Hall, Storekeeper of Russellville, Ala., Convicted of Murdering Miss Martha Henderson.

E FOLLOWED HIM ON TRIPS, HE SAID

Defendant's Family in Court at Reading of Verdict—Notice of Appeal Is Filed.

ial to the Post-Dispatch.

RUSSELLVILLE, Ala., Aug. 20.—The case of Fred R. Hall, charged with the murder of Miss Martha Henderson, and who was placed on trial here Thursday morning, went to the jury last night at 10 o'clock and after nine hours the jury returned a verdict of guilty. The verdict read:

"We, the jury, find the defendant, Fred R. Hall, guilty of murder in the first degree and fix his punishment at life in the State penitentiary."

Attorneys for Hall filed notice of appeal, and Hall will be compelled to remain in jail here until January, at which time the case is expected to come up in the Supreme Court.

Miss Henderson was shot to death by Hall as she was about to enter his store here on April 12 last. She had come to Russellville from St. Louis about 10 days before the shooting.

The closing arguments in the case were delivered by Fritz Thompson, special counsel for the prosecution, and A. H. Carmichael, for the defendant. Carmichael was severe in his remarks and criticism of the demonstrations made by the public in connection with the case. The attorney reminded the jury that Hall had been one who had sinned and done wrong but was ready and wanted to repent but that the woman in question had hounded him until "death ended the game," as she had said it would.

Thompson began his speech by introducing himself and taking up the evidence in the case which he asked the jury to carefully weigh.

Court Calls for Order.

The attorney referred to Hall many times as "the worthless cur" and said his worthless neck should be broken." It was during the speech of Thompson that Judge Almon called for order and reminded the attorney and the audience that "This court does not try cases on sympathy and demonstrations in the court room."

The defendant in his story of his life and connection with Martha Henderson, told of visits to large cities.

Among the witnesses for the defense was Jim Ramsey, lumberman of Redbay, Ala., who testified that he had been in St. Louis several days prior to the time that Martha Henderson left that city for Russellville and that he had eaten supper with her in a cafe there. Ramsey stated that Miss Henderson saked him about Hall and remarked that she would see him in a few days, that she was going to make him dig up."

Woman Quoted by Witness.

Ramsey further stated that he told the woman of Hall's financial condition and that she remarked, "He can always get money when I call on him."

In telling his story Hall said that he was introduced to Miss Henderson in 1919 by R. G. Arthur of Sheffield, and that Arthur had told the girl of him previously and stated that he had a friend who was a "good spender." Hall stated that he met the woman and she had told him that she was a "crook" and had a father living in Dallas, but that he would not let her return home.

The defendant then told of his extensive travel and declared that Miss Henderson was "always on his trail," that he had got the woman a job in St. Louis where she worked for two weeks, but denied having made arrangements for her board. Hall further stated that the woman had bought $100 worth of goods on his credit at a wholesale dry goods house in St. Louis.

At the time Miss Henderson arrived in Tuscumbia from St. Louis, Hall stated, he met her because he was afraid of the results if he did not. He said he got her a room in Sheffield at Cap Fuller's rooming house, but that she had remarked, "If you return to Russellville, I am going, too."

Hall Told of Threat.

In giving an account of the killing, Hall stated that the woman had sent word that she was coming to the store to kill him, and that he had warned her of the result; that when she did appear he had said, "Do not come in here." that she stepped forward "and went to shooting." Letters taken from the trunks of Miss Henderson in St. Louis were introduced. Hall explained the letters by saying that he would do anything to make the woman rest easy and remain away from Russellville. Hall denied having begged the woman to come here.

Hall's family sat by and wept in silence last night as the attorneys for both sides pleaded with the jury for conviction and acquittal of Hall. His aged mother appeared in the courtroom for the first time, and her grief was plainly noticeable. Hall has a wife and four children.

When in St. Louis Miss Henderson shared with another woman an apartment at 5536 Pershing avenue.

Love Letters Were Found in Miss Henderson's Trunk Here.

After news of the killing of Miss Henderson reached St. Louis detectives went to an apartment at 5536 Pershing avenue, where she lived just before she went to Russellville, Ala., to visit Hall. They took possession of her trunk, in which they found more than 50 love letters unsigned, but written on the stationery of F. R. Hall & Co., dealers in merchandise, Russellville, Ala.

A young woman roommate said Miss Henderson did not work and seemed to be supported by remittances, and passed much of her time putting in and answering long-distance telephone calls. Hall was said to have been in St. Louis last February, remaining here several days, and making frequent visits to Miss Henderson.

RIVERVIEW CLUB GIVES POLITE PRIZE FIGHT

Women Spectators See Match in Which Boxers Evade Chance to Lacerate Faces.

The innovation of pink tea boxing bouts at Riverview Club yesterday afternoon was diverting as a novelty for afternoon entertainment, except for the main event, a polite affair between two temperamental bruisers who studiously evaded countless opportunities to lacerate other's features, but as a financial enterprise, it was not so successful. Seats had been placed for at least a thousand persons, but less than 150 club members and their ladies attended. Thus, the gate receipts, out of which it was hoped to add to the building improvement fund, suffered in proportion.

The party sat in eager anticipation for a whirlwind contest, but great was the disappointment when the referee disqualified the gentleman from Chicago for "pulling" his punches, thus ending the affair in the fourth of a scheduled eight-round battle.

Loud was the clamor from men and women to allow the fighters to go on, but more determined became the referee that St. Louis would not be duped by fighters who declined to fight.

The consensus of opinion in the animated discussions that followed was that the referee had "foozled" the whole affair and almost spoiled a perfect day.

All adjourned to the swimming pool to see Judge Hogan perform at aquatic acrobatics, however, and left the Chicago Kid, who was disqualified to his lamentations.

The patronnesses of the affair were. Mesdames L. Schlueter, R. J. O'Brien, Herman Spoehrer, H. W. Eales and Miss Edna Kiel. Women ushers, for whom there was little employment, were: Mesdames J. J. White, J. P. Horan, J. P. Fitzgerald, Henri Duernberg, Edward Miller, William Heckman, Dick Waltke and Charles Cunningham.

DE MOLAY OFFICERS TO VISIT

A committee of 150 past officers of the DeMolay, an organization of 110,000 boys, will visit St. Louis Sept. 16 to decide whether the 1922 conclave of the organization shall be held here. The convention, in Kansas City this year, was attended by 10,000 boys. The organization teaches good morals, respect for womanhood and love of country. It was formed in 1919 by Frank S. Land of Kansas City and has been backed by Alaxander Cochran of St. Louis.

C. L. Stange has issued a call for the St. Louis chapters to prepare for a general meeting to meet the visitors and exemplify team work. Moolah Temple will be offered for the meetings of the conclave. St. Louis was the third city to organize chapters and new chapters are being formed throughout the country at the rate of 53 a month.

BARRETT GIVES OPINION IN CASE OF CENT-A-DAY SALARY

Attorney-General Believes County Could Be Compelled to Give More Pay to School Officer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 20.—County Courts may be forced by proper legal proceedings to pay county school attendance officers a proper salary as recommended by the County Superintendent of Schools. Attorney-General aBrrett has held in an opinion to State Superintendent of Schools Sam A. Baker.

Baker's inquiry grew out of the action of a County Court, the identity of which is withheld, in voting to pay its county attendance officer a salary of 1 cent a day.

The statute governing this case provides that the county school attendance officer may be paid up to $4 a day and expenses for the time actually spent in enforcing the compulsory attendance law.

Barrett's opinion to Baker follows:

"This section of the law has never been passed upon by the courts of this State and we have no court opinion to guide us herein, yet, it is the opinion of this department that the Legislature had in mind that the attendance officer should be selected and paid for his services upon the recommendation of the Superintendent and evidently it was not intended that the County Courts could destroy the effect of the law by placing the salary at such an amount as 1 cent per day.

"Therefore, we are of the opinion that if the County Superintendent makes the selection of the attendance officer and makes the recommendation as to his salary within the limits fixed by the statute, and the attendance officer performs the work as required by law, then, in that event the County Court could be forced by proper proceedings at law to pay for the services as recommended by the County Superintendent."

HEALTH CERTIFICATE TO BE REQUIRED OF TEACHERS

State Superintendent Baker Gives Ruling on New Law Affecting Public Schools.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Aug. 20.—County school superintendents and school boards throughout the State are reminded in a letter to them from State Superintendent of Schools Sam A. Baker that they must require health certificates of teachers in future.

This requirement, in effect in Missouri for the first time, is a part of a law passed by the regular session of the last Legislature which became effective in June. In part the law provides that "no teacher shall be employed to teach in the schools of Missouri who has not furnished a certificate by a reputable physician showing said teacher to be in good health and free from any contagious disease at the time the certificate is granted."

Baker has ruled that county superintendents need not require the certificates of health before granting certificates to teach, but that it "should be presented to the School Board when application for position is made."

THE REV. JOSEPH GILFILLAN DIES OF TUBERCULOSIS

Brother of Pastor of New Cathedral Had Been Ill Seven Months at Mount St. Rose Hospital.

The Rev. Joseph Gilfillan, brother of the Rev. Francis Gilfillan, who is pastor of the New Cathedral, died of tuberculosis at Mount St. Rose Hospital, 9901 South Broadway, at 4 p. m. yesterday, after an illness of seven months. Until his illness he was pastor of Sacred Heart Catholic Church, Columbia, Mo., and formerly was in charge of parishes at Laddonia and other Missouri towns.

He was 41 years old, and is survived by his brother here and another in Ireland. He was ordained here 15 years ago in the Kenrick Seminary chapel, when the seminary was at Eighteenth street and Cass avenue, by Archbishop Glennon.

The office of the dead will be read for him at the New Cathedral at 8 o'clock this evening, with Mgr. Connolly in charge of the service. Requiem mass will be at 10 a. m. tomorrow, with burial in Calvary Cemetery. Archbishop Glennon will give absolution.

COAL DEALER SAYS CLERK IS ONE OF TRIO THAT ROBBED HIM

Prisoner Denies Charge But Warrant Charging Robbery is Issued.

George Murray, 20 years old, a clerk of 2001 Angelrodt street, was identified yesterday, the police say, by Philip Engel, 55 years old, of 4423 Holly avenue, president of the Echo Fuel and Material Co., Hall and North Market streets, as one of a trio of highwaymen who robbed him of $51 last Wednesday evening. Murray, the police reported, was picked out of a line of prisoners at the North Market Street station by Engel.

Murray in a statement to the police denied the charge and said he could prove an alibi.

Engel reported Wednesday that the three men had asked the price of coal and while he was quoting the prices one of the men drew a revolver and pressed it against his side as he sat at his desk. When he protested he was knocked out of the chair. He was then bound. The men took the money from his purse and escaped. An employe, five minutes later, released Engel.

A warrant charging robbery in the first degree was issued.

MAN UNCONSCIOUS IN HIS ROOM

Guadalupe Rodrigue Found in Granite City With Fractured Skull.

Guadalupe Rodrigue, 45 years old, was found in his room at Pacific and Chestnut streets, Granite City, at 9 a. m. yesterday, unconscious from a fracture of the skull. The police were not notified until 5 p. m., when he was sent to a hospital, in a critical condition.

Rodrigue was employed at the American Steel Foundry, and left his work at 6 a. m. The police have not learned whether he received his injury before or after he entered his room. Six cents was found in his pockets. The wound on his head indicated that he had been hit with a blunt instrument. He has a wife in Mexico.

HEAVY GUARD ABOUT KNOXVILLE JAIL

23 Still in Hospital as Result of Mob's Effort to Get Negro.

By the Associated Press.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 20.—With the vicinity of the courthouse and jail tonight under heavy guard of police, deputies and National guardsmen who enforced move-on orders vigorously, Knoxville authorities expressed confidence that there would be no repetition of Friday night's disorders when at least 28 persons were wounded, as defenders of the jail fired upon a crowd advancing upon them with the avowed purpose of demanding a negro held as a suspect of assault upon a white woman.

Extraordinary precautions were taken to preserve order tonight, as threats of use of dynamite against the jail and its defenders in revenge for the shooting Friday night had been head frequertly throughout the day. No one tonight was permitted to aproach within a block of the county jail. The courthouse yard, where last night hundreds of spectators stood and from which the first attack upon the officers came, was kept absolutely clear.

Six machine guns, manned by State police, were placed so as to sweep all approaches to the jail. Infantrymen were held in reserve while a troop of cavalry moved through the streets at brief intervals on a "practice march." Every policeman in the city, including reserves, was on duty while all deputy sheriffs were either at the jail or in the immediate vicinity.

While thousands of persons surged through the streets tonight and most of them attempted to approach the courthouse, through curiosity if for no other reason, all were diverted without incident. A dozen arrests were made on charges of disorderly conduct in the business district.

Of the 28 persons known to have been wounded last night, 26 were sent to hospitals, one of these was discharged before morning and today two others went to their homes. Of the 23 remaining in various hospitals tonight, two were reported in a serious condition while the others were improved.

TWO MEN INJURED TRYING TO STOP RUNAWAY HORSES

Two men were seriously injured in trying to stop a team of runaway horses at 4 p. m., yesterday. Charles Trube, 49 years old, of 4948 Page boulevard, a city fireman, was cut on the head and Peter Petrovich, 45, of 1922 Garden street, was cut on the face and head. Both were taken to the city hospital.

Stanley Jakul of 915 Cass avenue, a driver for the Union Biscuit Co., had stopped his team at a watering trough at Nineteenth street and Franklin avenue and had climbed out on the tongue of the wagon to loosen the bridles when the horses became frightened and ran away.

Petrovich tried to stop the team in front of 1820 Franklin avenue and was knocked down by the wagon. Trube grabbed the bridle and steered the horses against a trolley pole on the sidewalk. He was jammed between the pole and the wagon. Jakul, although occupying a perilous position during the flight of the horses, was unhurt.

NO ESTATE LEFT BY WIFE OF WILLIAM D. HAYWOOD

Reports Had Indicated Opportunity for Collection of $15,000 Fine.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—Mrs. Jane Minor Haywood, wife of William D. Haywood, former leader of the Industrial Workers of the World, who fled to Russia to escape a 20-year prison sentence and a $15,000 fine for conspiracy to obstruct the Government's war efforts, left no estate when she died at Winnemucca, Nev., two years ago, it became known here today. This would dispose of any chance that United States District Attorney F. Clyne of Chicago might have had in attempting to collect the fine from her estate.

News dispatches last Monday from Chicago said that Clyne was contemplating action to recover the fine because Mrs. Haywood died without leaving a will and under such circumstances the Nevada law awards one-third of the estate to the husband. Haywood left his wife and two children many years ago, but so far as is known, they never were divorced.

W. H. Minor, father of Mrs. Haywood, was a pioneer stockman of Nevada, and when he died several years ago he left an estate valued at about $20,000. It was divided among his widow and five children.

ANSWER FILED TO BARNHOUSE'S SUIT TO COLLECT HIS SALARY

Attorney General Contends Drug Commissioner, Refusing to Give Up Office, Hold Under Void Statute.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 20.—The Attorney General today filed returns for State Auditor Hackman to two mandamus suits brought against Hackmann by Dr. E. T. Barnhouse, Feed and Drug Commissioner, demanding that warrants be issued to him and his deputies, in payment of salaries and expenses for May, June and July. The May suit is in the Supreme Court and that as to June and July is in the Circuit Court of Cole County. The Attorney General contends in his return to each suit that the law extending Barnhouse's term from 1921 to 1923, and under which he now is holding, is unconstitutional and Barnhouse's claim to the office is void.

Hackmann has refused, under directions of Gov. Hyde, to pay Barnhouse and his deputies. Charles Prather of Advance is the Hyde appointee to the place, and Barnhouse has refused to surrender the office to him.

Attorney-General Daugherty, Senators New, Hale and Townsend and Lasker in Party.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—President and Mrs. Harding left Washington late today for another week-end cruise on the yacht Mayflower in the lower Potomac and Chesapeake Bay. They will return Monday morning.

Accompanying them is a party of friends including Attorney-General Daugherty, Senator New of Indiana, and Mrs. New; Senator Hale of Maine; Senator Townsend of Michigan, and Mrs. Townsend; Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board, and Jesse Smith of Washington Courthouse, O.

A message from the Mayflower when off Quantico, Va., tonight, said: "Good weather, all well."

M'KELVEY TELLS WHY HE OPPOSES KINGSBURY GARAGE

Public Safety Director Says He Carried Out Zoning Provisions in Revoking Permit.

RESIDENTS JOIN IN REMONSTRANCE

Owner of Lot Waited Four Years to Build, and Now Seeks Court Test on Law Passed in Interim.

Director of Public Safety McKelvey stated yesterday that he was only carrying out the provisions of the zoning ordinance, in revoking a permit for the erection of a public garage on the north side of Kingsbury boulevard, between Clara and De Baliviere avenues.

William C. Hay, president of the Wellston Planing Mill Co., 6310 Wells avenue, applicant for the permit, has asked the Circuit Court for a writ of mandamus to compel Director McKelvey to issue the permit.

Director's Explanation.

"Hay contends that I have no right to revoke a building permit," said Director McKelvey. "He originally applied for the permit in 1917, before the zoning ordinance was in effect, and it was granted. With the passage of the zoning ordinance in 1918 the permit, which had not been used, automatically expired. On March 29 of this year Hay again applied for a permit to erect a garage costing approximately $60,000 and it was issued. Following that a delegation of property owners from the neighborhood where the garage was to have been erected appeared before the Board of Public Service and remonstrated.

"Under the terms of the ordinance there was but one thing for me to do and that was to recommend that the Board of Public Service revoke the permit. I proceeded under Section 7 of the zoning ordinance which, in part is as follows:

"'The Board of Public Service may issue a permit for the establishment of a public garage in a residential or commercial district upon presentation of a petition duly signed where such structure will not be detrimental or tend to change the character of the neighborhood.'

"The block in which Hay desires to erect his garage is designated on the city zoning map as a commercial district, except for a comparatively small space on the north side of Kingsbury boulevard, which is the southern end of the block.

"Delmar boulevard, from Clara to De Baliviere avenues, which is the northern side of the block, is occupied exclusively by commercial structures, mostly retail stores. The Delmonte Theater and the Delmonte Hotel are in that portion of the block.

"The east side of De Baliviere avenue, which forms the western boundray of the block, also is occupied by stores and other commercial establishments, including the Winter Garden, which is at the northeast corner of Kingsbury and De Baliviere.

"South of the building at the southwest corner of Clara and Delmar, which is a drug store, are several apartment houses, extending to Kingsbury and west on the north side of Kingsbury for a third of a block.

"At the southeast corner of Clara and Delmar is the Central Presbyterian Church, half a block further south on the east side of Clara avenue is the west entrance to Washington Terrace, and on the south side of Kingsbury boulevard, between Clara and De Baliviere avenues, are the Georgian Court Apartments and the Warwick Apartments.

Calls Garage Detrimental.

"I contend, and the Board of Public Service supports the contention, that the language of the zoning ordinance, 'where such structure will not be detrimental or tend to change the character of the neighborhood,' applies to the erection of a public garage in the midst of a residential section such as surrounds Kingsbury boulevard, between Clara and De Baliviere.

"It is true that the block in question is designated as a commercial district, the stores and other commercial structures thereon having antedated the zoning ordinance, but the lot on which Hay desires to erect his garage is, strictly speaking, in a residential neighborhood.

"The property owners in the neighborhood presented that argument. Hay could offer nothing to offset it. The Board of Public Service, under the ordinance, had no alternative than to uphold the opposition and revoke the permit.

"For my part, I welcome an interpretation of the zoning ordinance by the Circuit Court. The Court's decision will settle a question that is bound to cause confusion whenever it is presented."

Hay's suit was to have been argued last Friday, but was laid over until the October term of court.

GILLILANDS FREED WHILE POLICE HERE PLAN EXTRADITION

Woman Who Was Thought Murdered and Husband Held as Slayer Released by Granite City Court.

HABEAS CORPUS WRIT ISSUED

East St. Louis Department Asked to Rearrest Couple to Answer Charge in Connection With Liquor Theft

Thomas Gilliland and his wife, Mrs. Serena Gilliland, escaped extradition to St. Louis on a larceny charge last night by obtaining their release from the Granite City police station through a writ of habeas corpus. The St. Louis police failed to have a representative in Granite City with documentary evidence that the Gillilands were wanted here.

On information that the Gillilands had departed for East St. Louis the police here requested the East St. Louis authorities to arrest and hold them pending arrangement of extradition.

The warrant charging murder on which Gilliland was being held, on the theory that he had killed his wife, was withdrawn in the County Court at Granite City yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Steele, after he had interviewed Mrs. Gilliland, for whose "murder" Gilliland was being detained. In the meantime the St. Louis police had telephoned to Chief Clark of Granite City that they were holding warrants against the Gillilands charging theft and that extradition papers would be applied for at Springfield, Ill., in the course of the day.

At 6:30 p. m., an attorney from East St. Louis applied to Judge M. R. Sullivan of the City Court at Granite City for a writ of habeas corpus ordering the immediate release of the prisoners. Judge Sullivan summoned Chief Clark and questioned him as to his reason for holding the Gillilands. Chief Clark told of the telephone message from the St. Louis police, but the Judge decided that was not sufficient grounds for holding them and directed that they be released at once.

The information against the Gillilands charges them with larceny from a dwelling, a felony, and was issued by the Circuit-Attorney's office in connection with the theft of liquors valued at $1000 from the home of C. H. Krause, 4454 Forest Park boulevard, where the Gillilands were employed as yardman and maid prior to April 16.

As has been told, Gilliland was held suspected of murder following the "identification" of the body of a woman found buried in a wheatfield near Granite City April 16 as that of Mrs. Serena Gilliland. Mrs. Gilliland was located in Cincinnati Friday, and when she established proof of her identity the murder charge against her husband was dropped.

The police have resumed their efforts to identify the murdered woman, whose body has been buried in the family lot of Mrs. Gilliland's grandmother, Mrs. Martha Hull, of East St. Louis, in Mount Hope Cemetery, near Belleville.

SERGEANTS TOLD PROHIBITION LAWS MUST BE ENFORCED

can't find them send them before the board for failing to patrol.

"See that your men keep themselves neat. Some loo A shave and a shine and clean collar will inspire them to do better work. Don't permit them to lean against telephone poles. If they must have a rest in their work period tell them to take it in an alley away from public view. I frequently see unnecessary gatherings of patrolmen at Grand avenue and Olive street, Sarah and Olive streets, King's highway and Delmar boulevard, Eighteenth and Olive streets, Eighteenth and Market streets, Grand and Easton avenues and Grand avenue and Arsenal street.

Must Solve Crimes.

"It won't hurt you to do a bit of police work after hours now and then. Many of you believe that when you have reported a crime your work is ended. You are expected to solve crime as well. If there is anything on your precinct that needs investigation take the responsibility of investigating it. Don't pass the buck.

"Detectives from headquarters have complained that when they are sent to a district to investigate a case the policeman on the beat snoops around and asks people in the neighborhood, 'What are the dicks doing here?' If the policemen cannot help the detectives they should not interfere with their work.

"Remember the Police Department is a business. We are selling protection and service to honest citizens and penitentiary and jail sentences and fines to law violators. I believe that 95 per cent of people of St. Louis are law-abiding. We believe in majority rule. Don't let the 5 per cent rule the 95 per cent.

"See that your patrolmen read the Police Journal. It contains much information of value to them. Don't let what I have said go in one ear and out the other. I thank you for your attention."

ATTITUDE TOWARD MEXICO AS SET OUT IN INTERVIEW

State Department Gives Text of Declarations by Under Secretary Fletcher in Mexico City Paper.

MEXICO MAY OFFER PLAN IF SO DESIRED

No Idea to Grant Recognition and Defer the Signing of Treaty; Demand as to Debt.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The text of the interview given by Under Secretary Fletcher to Senor Gomez Ugarte, editorial director of "El Universal," Mexico City's newspaper, was given out today by the State Department. The interview appeared on Aug. 12. It follows in part:

"The declarations made by Mr. Fletcher to Senor Gomez Ugarte may be divided summarily as follows:

"1. Washington is sincerely desirous of a final settlement of the existing difficulties.

"2. In asking that a treaty of friendship and commerce be signed, it does not mean to bring pressure to bear but only suggests appropriate means according to its judgment.

"3. If Mexico knows of any better way to solve the problem it may offer it.

"4. The action taken by Washington is entirely free from the influence of oil men or politicians.

"5. Fletcher would be disposed to go in person to Mexico to sign the arrangement.

"6. The friendship existing between the two peoples compels both Governments to guarantee that friendship and also to avoid any future actions that might cause friction.

"7. That Article 27 is not retroactive and is still being held a sine qua non condition to arrive at an agreement.

"8. That there is any idea at present in Washington to grant recognition and defer the signing of the treaty is untrue.

"9. Washington does not claim to demand peremptory payment of the foreign debt or of the claims growing out of injuries caused by the revolution and is ready to assist in the restoration of Mexico.

Secretary Most Cordial.

"During the interview Undersecretary Fletcher was most cordial with assurances that the American Government desired to make a final end of the difficulties without wishing to impose its will, and only sought one of so many means of settlement in submitting the treaty to the Government of Mexico. Mr. Fletcher added that Washington does not make an exception of Mexico in this matter, as it will follow the same policy with Greece and Germany before recognizing their respective Governments.

"The question of the recognition of the Government of Mexico is one that lies within the discretion of Washington, and it is, therefore, natural for it to propose terms or accept those that may be offered. Right now the proposition of the Department of State that Mexico sign a treaty is not disparaging to that country, in the opinion of Mr. Fletcher, who in this respect recalled that England's recognition followed the signing of the protocol.

"Mr. Fletcher's remark about his willingness to go in person to Mexico to sign the treaty must be taken as evidence of his true friendship.

"Speaking of the oil men, he said textually, the following: 'It is absolutely untrue that oil influences are determining the action of the American Government.'

"Referring to the mixed claims commission Mr. Fletcher said the matter of claims is included in the proposed treaty and that, if the Mexican Government would not consider it humiliating to accept that part, there should be no reason standing in the way of the acceptance of the other points. He then made word for word the following inquiry:

"'Why settle only one part if a settlement of the whole can be had?'

Carranza's Decrees.

"Obviously as may be seen from the interview with Mr. Fletcher the United States does not claim that Mexico shall pay within a fixed time all its debts and satisfy all the claims and is disposed to wait and let it pay as much as it can and the United States will extend ample assistance to the restoration, but requires assurances that there shall be no confiscatory law and that Mexico will confine itself to the elemental dictates of justice.

"Carranza offered to pass laws without retroactive effect and yet confiscatory decrees were issued. It is therefore imperative to establish conditions that will stop such action in the future.

"Referring to the work of the press of both countries, he said that the work of respectable periodicals, of which El Universal is one, ought to be to bring the two peoples together effectually so as to bring into the masses the conviction that a lasting friendship is necessary."

Chief of Staff Appoints Col. R. C. Davis to Ascertain Causes of Delay.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Gen. Pershing, chief of staff, has taken steps to cut red tape in the War Department by appointing Col. Robert C. Davis, 55th Infantry, to investigate causes of delay in handling papers within all branches and bureaus of the department. After having ascertained the causes of delay, Col. Davis is directed to devise measures for removing them.

The duty of Col. Davis also includes regulations for effecting the necessary changes in detail involved in the administrative methods incident to the newly announced general staff organization.

In carrying out his duties, Col. Davis will follow particular papers through the various channels of the War Department. This will enable him to ascertain where delays occur and formulate more effective routine methods.

All bureau chiefs of branches and divisions of the general staff are directed to co-operate with Col. Davis and to make any suggestions for improvement that may occur to them or their subordinates.

BREWERY AT ST. CHARLES CLOSED BY DIRECTOR HOOVER

Owners Were Operating Plant Without Permit to Make and Sell Beverage.

The Schibi Brewing Company of St. Charles was closed yesterday by Prohibition Director Hoover for operating a dealcoholization plant without a Federal permit. Hoover said that samples of brew taken from vats was found to contain a greater percentage of alcohol than is allowed by law, but that the bottled product was found to be satisfactory.

When questioned for a permit to carry on dealcoholization officials of the company showed Hoover an application for a permit to manufacture beverage which had been made in 1917. They had not received the permit, but had been operating since then under the supposition that the application was sufficient, Hoover said.

SOUTHEAST MISSOURI PICNIC

St. Louisans From That Section of State Meet at Forest Park.

The Southeast Missouri Association, an organization of St. Louisans from Southeast Missouri, held its second annual picnic at Forest Park yesterday afternoon with an attendance of about 800. The members, who represent 20 counties from Southeast Missouri, were divided into groups according to the counties.

Late in the afternoon they were called together again for speeches by St. Louisans, included among whom were Mayor Kiel, David W. Hill, Charles Hay, John M. Atkinson, Dr. A. H. Hamel and W. F. Carter. I. R. Kelso, president of the organization, presided.

POLLUTION THREATENS FISH

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Representatives from congressional districts bordering the Ohio River between Pittsburg, Pa., and Cairo, Ill., have been invited by Representative Rosenbloom, Republican, West Virginia, to attend a meeting Monday for the purpose of considering legislative means of protecting fish in the stream.

Pollution of the waters by bordering industrial plants, Rosenbloom said in the call to the legislators, is threatening extinction of fish life.

BURCH SAID TO HAVE COMPLETE ALIBI

Defense Attorneys Also Declare There Is No Evidence Against Mrs. Obenchain.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 20.—Prediction that a complete alibi would be established for Arthur C. Burch, indicted with Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain for the alleged murder of J. Belton Kennedy, was made today by Richard Kittrelle of counsel for the defendants.

The attorney did not go into details, but said he was confident Burch would be able to account for every moment of his time on the night of Aug. 5 when Kennedy was shot to death.

The case against Mrs. Obenchain, he said, would fall because "there was no evidence to convict her."

A conference between Kittrelle and his partner, Paul W. Schenck, and Ralph R. Obenchain, former husband and attorney for Madalynne Obenchain, will be held tomorrow, it was stated, to prepare for the appearance of the defendants in court Monday to plead to the indictment.

Another development today was the announcement of Obenchain that he would demand that the prosecution produce letters he declared were in possession of J. D. Kennedy, father of the dead man. He did not indicate what the letters were except to say he believed they had an "important bearing" on the case. At the District Attorney's office it was said no information had been received there of any letters of this kind.

R. C. King, a gunsmith, who was reported to have identified a gunstock found at the beach at Santa Monica, as one repaired in his shop July 27, said he had discovered discrepancies and he believed the two were not identical. Plans to have him confront Burch were abandoned by the Sheriff's office. The prosecution contends Burch was seen the night of the shooting near the point where the gunstock was found on the beach.

SALESMAN CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT OF $2500

Frank J. Steiner Held on Complaint of Washington Avenue Garment Company.

Frank J. Steiner, 20 years old, of 5140 Cates avenue, a salesman employed as Tennessee representative of the Gollub & Frager Bros. Garment Co., 704 Washington avenue, was charged with embezzlement in an information issued by the Circuit Attorney's office yesterday, in which it is alleged he disposed of the firm's samples for his own profit and collected commissions on fictitious orders. The amount involved was said to be about $2500.

Steiner was arrested at Nashville, Tenn. He declined to discuss the case, saying his attorney would handle it, but said he could prove he had complained to various hotel managers that samples had disappeared from his trunks.

FOR MAKING LUXUMBURG A CITY

Petitions for the incorporation of Luxemburg as a city of the fourth class will be circulated by the Lemay Ferry League this week for presentation to the County Court.

The proposed city limits are the same as the limits of the Hancock consolidated school district, with 2000 population. Advocates of incorporation say it is necessary for proper provision for streets, water and lighting.

OIL MACHINERY UNLOADED IN NORTH IN HEAVY STORM

Men Work Feverishly in Face of Cold Wind of Mackenzie River to Give Drillers Needed Supplies.

NEW WELL BY FALL LIKELY

Surgeon Welcomed by Fort Norman Oil Co. Camp, Where He Will Run Hospital and Arrange Sports.

By CHESTER A. BLOOM,
Staff Correspondent of the Calgary Herald and the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1921.)

FORT NORMAN OIL CO. CAMP, 43 miles below Fort Norman, Thursday, July 21.—(By Airplane and Wire.)—In the midst of a howling windstorm the Alberta and Arctic Transportation Company's steamboat "Distributor" was unloaded today at the site where another Arctic oil well will be drilled in 1921. The big vessel carrying more than 200 tons of oil machinery down the Mackenzie River was hailed with delight by oil operators in this far northern field, when she came steaming around the bend in the big river.

Landing a heavy boiler at the site of the Fort Norman oil well, immediately on her arrival, the big river vessel proceeded on down to the site of the original well of the Imperial Oil, Ltd., where a small consignment of machinery was unloaded. Meanwhile, one of the terrific Arctic windstorms, the bane of navigators in this for northern latitude, came whistling down from the polar regions. The firts blasts struck the "Distributor" midway across the Mackenzie on her way to the Bear Island location of the Imperial Oil. The river is four miles wide at this point and in a few minutes a terrific surf was pounding on the northwest point of the island.

Damage From Storm.

Under a full head of steam the "Distributor" made good going of it until she tried to round the point of the lee, on which one of the new Imperial Oil camps is located. The wind caught her broadside on, and forced her on the bank, smashing some blades, but causing no other damage and she made a safe landing at the oil camp.

The storm increased in violence during the afternoon, but a boiler and 200,000 feet of lumber for the new camp was unloaded, the men working up to 10 p. m. with feverish haste. The storm had increased to such a height by this time that it was impossible to back the big steamer away from the island and around the point out into the stream.

The mountains across the channel were obscured by black clouds, a flying scud of foam and sand made it almost impossible to face the storm and the tall trees on the island bent to the wind, some of them crashing down. The captain finally decided not to risk the effort of getting away and tied up for the night. By 9:30 o'clock in the morning the crest of the storm had apparently passed and the big steamer backed out safely past the dangerous point. With the wind at her back, she fairly flew six miles upstream again to the Fort Norman Oil Co. camp to unload a huge consignment of iron casing for this well.

New Well to Be Drilled.

Supt. Frank Slaver, in charge of the work here, was more than delighted to get his machinery, boiler and casing. "We will begin drilling now in a few days," he said, "as we have our derrick complete and were only waiting for arrival of our machinery and casing to start. With ordinary good luck we expect to have a well drilled in by this fall."

According to the driller, it should take about 40 days to drill a well to the depth of the oil strata in this field, barring delays from "fishing" jobs for strings of tools lost down the well. In any event, Slaver and his crew will have the first well in the Mackenzie Arctic oil fields started this summer as the Imperial Oil crews are still awaiting the arrival of derrick timbers for the three outfits of machinery now on the ground.

Supt. E. W. Harris of the Imperial Oil Drilling Co. has three separate new camps in working order now to drill three new wells, and is only awaiting the arrival of the derrick lumber to start the first one on Bear Island. The boiler of the well at that location came down on the "Distributor" and the derrick timbers are expected on the Hudson's Bay steamer, "Mackenzie River."

Surgeon Welcomed to Camp.

One very welcome arrival on the "Distributor" was Dr. W. A. Richardson of Victoria, B. C., who will be chief field surgeon in the Arctic oil fields for the Imperial Oil Co. Dr. Richardson was formerly chief surgeon for the Northern Construction of Foley, Welch and Stewart, and is thoroughly familiar with hospital work for big camps. He will at once organize a hospital at the headquarters camp on Bear Island. Where so many men are employed handling heavy machinery there are sure to be some accidents, and while no one has been seriously hurt yet it is a great relief to the workmen to know that they can get medical attention at once instead of having to be sent 900 miles away to Fort Smith.

In addition to his medical work, Dr. Richardson intends to organize various sports among the camps to keep the men in a healthy frame of mind for facing the long Arctic winter which some of the newcomers are beginning to think about with considerable trepidation now that they are on the ground.

The windstorm which swept down from the north yesterday carried an Arctic chill in its blast which was a sharp reminder of what is to come in another six weeks or two months.

This will be the greatest task which the drilling camp superintendents will have to face, holding their men when the last upriver boats of the year sail away for civilization the first week in September.

GROVER BERGDOLL HAS NO GENUINE AMERICAN PASSPORT

Use of a Forged Passport to Get Into Switzerland Might Result in Extradition.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—If Grover C. Bergdoll, wealthy draft evader, arrived in Switzerland, as reported, with an American passport, the document was a forgery. This declaration was made today by officials of the State Department when attention was called to a published report of Bergdoll's arrival at St. Gall.

There is the possibility that by crossing the border into Switzerland, Bergdoll has laid himself open to the very thing he sought to escape—return to the United States. The State Department has expressed no opinion on the subject. Some Government officials, however, believe that if Bergdoll's American passport is not genuine, the act of using it may in itself be sufficient ground for extradition, without mention of the offense for which he was committed to the army prison.

NEW OIL FIELDS REPORTED ON NORTH COAST OF ALASKA

Prospectors Bring in Story of "Lake of Oil" Near Point Barrows.

By the Associated Press.

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 20.—Discovery of new oil fields in the vicinity of Wainwright inlet and Point Barrow, on the Arctic Coast of Alaska, which it is believed here may rival in importance the Mackenzie River fields of Northern Canada, was reported today by members of a California prospecting party which has been in the district since last July.

According to R. M. D. Adams, head of the party, large seepages occur in the neighborhood of Cape Simpson, east of Point Barrow. They appear, he said, to spring from two or three conspicuous barren mountains back of the Cape and within a mile of the Arctic shore line. They flow several hundred yards into a "lake of oil."

Another party which left Nome in July is also prospecting in the neighborhood.

Reports of a "lake of oil" between Point Barrow and Demarcation Point on the Canadian boundary were first made about five years ago by a teacher at Point Barrow.

DAIRYMEN REPLY TO U. S. REPORT ON MILK SENT HERE

President of Producers' Association Says Conditions Complained of Last March Do Not Exist Today.

Fred Henke, a dairyman of Fruit, Ill., president of the Illinois-Missouri Co-operative Milk Producers' Association, yesterday sent to the Post-Dispatch a letter concerning the report of the dairy division, United States Department of Agriculture, on the St. Louis milk supply.

Henke says, in his letter, that the investigation was made in "a period of unsettled conditions" in the milk business in the Illinois district which furnished a large part of the St. Louis supply. The period of the investigation, as stated in the report, was March 8 to 10 last.

The milk producers complained last March that, because of overproduction and lack of demand, the latter due to the curtailment of the condensing business, they had to feed much of the milk to hogs. In the fall of 1920 the Southern Illinois milk producers made an attempt to raise their price to the St. Louis distributors as high as $3.60 a hundred pounds. The distributors refused to pay the price, and arranged for a temporary supply from more distant points. This was the so-called "strike" of milk producers, which lasted from Sept. 16 through October, and ended in defeat for the producers, who soon accepted a price lower than $3 a hundred pounds.

Henke's letter is as follows:

"The report of the Government milk investigators does not reflect a true condition of the milk supply today, and does not give a fair impression to the public of the conditions under which the milk for the St. Louis market is produced and distributed.

Conditions Are Better.

"In justice to the producers, distributors, and various State, Federal and city authorities and investigators, who have been working upon the milk supply problem, permit me to say that much constructive work has been accomplished, both before this investigation, and since, in the local dairy industry, and a constantly bettered condition of the St. Louis milk supply over a period of years stands as evidence of the good work which has been accomplished.

"It should be pointed out that the investigation carried on by the committee was during a period of unsettled conditions, during a period when normal shipping conditions and facilities for forwarding milk to the St. Louis market, were completely disarranged. Hence the report could not possibly reveal the true conditions under which milk is normally received and distributed.

"It must be admitted that every city has a few dairy men who are naturally unclean in their work, but this should not be used to injure the industry in general, particularly when 90 per cent of the milk which is delivered and consumed in St. Louis is produced in clean daires, from registered Holstein herds, second to none in the United States and shipped under the best possible conditions, and inspected thoroughly.

Asks for Co-Operation.

"The Southern Illinois Milk Producers' Association, in co-operation with the State Dairy Department of Illinois during the last seven years, has carried on a constant educational campaign for better milk among the producers of Southern Illinois and Missouri, and the wonderful improvement during that time is shown in the modern methods which are used by members of the association generally.

"The Illinois-Missouri Co-Operative Milk Producers' Association, which is the outgrowth of those conditions which brought about the investigation, expects to carry on the work done by the Suthern Illinois Milk Producers' Association. It will have a closer control, and more definite inspection service, and expects to employ a specialist who will devote his entire time to educational work for better milk. The association is anxious to co-operate with Federal, State and city milk inspection services, and witah the distributers, in bringing about for the City of St. Louis and its surrounding territory, the best milk supply in the United States."

"FIGHT FILMS MAY BE MORE INSPIRING THAN SEX PICTURES"

W. C. T. U. Director Declares Method of Censorship Is Purely Commercial.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—Prize fight motion pictures, which are barred by law, may be more inspiring and desirable than some of the sex pictures whose display is allowed, Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger, Upland, Ind., a national director of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, said today in addressing a Sabbath observance conference of the forty-eighth annual convention of the union.

Mrs. Vayhinger charged that the present censorship of pictures is almost purely commercial.

"Pictures are not censored for what they contain," she said, "but for how well they will sell and where the best market may be obtained. The censorship itself is left in the hands of the industry."

The conference resolved for a closer observance of the Sabbath without any undue restrictions on amusements as they now exist under the law.

Mrs. Frances E. Bauchamp, a Kentucky delegate, quoted authorities to the effect that 20,000 deaths in the United States last year were due directly or indirectly to cigarette smoking.

BRITAIN ACCEPTS INVITATION TO BIG CONFERENCE

Reply Is Forwarded to President Harding's Call for Disarmament Meeting in Washington.

JAPANESE CABINET DISCUSSES QUESTION

Forecast in Tokio That Reply to Invitation Will Be Reiteration of Japan's Position.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Great Britain's formal acceptance of the official invitation of President Harding to participate in the conference on Far Eastern questions and disarmament in November next, has been forwarded to the American Government, it was announced here today.

The British note is couched in cordial terms of approval of the objects for which the conference has been called, it was added.

Japan's Answer to Invitation Discussed by Tokio Cabinet.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Aug. 20.—Japan's formal answer to the American invitation to participate in the conference on disarmament and Far East questions was discussed by the Cabinet yesterday, but it is probably its dispatch to Washington will be delayed a few days. At present it is forecast that the reply will be in the nature of a reiteration of the position of Japan, which has been voiced in formal notes sent to Washington.

Some newspapers profess to be disturbed over the expression in the American note that there would be discussed "matters which have been and are of concern." They deem that this clause ignores Japan's qualification concerning the consideration of accomplished facts.

DRYS SWINGING TO LIGHT WINE VIEW, NEWTON SAYS

St. Louis Congressman Tells Republican Caucus Anti-Saloon Leaguers Recognize Respect for Law Will Come Only With Liberality.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Prohibition leaders and lobbyists at the capital, according to Congressman Cleveland Newton of St. Louis, have awakened to the realization that the prevailing disrespect for dry laws can only be ended by a modification permitting the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer. Newton said he had "reason to know" that the Anti-Saloon League machine had at last swung around to this view. He called on the leaders to show the courage of their convictions by coming forward and advocating a measure that would not only cure lawlessness, but would bring millions of dollars into the treasury at a time of sore need.

Newton's plea for liberalization was in a speech which he made this week at a Republican caucus and inserted in the Congressional record today. His remarks were prompted by the proposal of the House Ways and Means Committee to place a tax of 12 cents a gallon on cereal beverages—near beer. Such a levy, he asserted, would put the cereal beverage manufacturers out of business, deprive the treasury of $16,000,000 a year which they are now paying in taxes, and breed further lawlessness by causing thousands of families to join the already swollen ranks of the home brewers.

Cut in Tax Results.

The committee was sufficiently impressed by his statement to cut the proposed tax to six cents and later to four cents.

"I voted against prohibition," said Newton, "because I did not believe it was practicable or enforceable, because I thought it would breed intemperance and disrespect for the law, and I believe a test of nearly two years has vindicated my judgment. You cannot enforce any law in the violation of which the people see no moral turpitude. You cannot make the average American citizen believe that it is wrong for him to make or drink a mild wine or beer containing a non-intoxicating quantity of alcohol, merely because Congress writes a law declaring it a crime.

"What are the conditions in this country today? Instead of having a few hundred licensed breweries regulated by law, making a wholesome beverage with a prescribed and reasonable amount of alcohol and paying hundreds of millions of dollars into the treasury in taxes, when we are in such dire need of funds, we have hundreds of home brewers, who are made law violators and who are making an unwholesome brew with a high percentage of alcohol and who are paying no taxes to the Government whatsoever, and in addition thereto we have bootleggers and border runners and crooked prohibition enforcement agents from one end of this land to the other.

Urges Light Wines and Beer.

"If the prohibitionists in this country are sincere in their desire for temperance, if they want to end lawlessness, if they want to strike a death blow to the bootleggers, if they want to save millions of dollars which is now in great measure being wasted in an attempt at prohibition enforcement and if they are willing to turn lawlessness into order and at the same time produce millions of dollars revenue for the treasury, let them have the courage of their conviction and advocate the licensing and taxing of mild wine and beer.

"That this is the solution and the only solution and that it will come I have not the remotest doubt. I have reason to know that prohibition leaders and lobbyists who have infested this Capitol, and with the best organized political machine ever formed in this country, have intimidated Congressmen and Senators into voting for radical and un-American prohibition provisions against both conscience and judgment, are fully conscious that this is the only solution of this most vexing problem.

"If they have the moral courage which the crusader ought to have, and the patriotism to serve their country best, they will come before Congress without delay and will advocate the licensing and manufacturing of mild wine and beer which will satisfy the demands of the American people and will remove them from the temptation of the illicit distiller and the ruthless bootlegger and which will increase temperance and sobriety, will promote respect for law and government and will provide funds for the treasury at a time when the country needs them as never before."

SPANISH LOSS TO MOORS HELD DUE TO RECKLESSNESS

Generals Operated Too Far From Bases, Says Account of Moroccan Disaster as Sent to London.

10,000 REPORTED TO HAVE DIED IN ATTACK

Beni Sicar Tribe Showing Restlessness and With Revolt Spaniards Would Be Virtually Surrounded.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—The reverse suffered by the Spanish column in Morocco is attributed mainly to the "recklessness of the Generals in operating too far from their bases," says the Madrid correspondent of the London Times, who, in a lengthy dispatch gives what is designated as the "first full account of the Spanish disaster in Morocco, and its causes."

The extent of the disaster at Melilla, declares the correspondent, is so far-reaching in its consequences that it is as yet impossible to estimate its effects.

"But," he adds, "it is such that it might ultimately discourage those who still believe in Spain's destinies as a colonization nation. Yet, its effect may be to brace the nation to make necessary retrenchment and economic sacrifices at home in order to continue the campaign, which must be both long and costly."

10,000 Believed Killed.

Recounting the Spanish strength, and telling of the actions, the correspondent asserts that some 10,000 Spaniards must be considered dead as "airplane observers have reported the roads littered with bodies."

"The wholesale killings, such as occurred at Zeluan and Sididriss, and to a part of Col. Araujo's column at Darques Dana and at Igueriben, account for the large numbers of dead," says the correspondent, "and the bare hills and ravines must have been the scene of many tragic murders of fugitives."

He reports that the Spanish forces are hemmed in around Melilla and that the Beni Sicar tribe on the neck of the Peninsula of Tres Forcas, north of Melilla, is showing restlessness.

6000 Held Prisoners.

Should this tribe revolt, he declares, Melilla would be surrounded except from the sea.

For the moment, according to the correspondent, an active campaign is impossible. He says the troops are not ready and that consideration of what might happen to the 6000 prisoners held by the tribe, among whom are men, women and children from mines and farms, must be the "supreme consideration."

In the opinion of the correspondent, it seems probable that for some time the Spanish forces will not move far afield, "while the money passes out and the ransomed come back."

After recalling that the operations of Gen. Silvestre in the region were begun a year ago, last June, he concludes:

"Money was as much his weapon as force of arms, and accounted for the surprising facility with which dominating positions were occupied with little fighting, only to be surrounded and attacked when the effect of the payment had worn off."

Moors Fighting Among Themselves Over Spoils.

By the Associated Press.

MELILLA, Morocco, Aug. 20.—Moors arriving here report that the rebellious Moroccan tribesmen who recently wrested some positions from the Spanish forces are continually fighting among themselves over divisions of the loot captured, many of the Moors being killed in the conflicts.

Spanish prisoners who have escaped from one of the Moorish camps say the Spanish prisoners in that camp, numbering 319, received good treatment at the hands of the Moors, Abdul Krin, the Moorish leader, having threatened to punish disobedience of his orders in this respect with death.

It is learned that on July 22 and the following days some 10,000 tribesmen were in Anual, one of the positions taken from the Spaniards. A few days ago Abdul Krin went with his tribe to Benisaid, and returned to Anual alone, saying he was ill. He now is remaining shut up in his house there.

Fifty Spanish boy scouts who came to Melilla as volunteers have been given work in the Hospitals and in the sanitary service.

An artillery Lieutenant who recently escaped from Anual, where he was held prisoner by the Moors since the latter part of July, says that when any Moor of rank arrives in Anual he is saluted with a volley and that the Spanish prisoners are knocked about as a sign of rejoicing. The Moors have established a chain of sentinels in the mountains near Anual, he reports. The tribesmen, the Lieutenant says, for the most part try to take Spanish artilreymen prisoners but the latter throw away their hats and badges to deceive the Moors.

Fighting Has Died Down.

MADRID, Aug. 20.—Fighting between Spanish troops and rebellious tribesmen in Morocco seems to have died down, the Minister of War announcing that news from Melilla yesterday was without importance.

HOUSE TO VOTE MONDAY ON AGRICULTURAL RELIEF BILL

Measure Would Make $1,000,000,000 Available to Finance Export of Farm Products.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—General debate in the House on the Senate agricultural relief bill was completed tonight with a vote on passage scheduled for Monday.

When the House adjourned a motion by Representative Wingo, Democrat, Arkansas, to recommit the measure was pending. He contended provisions should be added to authorize the War Finance Corporation to purchase $200,000,000 of farm loan bonds and to make loans directly to agricultural producers.

The bill would make $1,000,000,000 available to the corporation for facilitating the exportation of farm products. A number of changes have been made in it by the House, and if passed, the measure will go to conference.

Representative Luce, Republican, Massachusetts, assailed the bill tonight, charging that it would work out to the benefit of German manufacturers in "their new commercial warfare." He particularly opposed the section which, he said, would permit Government loans to foreigners engaged in exportation of American farm products.

Richard Blue, Killed in War, Carried to Grave by Veterans in Uniform.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Chinatown today paid reverend homage to one of its sons, Richard Blue, a private in the Seventy-seventh Division, who died for America overseas.

Business in this quaint section of New York was suspended for his funeral. Thousands of Orientals stood with bared heads as the casket, draped with the Stars and Stripes, was carried through the narrow, winding streets to the wailing strains of a Chinese funeral dirge, played by native buglers.

Twenty Chinese veterans in uniform acted as pallbearers. In the sorrowful procession marched hundreds of members of four organizations of which Blue was a member. One delegation represented the Jung Wah Tong, which, in other days, figured in the dread Tong wars.

Rival members of the Hip Sing Tong lined Mott and Pell streets and bowed their heads as the casket passed on through the Bowery, over Manhattan bridge and to a Brooklyn cemetery.

TROLLEY TRANSFER CAUSES SUIT

Man Suing United Railways Says Conductor Loosened Two Teeth.

Samuel Siegelman, 2719 Thomas street, filed suit in the Circuit Court yesterday for $5000 damages against the United Railways for an alleged attack on him by the conductor on a westbound University car, near Leffingwell avenue, at 5:30 p. m., June 11, when, he charged, the conductor beat and struck him and attempted to eject him, using abusive language. It was alleged that a blow of the conductor's fist loosened two of Siegelman's teeth and made their extraction necessary, and that the plaintiff's clothing was torn in the struggle. Siegelman's attorney, former Judge Chauncey J. Krueger, said that the argument was over a transfer.

Man Held as a Burglar.

Edward Gadell, 23 years old, of 1944 North Market street, a chauffeur for a box company was arrested by detectives yesterday when he offered a ring for pawn in a shop at 600 Walnut street. The ring had previously been reported stolen in a burglary Thursday at the home of Frank Brewer, 5338 Queens avenue in the daytime while the family was absent. Gadell when arrested claimed to have found the ring at Sixth and Spruce streets as he was driving past on his truck. A warrant charging Gadell with burglary in the second degree was issued.

LISTEN, MAN!

It pains us to refuse a perfectly good order handed in too late. That has happened in past years, just before a hard Winter, to an occasional customer who waited for Winter to arrive first. We cannot neglect the prudent customer on the approach of the first Winter storm to accommodate the belated ones.

It will be good business to take advantage of our August Bargain Sales this year, arranged to stimulate trade at the end of the dull period, which usually lasts until the middle of September. This period apparently ended about the first of August this year. We are busy as "nailers" now, but the low prices will be maintained until the last day of this month.

NO TEACHER SHORTAGE THIS FALL, SAYS BAKER

Increased Salaries and Large "Crop" From Colleges Will Supply Demand, He Indicates.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 20.—No shortage of teachers in Missouri this fall is expected by State Superintendent of Schools Sam A. Baker.

"Of course, here and there schools will be unable to get exactly the kind of teachers desired, and some of the districts may not have all the teachers needed on the opening day, due to last minute resignations and that sort of thing, but, generally speaking, there is no indication of an appreciable shortage of teachers," said Baker. "In fact, even last year when the cry of a teacher shortage was loudest there was no real shortage, the number of vacancies of which this office had been notified at the time being 36."

Increased salaries offered teachers in many districts of the State last year and this, and the large "crop" of new teachers turned out in the State by various agencies within the last year, have a tendency to ease whatever dearth of teachers did exist, Baker indicated.

"Many former teachers are returning to the vocation," he said, "and in addition the five State teachers' colleges and teacher training courses in high schools have turned out a large number. In fact, the number of new certificates issued this year is estimated to be close to 2000.

Sacrificed Aid Money.

Baker is very hopeful that the increased revenue afforded to the schools by the higher valuations placed upon property this year by the State Board of Equalization, will result in a vast improvement throughout the State in school conditions of every sort. He expects a large majority of the districts, even in the poorer counties, to have eight months of school or more.

His optimism in this respect is supported somewhat by the fact that 188 fewer rural school districts levied the maximum tax rate this year than did so last year. Baker believes this drop came about bacause districts can obtain revenue enough for their purposes on the higher valuations, with a lower rate.

The districts which levied less than the maximum rate thereby sacrificed their claim to a share of special state aid money distributed recently, which strengthens Baker's view that the districts in general must be in reasonably good condition financially to forego a share in the division.

Texas Is Banner County.

Last year a total of 955 districts levied the maximum of 65 cents on the $100 and shared in the division of $129,333 while this year 767 districts levied the limit and shared in the distribution of $144,462. There are 9581 districts in the State.

The banner county this year, as last is Texas County, 71 of whose districts levied the limit. This is an increase of seven over last year. Texas County is in the Ozark country, one tier removed from Arkansas and is sparsely populated.

Other Ozark counties also showed increases of like nature. In Douglas there were 49 this year, compared with 40 last year; Dent increased from 29 to 41, Shannon from 17 to 38, Stone from 19 to 30, Wright from 12 to 26 and Barry from 35 to 45.

Others in the Ozarks, Greene (Springfield) dropped from nineteen to one, Howell from 47 to 33 and Dallas from 39 to 24.

PLIGHT OF FARMERS DUE TO FREIGHT RATES, WITNESS SAYS

Transportation Costs Up 40 Per Cent, Other Necessities Down 44, Commission Told.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—While transportation costs have increased 40 per cent within the last year, prices of all other public necessities have decreased 44 per cent, and grain prices have dropped 67 per cent, C. B. Hutchings of Chicago, traffic manager of the Farm Bureau Federation, testified today before the Interstate Commerce Commission, at its investigation of freight rates on grain and hay.

The distress of the farmers of the West, which has been described by witnesses for the grainmen, was attributed by Hutchings to unreasonable rates for transporting grain as compared with charges on other commodities.

The average freight rate on wheat to various markets at present is from 166 to 197 per cent of the rates of 1913, the witness said. While corn prices at present are 91 per cent of the 1912 prices, he added, the freight rates are from 184 to 211 per cent of the 1912 rates. Oats are bringing 92 per cent of the 1912 price, he said, while freight rates are 169 to 186 per cent of the rates of that year. Barley prices are 93 per cent of 1912 prices and freight rates are from 173 to 186 per cent of the 1912 rates.

The witness presented statistics intended to show that the railroads realize a return of 11.4 per cent on grain traffic, based upon the actual railroad property used in the traffic, the highest return, he said, of all traffic except that of livestock.

DEFENDS FILLED MILK INDUSTRY

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Passage of the Voight bill, which would prohibit shipments of filled milk, is opposed in minority views filed today by Representative Aswell, Louisiana, a Democratic member of the House Agriculture Committee, which has favorably reported the measure.

Filled milk, composed of skimmed milk and vegetable oil, is not unwholesome or injurious to health, but a wholesome and nutritious food, Aswell contended, adding that "it would be monstrous for Congress to legislate out of existence any legitimate business heedless of the millions honestly invested."

MAN WHO ROBBED ST. LOUISANS PAROLED

Oliver Vienup Freed After Serving Third of Term on Recommendation of J. Kelly Pool.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 20.—Oliver Vineup, 25 years old, who had served three years and eight months of a sentence of 10 years received in St. Louis Jan. 22, 1918, for robbery in the first degree, today was paroled by Gov. Hyde upon recommendation of the Commisisoners of the Department of Penal Institutions. J. Kelly Pool, Parole Commissioner, said that Hyde had released Vienup reluctantly and that he (Pool) took responsibility for the parole.

Vineup, Frank Huseman, 21, and Charles Sommers, 18, were arrested Nov. 20, 1917, on a charge of having held up and robbed A. A. Street and Marjorie Hill (now Mrs. Street) of $85 in cash and other articles valued at $32, among them a wrist watch taken off the girl's wrist. While in the holdover, according to Policeman Harris, then of the Twelfth District, they admitted four other holdups in the 10 days previons, all committed in the vicinity of Hamilton and Bartmer avenues, using an automobile in which they pulled up to the curb, held up pedestrians and then escaped in the car.

Vienup was tried on one count and convicted. Huseman was given a 20-year sentence, which the presiding Judge reduced to 10 years in the State reformatory at Boonville. Sommers was sent to Boonville, to remain until he became of age. Both Huseman and Sommers are out. Although Circuit Judge Calhoun, the trial Judge in this case, and William I. Reeder, Assistant Circuit Attorney, who handled the case, refused to make recommendations when a parole first was sought in August, 1918, Reeder recommended it at this time and Calhoun said he would not oppose and "rather favored" such action. Nine members of the jury and Street and Mrs. Street also urged clemency.

When the first application was made prominent Democratic politicians, including Sam Lazarus, George H. Moore, Collector of Internal Revenue, and then Attorney-General McAllister wrote to members of the State Prison Board in Vineup's behalf, but without avail.

Pool said that no Republican politician and no one else outside of a St. Louis lawyer whose name he did not recall, had spoken to him about Vineup, his attitude in the matter being dictated by a feeling that Vineup, whose recent prison record has been good, and as the least guilty of the three, should be given a chance, as both of the others were at liberty and "making good." Vineup was paroled to F. H. Wiegel.

SWINDLER HELD IN CITY JAIL 8 MONTHS FOR U. S. OFFICIALS

Escaped Prisoner Finally Sent Back to Texas Penitentiary to Complete Ten-Year Sentence for Frauds.

GOT $33,000 FROM SAVANNAH BANKERS

Was Detained Here Because of Use of Mails in Effort to Defraud Four St. Louis Law Firms.

Edward J. Murray, 65 years old, check swindler and escaped convict of the Texas State Prison, has been relinquished by the St. Louis Federal authorities, by whom he has been held for more than eight months in the city jail, to be taken to Huntsville, Tex., and to begin serving the remaining nine years and several months of his original 10-year term in the prison there.

He was indicted last April, on the charge of using the mails to defraud, and his bond was fixed at $5000, which he was not able to furnish. Recently the Federal officials decided that, as the usual penalty for the crime of which he was accused was two years' imprisonment, it would be better to let him be taken back to Texas.

Murray, before leaving St. Louis, complained to reporters of the length of time he had been held here. He was arrested by the St. Louis police Dec. 14 last, but was turned over to the Federal authorities a few days later, after it appeared that he had used the mails in his attempt to defraud St. Louis law firms with bogus checks. When the Federal authorities took charge of Murray, they removed him from Police Headquarters to the jail.

Since that time there have been attempts to learn what Murray did with $15,000 Liberty Bonds which he obtained fraudulently in Savannah, Ga.

Hopes to Recover Bonds.

In the last few days, Aaron Rauzin, president of the Mercantile Bank and Trust Co. of Savannah, from which the $15,000 bonds were obtained, has been in consultation with Murray here. Rauzin left for Savannah yesterday, and said that he had obtained information from Murray by which he hoped to recover the bonds.

In his interviews with Rauzin, Murray admitted for the first time that he was the "John B. Tift" who perpetrated check frauds amounting to $33,000 in Savannah. He said he disposed of the $15,000 bonds in St. Louis, and he gave Rauzin certain data which, the banker believes, may aid him in tracing the bonds.

Murray was arrested here after his plan to defraud St. Louis lawyers and law firms was discovered, through his use of a check printing device belonging to a St. Louis concern. Those whom he intended to swindle were Leahy & Saunders, Boyle & Priest, Dawson & Garvin and Charles Claflin Allen. His plan was to place notes with the lawyers for collection, giving them addresses of the signers of the notes in other places.

Details of Fraud Scheme.

His plan was to send men to those cities to get the letters of the lawyers demanding payment of the notes, intending to reply to the letters himself, inclosing fraudulent checks for the amounts due, and then have the lawyers cash the checks, less their commissions.

Murray related the story of his swindle of Savannah bankers to a Post-Dispatch reporter.

"I had escaped from the Texas prison, where I was doing 10 years for check frauds in that State, and went to Georgia with the intention of living a straightforward life. I was all right until I reached Tifton, where persons bowed to me and addressed me as Captain," said Murray. "Then, one day, a man bowed and said, 'Good morning, Capt. Tift.'

Adopted Name of "Tift."

"I thereupon went to a preacher and got out of him something of the Tift family, and that they did their banking in Savannah, and it occurred to me to go to Savannah, register at a hotel as John B. Tift, keep my mouth shut, and assume an important air.

"My name had not been on that hotel register five hours until well-to-do men began to look me up. Then the word got spread around that I was a cousin of Henry Tift, and bankers began to call. One banker was so eager to impress me with my own importance that he took me around and introduced me to other bankers, with the result that I decided to capitalize the situation.

"I remarked that I would like to have about $100,000 of Liberty Bonds, which was true, and the bankers assured me they would be pleased to let me have them. So I prepared a worthless check on a St. Louis bank to establish a credit at one bank, and on the strength of this transaction got one check for $18,000 cashed at another bank and a second check for $15,000 cashed at still another bank, for which I took Liberty Bonds.

"Then I came to St. Louis and in December was arrested. I shall be glad to get back to Texas. I don't mind serving 10 years for a crime, but I certainly do object to being held so long a time for investigation. I dread to think what would have happened to me in St. Louis had I broken any laws."

Murray looks his years, but is sprightly and his conversation sparkles with good humor. He said he had been a farmer and said he turned to check swindling in the beginning of his criminal career as a means to pay off a mortgage on his farm.

FLIERS PLEASED WITH ARMY AND NAVY BOMB TEST REPORT

Credit Given Air Branch of the National Defense for Accomplishments Against Submarines and Battleships.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The flying personnel of both the army and the navy are well pleased with the report of the joint army and navy board on the recent bombing and gunfire tests against former German ships off the Virginia Capes. They see in it a real attempt to be fair to aviation and give the flyers full credit for their accomplishment in sinking every vessel attacked from the submarine U-117 to the modern battleship Ostfriesland.

The flying personnel is not represented on the joint army and navy board, of which Gen. Pershing is the senior member. Its entire membership is made up of army and naval officers trained in land and sea fighting.

When such a board concedes that it is possible for aircraft within their radius of action to sink any surface craft not adequately protected against them and that it is impossible so to construct a ship as to guard it against destruction from high explosives charges dropped alongside, flying men feel they have little ground for complaint in what is said about the present day limitations of aircraft.

In fact, all air experts agree fully that the radius of action of aircraft is limited.

Aviation Men's Attitude.

Aviation enthusiasts, not to mention the calmer heads in the air game, have never contended that the airplane was a substitute for naval craft far out at sea, unless floating bases in the form of modern carriers are provided.

The joint board strongly recommends that aircraft carriers be provided for the fleet and concedes that they are absolutely necessary for the protection of capital ships against hostile attacks from the air from shore bases. This is entirely in line with the contentions of flying men from the outset of the aircraft-battleship controversy.

One of the most significant conclusions is that, while under existing conditions aircraft, as regards operations with the fleet in areas beyond the radius of action from shore bases, are of "limited assistance to gunnery in control of fire, limited assistance in the service of information and security and have important strategical and tactical qualities in operations of coast defense."

May Be Decisive Factor.

If the board had stopped there flying men would be disappointed, but it continues:

"In adequate quantities they may be the decisive factor in such operations.

"The availability of those qualities at present depends largely on weather conditions. The radius of action of bombing planes limits their effectiveness against naval vessels to coast defense or base defense in which this type is a very powerful adjunct to the present system of coast defense."

The frank statement of the board that an adequate number of aircraft may become the decisive factor in operations with the fleet is regarded as of the utmost importance by air experts of both services.

How much more difficult it would have been to sink the German ships with crews on board, steam in their boilers and ther magazines filled with ammunition is a matter for speculation. Aviation experts are confident that all of the ships would have been sunk in any event, but concede that it would have been harder to sink them and that some flying personnel and equipment undoubtedly would have been lost.

REQUISITION ON CALIFORNIA ISSUED BY HYDE'S CLERK

J. B. Thompson Attaches Governor's Signature to Request for Man Wanted.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 20.—Requisition was issued yesterday upon the Governor of California for the return to Christian County, Mo., of George C. Smith, who in February, 1919, was fined $300 for selling a pint of whisky for $1, in violation of the local option law.

Gov. Hyde is absent from the city, the requisition being issued by J. B. Thompson, executive clerk to Hyde, who attached Hyde's signature as Governor. Smith is said to be at Vasalia, Cal.

Thompson said that he had been instructed by Hyde to do this in cases which appeared unlikely to provoke controversy.

This same set of circumstances, it will be remembered, enabled attorneys to violate extradition warrants for Joseph Ople, Lee Clyne and Earl Miller, charged with the murder of Clarence Turner at Granite City, Ill., May 20, 1920, issued by Thomas J. Cole, who was secretary to Gov. Gardner.

Cole testified before Federal Judge Dyer at St. Louis during habeas corpus proceedings, for the release of the three, that he had signed the warrants for Gardner. Dyer then held the warrants to be defective and released the trio.

Opera Singer Dies.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 20.—Edward Quinn, 34 years old, Davenport, Ia., an opera singer, died in a local hospital today of pneumonia. Quinn became ill in Columbus, O., last week. He was for three years a baritone singer with the Chicago Grand Opera Co., leaving it at the outbreak of the war to join the army.

Maj. W. C. Stevens Dies at 74.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 20.—Maj. William C. Stevens, 74 years old, former Auditor-General of Michigan, died at his home here today. He was a veteran of the Civil War. His widow and four children survive.

BOY CHESS MARVEL WILL BE HERE THURSDAY AND FRIDAY

Nine-Year-Old Polish Marvel to Play Exhibition Games at Nugents.

Samuel Rzeschewski, the 9-year-old Polish boy who is rated as one of the five foremost chess players living, will play two matches here Thursday and Friday, playing 12 opponents at once on each occasion at Nugents' store. Since he came to this country about a year ago, Samuel has played about 400 matches, of which he has lost about five, but this is his first appearance in St. Louis.

While chess experts do not believe he is yet able to meet Jose Capablanca, the champion of the world, Capablanca himself says the boy is a better player than Capablanca was at his age, and if his development continued, the experts say he will be the world's greatest player. Soon after his arrival in this country he played 20 West Point army officers at once, and did not lose a game.

The matches here will be refereeed by Ben R. Foster and Dr. J. L. Cassilly. About 30 local chess players have been invited to appear, and out of these, the referees will select the 24 to oppose the boy. The games will start at 1:30 p. m. each day, and if they are not concluded by 5 p. m., will be adjudicated by the referees. Admittance will be free, and arrangements have been made for about 500 to watch the games.

50 NEGROES TO PRODUCE PLAY

About 50 negroes, men and women, will appear in a production of "Broken Bars," described as a modern morality play along the lines of "Experience," at the Odeon, Oct. 7, under the auspices of the Urban League, a negro social service organization affiliated with the Provident Association. The proceeds are to be for the benefit of the 7000 unemployed negroes of St. Louis. George W. Buckner, executive secretary of the Urban League, said that it is hoped $1000 will be realized.

Mrs. N. A. McMillan, wife of the chairman of the board of the St. Louis Union Trust Co., who is a director of the Urban League, is sponsor for the play. Certain boxes and seats will be reserved for white persons.

Prizes will be awarded to holders of certain seats and young negro women will serve refreshments and sell souvenir programs. The sale of seats will begin Sept. 1.

HANGAR TO BE BUILT AT BELLEVILLE FOR ZR-2

Structure to House Mammoth Dirigible Made in England for U. S. Will Cost $2,000,000

Scott Field, Belleville, is to be a port of call for the ZR-2, the mammoth dirigible balloon built in England for the United States Navy, which it is planned to bring across the Atlantic soon.

The ZR-2 will not fly West, however, until the hangar at Scott Field, to cost more than $2,000,000, has been built. The plans for the hangar are now on display in the office of the Belleville Board of Trade. It is pratcically a replica of the hangar recently completed at Lakehurst, N. J., which is to be the home of the ZR-2.

Views of the Lakehurst hangar, and of the ZR-2, appear in the Rotogravure Section of today's Post-Dispatch.

The Scott Field hangar is to be 810 feet long, 150 feet high and 150 feet wide. The Lakehurst hanger is 1000 feet long, 318 feet wide and 200 feet high.

Maj. Hickam, of the Information Section of the Air Service, said to the Post-Dispatch correspondent in Washington that the westward flights of the ZR-2 would be undertaken after the hangar near Belleville has been made ready to receive it, which probably will not be until some time late in 1922 or early in 1923.

The Scott Field structure will be built on the south side of the aviarecent visit to the field by Gen. Mention camp, the spot designated on a oher of the U. S. Air Service. The four doors will weigh 1000 pounds each, and will be constructed of steel and concrete. They, as well as the windows of the hangar, will be opened and closed by electric motors. Amber-colored glass will be used, to exclude light rays that are destructive to balloon fabrics. Huge electric cranes will be installed in the roof for repair work on the dirigible bag. There will be huge searchlights on the four corners of the hangar, to facilitate landings. It is probable that a plant for the manuufacture of helium and noninflammable gas will be built near the field. Some surveys of abandoned mines have been made, for the storing of the gas made.

It is expected that work on the hangar will commence this year. The plans and specifications will be submitted to contractors for bids tomorrow.

It will require 14 months to complete the structure.

PILOT'S BRIDE WHO AWAITS THE ZR-2

MRS. SYLVESTER F. SHIELDS.

ST. LOUISAN TO PILOT THE ZR-2 ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

Flight Anxiously Awaited by Parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Shields, and His English Bride.

When the big dirigible, ZR-2, built in England for the United States Government, starts on her flight to this country, probably on Aug. 25, one of her pilots will be Chief Pilot Sylvester F. Shields, 30 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard H. Shields, 4449A Farlin avenue. They will be joined in their anxious watching for its safe landing on this side by the pilot's bride, to whom he was married while training in England and who was sent here for a visit to his parents when preparations began for the flight.

Shields left home when he was 16 years old to join the navy, from which he graduated into the air service. He has been for 30 months with representatives of the American navy training with the royal air forces of England.

His bride was Miss Lily Cromack of Churchfield Rothwell, near Leeds, England. They met at a week-end party in July, 1920, and were married Dec. 1, 1920. She is 19 years old.

In a letter Pilot Shields estimtes that the flight will occupy 72 hours. The landing will be made at Lakehurst, N. J.

The official personnel of the ZR 2 in its flight across the ocean will include Lieutenant-Commander Valentine C. Bieg, a grandson of Valentine C. Bieg, who formerly conducted an art needle shop in St. Louis.

SAILING OF Z R-2 MAY BE POSTPONED

Wheather Has Prevented Test Flight of Great Airship Scheduled to Leave England Aug. 25.

By the Associated Press.

HOWDEN, England, Aug. 20.—The carefully laid plans of the American aviators for the departure of the new giant airship ZR-2 from England on her transatlantic flight on Aug. 25, may have to be altered at a later date. This became apparent today when Brigadier-General E. M. Maitland, Great Britain's Air-marshal, told the Associated Press he had no intention of being influenced "by others" in his selection of the day for the start of the final proving of the airship by her British builders before it becomes American property.

As several American officers and a number of enlisted men who are destined to pilot the airship to the United States will accompany the British navigators on this long awaited decisive test flight, they have once or twice a day for the last fortnight been obliged to pack their belongings and make all other preparations for a move to Pullham, whence the start for America will be made, only to be disappointed by cancellations of the trip because the weather was considered unfit.

The inconvenience and annoyance of this oft-repeated performance have tried the patience of both the American and the British personnel at the airdrome here to the point of desperation and it has given rise to the wildest rumors regarding the fitness and airworthiness of the ship.

"Since we have been here American crews have taken the R-32, sister ship of the ZR-2, out for practice flights all alone without a Britisher aboard, scores of times, and many of those times in weather much rougher than that of any of these days we have been waiting for our ship to come out," said an American officer today.

Won't Take Chances.

This was quoted to Gen. Maitland, whose reply was:

"That is entirely true, but you must remember that R-32 is a thoroughly tried ship, while ZR-2 is not."

"We propose to take none of the chances which would attend the sending of an untried ship out on a transatlantic trip," continued Gen. Maitland. "We have been waiting for proper weather and will continue to wait. It has so happened the last few days when the weather was right here, that the reports from Pulham were unfavorable. Everything must be right at both ends before we move. We are going to have that kind of weather even if it necessitates the postponing of the plan for the start across the ocean the 25th.

"When the ship is handed over it can be relied upon as having had a crucial testing. It is axiomatic that it is better to send a tried ship into rough weather than an untried ship into calm skies, so the danger will not necessarily be increased if it becomes necessary for the start for American to take place in September, although the wind over the Western Atlantic at that season of the year is usually not what might be wished.

"I know," added Gen. Maitland, "that all sorts of stories and rumors are being spread as to why we are refusing to take chances, but I wish you to say it is the weather, and the weather alone, which is delaying matters."

Babe Ruth Hits Triple and Double And Beats Browns

Home Run King Accounts for Four Runs and Hoyt Is Returned Victor Over Fohlmen, 5 to 2.

YANKEES POUND DAVIS FOR THIRTEEN SAFETIES

New York Sluggers to Oppose St. Louisans in Double Header Today—Frank Baker Injured.

George Herman "Babe" Ruth, champion home run hitter of the major leagues, confined all his "over the fence" belting to practice yesterday, but the Bambino accomplished enough with his big club in the tilt with the Browns to enable the Yankees to win the first game of the series, 5 to 2. About 13,000 persons were on hand.

All the Bambino did during the afternoon's assault against "Dixie" Davis was to pole a triple and double, score two runs and drive in two others. That alone accounted for four tallies, more than enough to down Fohl's aggregation.

While the Babe as usual was the big attraction various other members of the tribe of Huggins took kindly to the offerings of Davis. This is clearly evinced by the box score, which shows that in seven rounds he was belted for 13 safeties, including four doubles and three triples. Bill Burwell hurled the last two rounds for Fohl and got by without being scored upon, although he yielded one safety and walked two batters.

What the Babe Accomplished.

Briefly the offensive of the Bambino against the Browns' flingers can be summed up as follows:

First inning: Miller on third. Swung and missed high fast ball; curve, called strike; ball, high outside; ball, curve, inside; rolled to McManus.

Third inning: Missed slow curve; ball, inside; foul, back of plate; ball, high; tapped to Davis.

Fifth inning: Miller on first. tripled against center field fence on first ball pitched.

Seventh inning: Curve ball, called strike and "Babe" kicked at Umpire Nallin's decision. Doubled to center.

Ninth inning: Against Burwell. Ball, high, outside; ball, high; ball, high; called strike. Walked.

Yesterday was not Davis' day and this was proven when Elmer Miller, a recent acquisition from St. Paul, banged the first pitched ball between Williams and Jacobson for a triple. Peck fouled to Ellerbe, and that worthy athlete for some unknown reason started tossing the ball around the field, despite the fact that a runner was camped on third. Marty McManus was so dumfounded that he barely got his hands up in time to catch the sphere. That brought up Babe. He rolled to McManus, scoring Miller. Baker doubled and Meusel walked, but on Pipp's single, Baker was caught at the plate.

When Squeeze Play Fails.

Just what a poor play the squeeze is when it fails to go through was shown in the Browns' second. Williams and Jacobson singled to start the round and Severeid sacrificed. Men on second and third with one out. The squeeze play was called for, but Hoyt pitched so far out that Gerber did not even offer at the ball, and Williams was an easy out. Then Gerber singled. Three hits, a sacrifice and no runs.

The Yankees added to their margin in the fourth when Meusel singled and hiked to second on Pipp's martry death. Ward flied out, but the Browns decided to take a chance on Schang instead of Pitcher Hoyt, who came next. Schang doubled the runs across. Hoyt rolled out.

Two more for the aliens in the fifth. Miller singled and Peck flied out. Ruth hit the center field fence on a line for a triple, scoring Miller. Ruth's drive was a terrific swat, landing close to the flag pole. McNally, who replaced Baker, also tripled and Ruth tallied. Here the Yanks tried the squeeze and when Meusel missed the pitch, McNally was run down. Then Meusel fanned.

Severeid Drives in Run.

The Browns got a run off Waite Hoyt in the sixth. One out, Williams walked. Jacobson popped to McNally, but Severeid doubled against the right field wall, Williams scoring.

New York got this run back after two were out in the seventh, when Ruth doubled and McNally's third straight hit, a single to left, scored the Bambino.

In the eighth, Fohl's charges put over their final run. Sisler opened with a single and Williams walked. Jacobson, who has batted safely in the last 17 games, singled to center, Sisler scoring. Severeid, Gerber and McManus all went out on easy hoists.

In the ninth, with one out, Tobin beat out a bunt and Ellerbe fanned. Sisler walked, bringing up Williams. Kenneth, with a walk in sight, twice failed to get his bat out of the way and the second time, the ball went to Peck on a fly, ending the contest.

Doubleheader Today.

The clubs will fight it out in a doubleheader this afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock. Gates will be thrown open at 12:30 o'clock. Urban Shocker will pitch one of the games for the Browns. No telling who will be in there in the other. Shawkey and Mays are due for New York.

Frank Baker Is Injured.

More tough luck for the Yankees. In the first, Frank Baker sprang a "charlie horse" rounding third base and wil be out for some time. Meantime Ward will play at the hot corner, with Mike McNally, the former Red Sock, at second.

BROWNS BUY PIERCE FROM MITCHELL CLUB

By the Associated Press.

MITCHELL, S. D., Aug. 20.—Carl Pierce, third baseman, has been sold to the St. Louis American League team, Manager Scharnweber of the Mitchell club of the Dakota League announced today. He will report to the Browns next spring.

RAY WILL TRY FOR NEW MILE RECORD AUG. 31

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Joie Ray of the Illinois Athletic Club and A. J. Bartky of the University of Chicago will both make an attempt on the worlds' running records at four different distances, Bartky for the 500-meter and 660-yard records and Ray for the 1500-meter and one mile run.

These record attempts will be made in connection with the big automobile races over the two-mile clay track at Dodge City, Kan., Aug. 31.

Ray expects to put the mile record down to 4m. 11s. in the handicap race. He will be the only scratch man. Batky says he will break both his distances in one trial.

Rex Team Is Winner.

The Rex team of the Palace Scratch Bowling League won its first prize in the Palace five-man sweepstakes, with a total of 2788, including games of 955, 914 and 919. E. B. McElheny led his team with a total of 589. The Palace Stars also of this league, finished second with 2783. Syl Heibert, one of the classiest southpaw bowlers in the city, totaled 627, and was high man of the evening. Ed Schaefer was second with 567. The Man-o'-War team finished third with a 2761 total. Capt. O. Friendly led his team with a total of 619, while Carl Graff had 567. The Jack Heibert's of the Business Men's League finished fourth with 2741. Jule Schmitt paced thi steam with 596.

White Sox Rookie Is Defeated, 1-0

Russell Forces Over Winning Run in 13th—Erickson Gives Three Hits.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Olaf Erickson pitched one of the greatest games of his major league career today, holding Chicago to three scattered hits for 13 innings, Washington winning, 1 to 0. The visitors also faced some superb pitching by "Lefty" Russell, a recruit from the Sioux City (Ia.) club of the Western League, who reported to Manager Gleason yesterday. Russell lost control in the thirteenth inning and walked three men after Smith had scratched a double down the first base line and forced in the only run of the game.

Donie Bush, formerly of the Detroit club, reported to Manager Griffith of the Washington club today.

38-Year Age Limit Is Unfair to Pugilists, Many Experts Assert

In boxing circles the action of the New York Athletic Commission in setting 38 years as the dead line for boxers has been discussed pro and con. The general impression among experts is that inasmuch as the commission has rigid rules regarding physical examination there is no necessity of setting an age limit, particularly one so low as 38.

The fact that every boxer must pass a thorough physical examination before he is given a license makes the setting of an age limit redundant and unnecessary. It is considered unjust to deprive a boxer from participating in boxing contests simply because he has reached the 38 year mark.

Sporting history is replete with incidents where men past 38 have showed marked superiority to rivals 10 years and more younger.

Conservation of Energy First Training Essential, Says Edgren

Carpentier and Charlie Paddock Cited as Men Who Know How to Prepare for Great Physical Test — Overtraining Worse Than Undertraining, as It Saps Speed and Vitality.

By Robert Edgren.

(Copyright, 1921.)

MODERN athletic training methods have advanced with the spread of organized school athletics and with the trips of the American teams to the Olympic games. Scientific training under experienced coaches has done away with the overtraining of the old days, when scores of promising youngsters were ruined by two much work.

No growing boy should be allowed to run long races or undergo any continued athletic strain that will weaken him afterward. Moderation in everything gives the best results. Moderate training, moderate competition, moderate eating and plenty of sleep are the necessary things. No excess in anything.

Conserve energy, don't waste it.

Some of the old-time athletic champions, who trained, ate and drank immoderately, made great records, but I have no doubt they would have done much better if they had been trained in the modern way. They were phenomenal men, and succeeded in spite of their mistakes.

One of the most careful athletes I've ever known is Charlie Paddock, who has broken many world's sprinting records this year, and who has eclipsed all sprinting performances by running the 100-yard race in world record time, 9 3-5 seconds, five times in five successive competitions. He is moderate in training and everything else, and, as a result, he has conserved a store of energy that, added to his natural ability, makes him the greatest sprinting champion that ever lived.

How Paddock Trains.

"I eat any good food," says Paddock, "just enough of it. I try to train so that I'm never tired when I stop. I get enough work, but never take a stride more than I think I need. Dean Cromwell, our coach, who taught me how to run, won't let me go off the mark for one more start when he thinks I've done enough for the day. If I feel tired of competition I cut it out until I'm eager to run again.

Paddock's apparent nervousness before a race is only a sign of his bottled-up energy. Ability to store energy for the contest is the thing that makes any great athlete.

Jack Dempsey is a good example of the modern champion. He is naturally nervous, with the kind of nervousness that indicates tremendous vitality. In the first round of a fight his burst of energy is fairly an explosion. In the fight with Willard he let go with every ounce of strength and energy he had, from the moment he struck the first blow.

In the Carpentier fight he held this nerve force in check until he felt Carpentier weakening under body punishment, and then let it loose for a quick knockout.

If he had gone after Carpentier the way he rushed Willard the Frenchman might have used his speed and skill to keep away, which would have drawn the fight out longer.

Keep Fit to Fight Always.

Jack never smokes, never drinks, lives moderately. He exercises regularly, and says he never will allow himself to get out of condition as long as he continues fighting. His theory is the modern one, that to keep fit all the time and pile up energy for a contest by rational training methods is better than to throw away vitality in periods of relaxation alternated with periods of violent work.

American fighters and athletes may have learned something new about training from Carpentier.

After the Dempsey match was made Carpentier went to France and began training, gradually rounding into the best condition possible. When he returned to this country he could have been ready for the ring in a week. During a month at Manhasset he did very little training and a great deal of resting for the purpose of storing vitality for the fight. July 2 found him in perfect condition.

The little work he did in the training camp was just to study a fighting method to oppose Dempsey's well-known attack. He stayed at the same weight, 172 pounds stripped, from his first day at Manhasset until he entered the ring at Jersey City.

Needed Only to Store Up Energy.

As Gus Wilson and Francois Descamps explained it to me, Georges worked on a theory that being in condition he needed only to store up energy.

"Georges trains to conserve all his energy for the fight," said Wilson. "He wastes nothing in hard fighting or hard hitting here at Manhasset. He loses no weight. He bottles up his energy. He will save his strength for Dempsey, and you will see that when he meets Dempsey he will have everything."

Wilson was right. Carpentier's burst of energy in the four rounds fought, until he was overcome by the champion's superior strength, was amazing. He did everything that any 172-pound man in the world could possibly do against the greatest heavyweight champion within our recollection.

Old-timers used to train off gobs of superfluous weight; Carpentier entered the ring weighing exactly what he weighed a month before.

Conservation Supreme.

Some of the old-time athletes had this theory of conserving energy for a contest. Tom Carroll, who at 67 still throws the hammer and the big weights near his own professional world record mark, used to train hard, and then spend the last week before a big competition lying around in the sun.

Gideon Perry, world's professional shot-putting record holder, wouldn't even walk from his dressing room to the ring when he intended to break a record. He had his friends carry him out.

Jess Willard was much criticised for not training harder for the Dempsey fight at Toledo. If Willard had won, his system would have been approved. He was careful not to overtrain, but even at that he did twice the work Carpentier did at Manhasset. He wasn't in Carpentier's condition, of course.

Four years of easy living had softened him. Nothing short of a year in a lumber camp would have made him entirely fit. He was heavy, and his weight had broken down his feet so that he couldn't run much on the road. The training he did was about right, considering his condition.

Gibbons Knows How to Train.

Tom Gibbons, who is to be Carpentier's next opponent, has the modern idea of conserving energy for an important match. He refuses to take on any bouts in the hot months and spends his time at a Minnesota lake fishing. Mike Gibbons has stayed in the ring in very fair shape for many years by following the same system.

An athlete should remember just a few important things about training. First, you can overtax your system and throw away energy as much by overeating as by overtraining. Any athlete knows that a man can jump better, run better, fight better, play a better game of golf or billiards, play better football or baseball, after not eating at all for several hours than within two or three hours of any kind of a meal.

Second, overtraining is worse than undertraining. Overtraining saps speed, strength and vitality. Undertraining only cuts down endurance. I've seen remarkable performances by athletes who didn't train at all, but no overtrained man can possibly do well. He has no reserve to draw on.

In every kind of a contest it's the reserve of power, the thing you can draw on for a final spurt when you're behind, that wins.

N. L. Leaders Score Three in 13th Round to Defeat Boston Braves, 6 to 4.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—Pittsburg defeated Boston 6 to 4 in 13 innings today. Boeckel's home run in the eighth tied the score. In the thirteenth Grimm and Schmidt singled, Cooper and Maranville sacrificed and Bigbee made a homer, netting three runs. Boston made one in its half of the thirteenth on three singles, but with two out and men on bases, Grimm caught Powel's fly in short right. Score:

Cardinals Maul McGraw's Hurlers For 10-1 Victory

Three Homers, One by Schultz With Bases Filled, Make It Easy for Doak.

ART NEHF CHASED EARLY

Fournier Gets His 16th Circuit Drive of Year and Stock Hits His First of the Season.

From a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Battering three New York pitchers with equal abandon, the Cardinals won a smashing victory over the Giants today in the first game of the farewell series between the cohorts of Rickey and McGraw at the Polo Grounds this season. Nehf started for New York and was followed by Ryan, who, removed for a pinch hitter who failed to hit, was succeeded by Sheriff Sallee. Three homers, by Joe Schultz, Fournier and Stock, sewed up the contest for the Cardinals, the final count being 10—1.

The Giants had scored one in the first and were leading by that margin when the third came. With two out, Mann doubled and tallied ahead of Fournier on the Frenchman's homer to left. This sufficed until the fifth, when, with the bases filled, Schultz parked one about where Fournier's hit had landed and four runs came over. Stock's safe blow to right added two more in the sixth and, though this may not be believed, Bill Doak doubled in the seventh and counted a run.

Stock's First 1921 Homer.

In the eighth Stock hit to right center for a homer inside the grounds. It was his first round trip wallop of the season.

When Brown batted for Sallee in the Giants eighth, it was up to McGraw to send in his fourth pitcher. This happened to be Douglas, but his appearance came too late to make any difference.

The Giants started in the lead by pushing over a run in the very first on a pass to Burns, Frisch's single and an infield out which Hornsby juggled momentarily. Not until the third did the Cardinals reach Nehf effectually, and they waited until two were out. Then Mann cut loose with a double and Fournier punched into the left field seats for his sixteenth circuit drive of the year, Mann riding home ahead. It was unusual to see a left-handed hitter hit a homer off a left-handed pitcher into left field.

Schultz There in the Pinch.

The fifth saw a cataclysm from a New York standpoint. It was a case of perfectly good strategy going wrong. It happened thus: Two were out when Fournier hit to center for a base. Stock followed with a double to left center which sent the French slugger to third. With Hornsby up, Nehf decided, after looking at the bench, that policy demanded the passing of the champion hitter. This jammed the bases and brought Joe Schultz up. Always dangerous in a pinch, Schultz let one bad one go by and then slammed the next into the handy left field stand, scoring four runs and putting the Cardinals ahead, 6 to 1.

Not content with this lead, the Rickeymen got busy in the sixth and hits by Clemons and Stock, with passes to Mann and Fournier, netted two tallies, Stock's single being the decisive blow. The Giants threatened in the fifth when Rawlings and Earl Smith began the frame with singles, but Pinch-Hitter Cunningham rolled into a double play and the danger was averted.

Doak worked steadily and had the New York batters on the hip all the way through. He had great support. As a matter of fact, both Stock and Frisch gave a startling display of third-base work all through the game.

Bill Bailey is the logical choice to face the Giants in the second clash of the series tomorrow. Toney may work for New York.

National Tennis Title Again Won By Mrs. Mallory

Norse Woman Defeats Mary Browne, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, in Capturing Her Fifth Championship in Seven Years.

OUTS CAUSE DEFEAT OF CALIFORNIA STAR

Champion Displays Remarkable Endurance, Skill and Speed of Foot in Retaining Her Crown.

By the Associated Press.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 20.—For the fifth time in a period of seven years Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, a native of Norway, now resident of New York City, won the national woman's singles tennis championship today when she defeated Miss Mary K. Browne of Santa Monica, Cal., two sets out of three by scores of 4—6, 6—4, 6—2. The feat established a new record in the history of the American woman's national tennis play.

As a young woman, Mrs. Mallory, then Molla Bjurstedt, won her first United States honors in 1915, following the voluntary retirement of Miss Browne, who had won the title the three preceding years and who staged such a valiant comeback today.

Mrs. Mallory in defeating Miss Browne today, played one of the best matches of her career. In the former title holder, who is now 38 years old, Mrs. Mallory faced an opponent too dangerous to be trifled with at any stage of the game. Miss Browne as a court strategist, tactician and master of a large repertoire of strokes, is unequaled. Yet this afternoon the Norse woman, after losing the first set, four games to six, responded to the cheering and by unequaled display of almost mannish driving and steadiness, carried on to victory in the next two sets.

Praise From the Victor.

Mrs. Mallory stated after the match that it was the hardest she had ever played and that the change of pace and variation in the lengths of her opponent's returns was a puzzling problem which she was never certain of solving until the winning point had been scored. It was this deftness with brain and racquet that allowed the Californian to carry her more burly and stronger opponent through three sets of play which were more keenly contested than even point score and stroke analysis would indicate.

Mrs. Mallory clearly demonstrated that so far as speed of foot and endurance is concerned she is in a class by herself. Time and again she raced far out of the court or beyond the sidelines and with a smashing drive sent the ball whirling back into play when a placement seemed assured for Miss Browne.

The latter tried repeatedly to pass the Norwegian on her back hand, supposedly her weaker point and while some times successful the margin was not sufficient to change the result. The Californian was more successful when she succeeded in coaxing Mrs. Mallory to the net with soft returns but the latter, realizing that fore court play is not her forte, so maneuvered her returns that she was seldom actually forced close to the corded barrier.

Outs Beat Miss Browne.

Reduced to the last analysis it would appear that Mrs. Mallory's victory was due to her opponent's insistent lifting of the ball over the base line. Miss Browne made almost twice as many outs as the victor and in no other department of the play was there such a wide variation. There were 12 points difference at the end of three sets in the point score, but nine in earned points and three in errors. Each made two double faults and while Mrs. Mallory netted the ball 43 times to Miss Browne's 24, the 50 outs of the Santa Monica expert as compared with the New Yorker's 28 tells the story.

In some respects the match did not rise to the sensational heights that were expected. Both were inclined to play a more or less cautious game and while Mrs. Mallory drove strong and severely both back and forehand wherever the opportunity offered, there was none of the thrilling volleys which featured the first set between Mrs. Bundy and Mrs. Mallory yesterday.

Stamina Also a Factor.

Miss Browne elected whenever possible to play just inside the service line and from a low crouching position scaled the ball back frequently to inaccessible points, but this steady lifting stroke far more frequently got the ball out of court. As the play progressed the physical strain also began to tell and while Mrs. Mallory appeared to be almost as strong as when she started, Miss Browne seemed to grow less confident both in her stroking and foot work.

The Californian, however, gained some satisfaction and honor for the months of training which she has spent in prepartion for the return to the courts, for although her valiant effort to regain the singles crown was a failure, she was successful with Mrs. Louise Williams of Los Angeles, in lifting the doubles championship by scores of 6—3, 6—2. This pair now enjoys the distinction of having held the doubles title three times. They were victorious in the event in 1913 and 1914.

Miss Browne Wins Doubles.

Mrs. L. Gouverneur Morris and Miss Helen Gilleaudeau, while rated highly in the East as a doubles team, were helpless before the slashing attack of the Californians. The victors played easily and worked perfectly as a team. They continually broke through their opponents' service and scored points at will. The games they lost in both sets were dropped on outs, for the most part. They won a majority of the rallies by their powerful and accurate driving. At the net they were far superior to the New York players.

Mrs. Mallory only has been beaten once for the American woman's championship since she first gained the title in 1915. In 1919 Mrs. George Wightman won the championship. Mrs. Mallory, who was in poor physical condition, was eliminated half way through the tournament by the then Marion Zinderstein. In 1917 there were no championship matches, but Mrs. Mallory gained the honors in the national patriotic tournament.

So far as is known this record has never been equaled by a woman tennis player except in the case of Miss L. Dodd, who won the English championship in 1887-88, and again in 1891-92-93.

Champion Tilden Discusses Defensive Tennis Policy

Steadiness, Not Speed or Brilliancy, Must Be Your Weapons When Forced to Give Up an Attacking Style of Play, He Declares.

By William T. Tilden.
World's Tennis Champion.
(Copyright, 1921.)

IT seems peculiar to write on defensive shots when one of the most important of the rules of all tennis play is never to be on the defensive, but always to attack. Still, there are times when the other man has such a powerful atack that ours crumbles, or else he is so wild in his attack that our best plan is to let him beat himself. Then we must play defensively and trust to his errors to beat him.

Where you count on the other man's errors beating him you must, as far as possible, eliminate all errors from your own game, thus giving him more chances to miss and causing him to play for every point.

This defensive policy must depend upon steadiness, not speed or brilliancy.

The greatest examples of purely defensive play around this part of the country are Stanley Pearson, Norman Swayne and Stanley Rogers. Equally as good defensively, yet with a much more dangerous attack, and this is the reason they are so much better, are Wallace Johnson, Joe Armstrong and William J. Clothier. These latter three men can play defensively with a judgment not possible to the first three because they have the ability to start a forceful attack at any moment and can choose their time to do it, while Pearson, Swayne and Rogers have not the attack to use. Thus, the defensive play of Johnson, Armstrong and Clothier is far more dangerous, and it is this type of defense we wish to study and, if possible, copy.

Defensive Play.

Defensive play should never be adopted as the foundation of your tennis game. It will never win you a big title and very seldom beat a good man; in fact, never, unless he is off his game. It is absolutely essential, however, to fill in a brilliant attack and make your game one of completely rounded excellence.

The very lack of this defensive style of play beat Williams in 1914 against Brookes and Wilding, again this season against William Johnston in the national. It was the cause of McLoughlin's defeat by Behr and Johnston, and it is a matter of question whether it was not the cause of Wallace Johnson's defeat by Armstrong in the Pennsylvania State title a year later, for Johnson's defense crumbled and he literally beat himself.

There are various forms of defensive shots: first, the lob; second, the chop stroke; third, occasionally the drive. The defensive game is always back court. Under no circumstances try to play a defensive net game.

The lob is really a high-tossed ball hit with very little pace, and should be placed to bounce anywhere from the base-line to eight feet inside. It should be about 16 and 20 feet in the air at the top of its rise. When you lob, lob high. A short lob is an utterly useless shot.

The lob may either be chopped or hit flat. When lobbing from a fast return use the chop, since it tends to remove the speed from the shot and puts it up in the air easily and deep. Use a decided under-cut on this shot, not the "draw chop," which is effective from the base-line for a long side-line shot. Use the flat lob shot when the return is soft and deep. It needs the full racquet face to get the ball into the back of the opponent's court without having it carry out. The chop lob tends to drop short, so lob higher when using this form than you do when using the flat shot.

The question of when to lob can easily be summed up as follows:

First—When you are out of position and need time to get back, while your opponent has position at the net. You have more time during the flight of the ball on a lob than any other shot in tennis and, therefore, when you are hurried and need time to get back to position lob and lob high.

Second—Lob when your opponent has had a hard run after a short shot to the net and is drawn out of position. Use the flat, low lob, since the chop lob would give him time to recover.

Third—Lob any shot that comes too fast to drive when your opponent has net position and you have back court.

Lob in Doubles.

In doubles the cleverest lob is the deep one between the two men, for if one man goes back and takes it on the fall their teamwork is momentarily broken up, while if he allows it to drop the opposing team can gain the net and kill the return at his partner's feet. Then, too, there is the chance of the two men getting mixed and either both trying for it or both letting it go. The lob is the "goat-getter" in doubles. If you want to break up a team that you cannot beat by a straight attack just pick out one man, and every time you get the ball lob high and deep to him. Unless he is remarkable overhead he will sooner or later get nervous and start to miss. An excellent example of such an instance was Dwight Meigs. He is very good overhead, but the consistent lobbing of the opposing team, who used a motto of "in the pinch lob to Meigs," simply "got his goat," and "he blew," missing shot after shot toward the end of the match. It was not that he was poor, but rather the good lobbing of the opposing team that did it.

The footwork of the lob is exactly the same as for all other shots, for the forehand the left foot in front and right back, while for the backhand lob it is exactly reversed.

Do not aim to put a lob clear over a man's racquet and have it bounce in court. If you do you will put it out. Try to put your lob where he will have to jump or run back and reach for it. In other words, do not try to make an earned point on a lob, make your opponent miss his shot. It is very seldom one should try to make a clean point with a lob except in the case where your opponent has been drawn out of position close to the net, and then you can lob for the front.

My next article will be on 'The Chop Stroke and Defensive Drive."

Jap Stars Make Clean Sweep in Davis Cup Series

Kumagae and Shimidzu Defeat Fyzee and Sleem of India in Semifinal Singles.

By the Associated Press.

LAKE FOREST, Ill., Aug. 20.—Japan swept all five tennis matches of the Davis Cup semifinal series with India on the turf courts of the Onwentsal Club here today. Ichiya Kumagae defeated Dr. A. H. Fyzee of India, in the first of the day's program of the singles contests by 3—6, 6—3, 6—3, 9—7. In the second match, Shimidzu defeated Sleem of India, 7—5, 2—6, 6—0, 6—2. The matches were witnessed by a fashionable gallery of 3000, which gradually melted away as a cold wind off Lake Michigan swept up in the late afternoon. H. Shimidzu and Sleem finished to stands that were almost deserted.

From Lake Forest the winning Japanese will move at once to Newport, R. I., where they are scheduled to battle Australia in the final round of the Davis Cup series next Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Kunagae's victory was won, after a rousing court battle which featured Fyzee in the best tennis display which was given by the Indian team in the three-day series. From the outset, both players were bothered by the gusty wind which veered their shots, but Kumagae found in Fyzee an opponent who dwarfed the unfriendliness of the elements.

O'ROURKE, HENRYETTA MANAGER, IS INJURED WHEN HIT BY BOTTLE

By the Associated Press.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Aug. 20.—Steve O'Rourke's Henryetta Club will not play Fort Smith at Moffett Field tomorrow and he and team left on the 8.40 train for Oklahoma City tonight, from where they will go to Enid to open Monday. O'Rourke is nursing a badly bruised head as the result of being hit by a bottle, following the close of today's gabe, and Harris, left fielder, has a badly cut cheek as the result of a similar happening.

The game is not a foreift to Fort Smith because the Moffett Park is not recognized as a ground of the Western Association, as it lies in Oklahoma and is used for Sunday games only. The game was "simply called off" on account of insufficient promises of police protection to players.

Mahoney's Money Withheld Because of Poor Showing

Bout With Randall at Riverview Club Stopped by Referee in Fourth Round.

Eddie Mahoney of San Francisco, now a resident of Chicago, failed to show skill commensurate with his repuation in the feauture bout of the boxing program at the Riverview Club yesterday afternoon and Referee Harry Sharpe stopped the affair in the fourth round. His opponent in the bout, scheduled to go eight rounds, was Eddie Randall, the veteran lightweight. Randall plainly was trying, but it was just as plain that he no longer had the skill and stamina which once were his.

The referee acted after repeatedly warning Mahoney and just after he had consulted a member of the committee authorized by the board of police commissioners to supervise boxing in St. Louis. The referee stated that Mahoney apparently was not putting forth his best efforts, and as the contract with the boxers called for a contest and not an exhibition he stopped it when warnings availed nothing.

"What did they want me to do, go in there with a cleaver and chop up this guy?" said Mahoney after the bout.

Randall said he thought his style of fighting was largely responsible for Mahoney's poor showing. He said he was in there to win and was successful in blocking everything Mahoney had. He added that he intended to carry the fighting in the last three rounds and that he thought the referee's action was a bit hasty.

The club authorities were ordered by a member of the boxing committee to withhold Mahoney's share of the purse.

In the semi-windup Jimmy Kerns of East St. Louis was awarded the decision over Johnny Lucas of St. Louis after six rounds.

The best bout of the card was the four-round contest between Willie Ramsey and Frankie Frisco, 115-pounders. Ramsey earned the decision.

The preliminary was a fizzle. Hampton Beishir substituted for Elmer Ferrera against Kid Shields and stayed down for the count after taking a gentle right to the chin before the bout had gone 15 seconds.

Gibbons to Box O'Dowd.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 20.—Mike Gibbons and Mike O'Dowd, St. Paul middleweight boxers, have been matched for a 10-round bout at Wichita, Kan., Oct. 1, it was announced here today. The two have met previously, with a majority of newspaper men giving O'Dowd a shade. Jess Willard will referee.

O'Dowd Stops Martin.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Mike O'Dowd of St. Paul, former middleweight champion, scored a technical knockout over Silent Martin of Brooklyn in the ninth round of a 12-round match tonight.

ST. LOUIS UNIONS WIN IN FEATURE CONTEST

The St. Louis Union Trust team defeated the Merchants-Laclede outfit, 3 to 2, in the feature game of the Bankers' League yesterday. An unassisted double play of a sensational nature by Shortstop Dahman was the feature of the game. The Liberty-Centrals defeated the Paramounts, 8 to 0. The scheduled doubleheader between the Mercantile Trust and First National teams was called off.

SWIMMER ELIONSKY QUITS

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Harry Elionsky, who started out from Brighton Beach to swim 100 miles, gave up his attempt tonight after being in the water a little more than three hours. Tidal conditions and poor piloting were reasons given. Starting shortly after 4 o'clock he covered only three miles, while he was in the water. He said that he would attempt the feat again on Tuesday.

King Retains His Title.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—R. A. King of Delta, Colo., retained his title to the Hazzard trophy in a challenge match with Ross O. Judd of St. Charles, Ill., at the South Shore Country Club today. King shot 171 out of 100 pairs. Judd make 168. King won the Hazzard cup about a month ago from Fred Etchen of Coffeyville, Kan., with a record score of 196. Today's low mark was due to a heavy lake breeze.

How Japanese and Australasians Reached Davis Cup Final Round

Japanese and Australasian tennis teams will battle this week at Newport for the right to play the United States team in the Davis Cup challenge round. This is scheduled at Forest Hills, Sept. 3. The Japanese team is favorite, notwithstanding it won by actual competition only one match to reach the finals, while Australasia defeated three opponents. Australasia has only one first-class player—Andersen.

Following is the tabulated history of the Davis Cup rounds played thus far:

First Round.	Second Round.	Semifinal.	Final.	Challenge.
A bye	Argentina Denmark	Denmark won by default
Spain British Isles	British Isles won, 4 to 1	Australasia 3-2	Australasia 5-0	Winner of Final vs. United States Sept. 2, 3 and 5
Australasia Canada	Australasia 3-2
Japan Philippines	Japan won by default	Japan, default

WRAY'S COLUMN

It Doesn't Mean Anything.

THE middleweight championship limit is 158 pounds at 2 p. m. Before New York arbitrarily established this figure the maximum was 158 ringside, and prior to that 154 pounds. By Labor day the 158 pounds will have climbed to 160 pounds at 10 a. m., the condition governing the Bryan Downey-Johnny Wilson match, scheduled in the wooden stadium at Boyle's Thirty Acres.

All of which proves that a limit stops a boxer about as thoroughly as a wire fence might halt a cattle stampede.

A limit seldom restrains a fighter with a reputation, because the promoters think they MUST have his services, at any cost.

Only the common herd are bound by rules, in pugilism or in automobile driving. Business of riding over regulations for all those big enough to get away with it in both cases.

Goodabye, Mister Downey!

WHATEVER the merits of the wrangle which made the Downey-Wilson match possible, the argument as to which man was the lawful champion made the Labor day match a drawing card and was responsible for Downey coming up into the limelight, just as he was on his way down the ladder. If the Cleveland commission had not overruled the referee and declared Downey a winner, against the official's assertion that Wilson won on a foul, Tex Rickard would not have even thought of such a match.

As it now stands Downey will probably get not less than $20,000 out of this Labor day fight—more money than he ever made or ever hoped to make in a year of battling.

Downey has our sympathy. If he is not chopped into hamburger before the end of the 12-round bout at Jersey City, history and the "dope" will come a cropper. A bigger and better man is Wilson, who was scientifically carving a new landscape on his foe at Cleveland, when, carelessly, he put his jaw in the orbit of that right hand comet lauched by Downey, and so passed on into cuckoo-land for the remainder of the affair.

Wilson may not be a magnetic champion, but evidence is plentiful that he is a very clever, resourceful fighter, with enough of a punch to stop a man like Downey whenever he gets ready to.

Can't Tell About Georges.

THE future of Georges Carpentier, from a ring standpoint, seems to be draped in mist like the summit of Popocatepetl. Three successive postponements of his prospective return to this country to fight Tom Gibbons have set back the date to December. Late dispatches now suggest that Carpentier's thumb may never get over its water-on-the-joint weakness and will therefore compel his retirement from the ring.

We would like to see Georges again—provided he can return fit and sound. His match with Gibbons held out considerable attraction as tending to show whether Carpentier has correctly been termed the "next best man in the world to Dempsey." Gibbons is no Dempsey, but he is a very difficult man to beat. His knowledge of safety-first and his wonderful open defense, combined with a clever attack, ought to furnish an allround test for Georges.

Also, the match would serve to quiet or justify the suspicion engendered at Jersey City, that Carpentier, far from being a fighter of many styles, as advertised, has only one asset in his book—an overhand right to the enemy jaw.

Georges will not worry about the necessity of calling off the bout, if it arises. He took $108,000 out of this country on his first visit; over $60,000 on his second trip, and about $140,000 on his last journey here. In addition, he has an aluminum kitchen utensil manufactory in France, so that he can laugh at Br'er Wolf forever.

DREWES BEATS JOSTIES IN TRIPLE A TOURNEY AFTER HARD STRUGGLE

Ted Drewes defeated Fred Josties at Triple A yesterday afternoon in the semifinal round of the club tennis championship, in one of the best played matches ever witnessed on the Forest Park courts. In winning his way to the final, in which he will meet Wray Brown after the latter returns from the East, Drewes rallied after losing the first two sets.

Josties took the first set, 6 to 3, and despite Drewes' brilliant attempt to stop his drive, took the second at 9 to 7. Then Drewes hit his stride and took three straight sets, 6—2, 6—3 and the last one in easy fashion, 6—1.

WILLIS DAVIS VICTOR IN MEADOW CLUB TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Willis E. Davis of San Francisco won in both the singles and doubles finals of the Meadow Club cup tournament today. In the singles he defeated Vincent Richards of New York, the cup defender, 6—3, 8—6, 6—3, 6—4, and paired with Watson M. Washburn of New York in the doubles, defeated Howard and Robert Kinsey of San Francisco, 9—7, 6—3, 6—1.

The Trolley League schedule for today at the three towns in the circuit call for the Alton Blues to entertain the Tricities at Sportsmen's Park in Alton, while at League Park in Collinsville the Smelters and East St. Louis furnish the battle. At Polo Park in East St. Louis the Maxwells and the Wiles-Chipmans will battle for honors. All games will start promptly at 3 p. m.

WELL BALANCED DRAW IN NATIONAL DOUBLES TENNIS TOURNAMENT

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—A well-balanced draw in the national doubles lawn tennis championship, which starts next Monday on the Longwood Cricket Club courts, virtually assures a feature match between national and international stars every day. William M. Johnston, former national singles champion, and his Pacific Coast partner, Willis E. Davis, appear likely to meet R. Norris Williams II and Watson M. Washburn in the upper half of the semi-final round. Williams and Washburn will represent America in the Davis cup doubles.

Barring upsets, the indications are that the other semi-final match will be between William T. Tilden II, national singles champion, and his 18-year-old partner, Vincint Richards and the Kinsey Brothers, Robert and Howard, Pacific Coast champions. Although the field is smaller than in other years, the caliber of the entrants will insure high-class tennis. Richards is entered for the junior singles, and in view of his past performances, is expected to win easily.

The prospect of seeing more than half of the top 10 players and the entire Davis cup team in action has attracted many tennis fans. Several of the entrants were on hand today and the entire field is expected to be here by late tomorrow.

Last year the doubles title was won by Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, with Davis and Roland Roberts as runners-up. Neither Griffin nor Roberts is entered this year.

W. A. Larned, seven times winner of the national singles title, and W. J. Clothier, 1906 champion, form the leading veteran team among the entrants.

Miss America II Launched.

By the Associated Press.

ALGONAC, Mich., Aug. 20.—Miss America II, Garfield A. Woods' defender of the Harmsworth trophy, was launched here this afternoon. The craft, designed to give a maximum speed of 90 miles an hour, was given a trial spin on St. Clair River off here following the launching. Commodore A. A. Schantz of Detroit, head of the Detroit Gold Cup and Harmsworth Trophy Committee, was master of ceremonies at the launching, the craft being christened by Mrs. Garfield A. Wood.

Local Football Coaches Due to Return on Sept. 1

Rider of Washington and O'Rourke of St. Louis U. Plan to Get Early Start.

Announcements made yesterday are to the effect that Coaches George L. Rider of Washington and Steve G. O'Rourke will be in St. Louis Sept. 1 to begin the building of the "best football eleven ever seen in St. Louis."

Yessir, both schools are billed to have that same eleven; but we can't at this date be sure which will whip the other in the final clash for supremacy.

Rider is expecting more than an ordinary season, due to the large hang-over squad from last year and to the fact that two of the best men in the Middle West will be here to assist him—Applegram and Davis men of All-Western reputations.

O'Rourke will be new to St. Louis he having been signed last winter to replace Rademacher. Both O'Rourke and Rider have notified their schools they would be here about the first of next month.

Billiken's Schedule Light.

O'Rourke's future is exciting the most interest as his team is problematical. A "soft" schedule has been arranged, all the games being at home with the exception of that with Creighton, which is to take place at Omaha, Nov. 5. Missouri Normal, Kansas City U., Missouri U., Osteopaths, De Pauw, Lombard, Westminster and Washington make up the remaining foes of the Blue and White institution and the going should not be too arduous, even for modest aspirations.

O'Rourke will have 18 "letter men" on his squad and hopes to find some added talent among the expected enrollment of 1500 or more students. The letter men who are to return are Edward Amarel, L. A. Barber, Wm. P. Donovan, Leo P. Dolan, Raymond Drace, Henry Doerr, J. K. Dubrouillet, Alvin F. Eggler, Capt. James P. Finnegan, Leo Gerritzen, George D. Mattison, Louis V. Manley, Henry Salland, Wm. Swanston, Francis Thornton, Chas. J. Todt, Lewis Webb and Marion Webb.

Many Good Freshies Available.

From last year's freshmen squad a large number are eligible to the varsity through having complied with the strict rule of the University that a student must have passed one full year in good scholastic standing before trying for the big team. Among the promising players so advancing are practically all of the members of last year's "Frosh" which went through a season of seven games with but one defeat. The members of this squad who will be available are Atkinson, Barrett, Betz, Baumann, Colfer, Alvin, Eggler, Ellis, Fitzgerald, Grennan, Geraghty, McElroy, Molloy, Masterson, McConachie, Podsedly, Quirk, Richter, Reifling, Ray, Sauer, Steele, J. Weber, Vonachen.

FIELD OF 175 GOLFERS EXPECTED TO COMPETE IN WESTERN TOURNEY

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20.—Entries for the open championship of the Western Golf Association at Oakwood Club beginning Tuesday indicate that a field of upwards of 175 expert golfers will compete. Up to tonight 140 had formally entered, including practically all the great professional players.

The tournament will open Tuesday morning with a 36-hole team match between 12 professionals representing the East and an equal number from the West.

The play this year will be arranged to cover only three days, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday next, the qualifying efforts of the first two days at 18 holes each, comprising half of the 72-hole score for the championship. The entire field will play 18 holes on Wednesday, and repeat the performance the next day. Then the 64 low scorers and ties for sixty-fourth place will continue in the contest on Friday, playing 36 holes to complete the scores for the title.

SINGLE G PACES THREE FASTEST HEATS OF YEAR

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 20.—Single G. paced the fastest heats of the year and won the free-for-all feature of the final day of the Grand Circuit meeting over the Belmont mile track this afternoon. Single G., owned by W. B. Barefoot of Cambridge City, Ind., took the event in straight heats in 2:00¾, 2:01 and 2:01¼, thereby setting a new pacing record for the track. The former mark was 2:02¼ made by Miss Harris M. in 1911.

In every heat Allen placed his horse in a contending position and then allowed the others to set the pace until the three-quarter pole, when he showed the way with ease.

The special pace was also featured by fast time. Tommy Murphy driving June also allowed the others to make the pace to the three-quarter pole and then made his drive, June winning the first two heats in close finishes. The first heat was in 2:05, but Murphy stepped June the last quarter in 28 seconds flat to beat John Henry by a nose. June won the second heat handily in 2:02¼, but tired in the third heat and John Henry crossed first in 2:03¼.

Century Oarsmen Star in Regatta At Creve Coeur

Allen's Men Pile Up 67½ Points on Junior Day, Capturing Three of Six Races Held.

ROSE'S SPURT LANDS HIM SINGLES EVENT

Today Is Big Day of Southwestern Meet When Seniors Are Booked to Strive for Laurels.

Oarsmen of the Century Boat Club carried off a lion's share of the honors on Junior day in the Southwestern Amateur States Rowing regatta at Creve Coeur Lake yesterday afternoon. The green and white paddle tippers scored a total of 67½ points in the six events, 5½ more than their nearest rivals.

The stars coached by Harry Allen captured three firsts. Sam Oesterreicher and Art Heyne took first place in the double sculls and today will strive for senior laurels. The Century crews also captured first place in the half-mile dash for fours and in the eight-oared shell race.

After the first day's events, St. Louis Rowing Club was second with 62 points; Baden had 51; North End 28; Western 19 and Central 12.

Century Protest Not Allowed.

All the races were rowed on a straightaway course and near the close of the day's events a strong wind was blowing, which made the lake rough and worked a hardship on the oarsmen. The races were started on the south end of the lake, opposite Eldorado Park and finished at the United Railway pavilion.

In the first race of the day, the Century four were driven out of their course and failed to finish. A protest was lodged at the completion of the race, but this was disallowed by the committee. Baden won the event.

One of the features of the day was the singles event of one mile, won by Harvey Rose of the North End Rowing Club. Rose was in third place until near the finish when he spurted and won out by a good margin. Willard Slack of Baden was second.

The Century crews proved the class in both the half-mile dash for fours and in the eight-oared shell race.

Seniors to Compete Today.

Only a few hundred spectators witnessed yesterday's races. However more are expected today, which is the big day of the regatta when the seniors will compete for laurels. Among those who will compete are Muckler, the Western singles star, who recently captured the Central States title, and the Century Boat Club four, who recently flailed in its effort to regain the national championship. Today's program, which will be over the same course, will be started at 2:30 o'clock.

Jake Karl acted as referee at the races with William Haltinner, starter.

DONNELLY STARS WIN 2 HORSESHOE MATCHES

The Donnelly Stars proved that they were of championship caliber yesterday in the Municipal Horseshoe League when they defeated the strong Buster Browns and Centrals, taking 8 out of 10 from the B. B.s and 7 of 10 from the Centrals. The Donnellys now have a six-game lead on the Buster Browns.

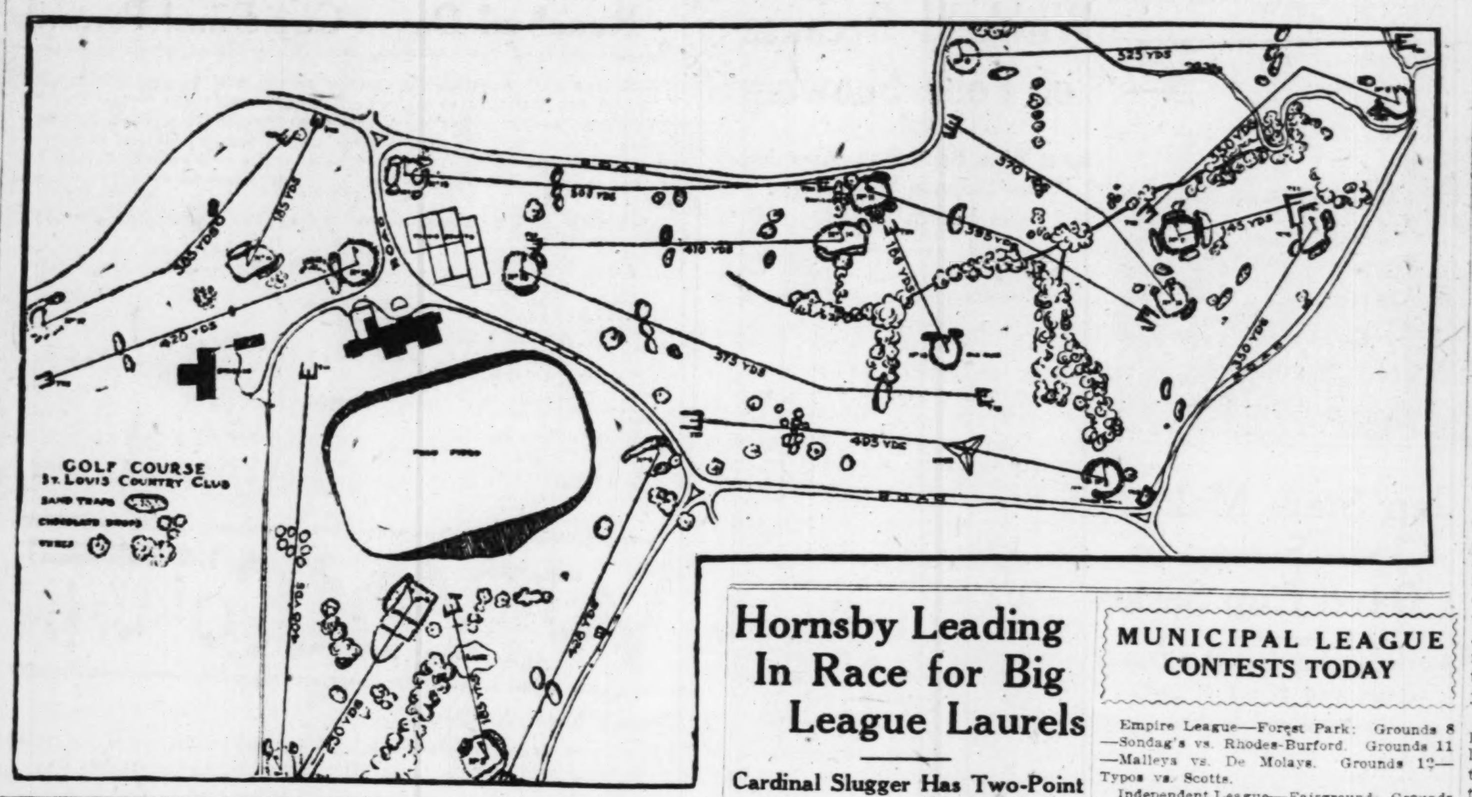
In the other games, Falstaffs won 8 of 10 from Lowenbaums. Buster Browns won 8 of 10 from Columbias.

W. Bull of the Falstaffs was high man for the day with a total of 81 points and 14 ringers. Charles Gross of the Donnely Stars was second with 74 tallies and 12 ringers. W. Schroer of the Buster Browns was third high with 69 tallies and 9 ringers.

The standings:

	Won.	Lost.
Donnelly Stars	88	42
Buster Browns	82	48
Falstaffs	79	51
Centrals	75	55
Columbias	40	90
Lowenbaums	26	104

Layout of the 1921 U. S. Title Golf Course, St. Louis Country Club



How to Play U. S. Title Course

If You Are Eligible to the National Amateur Golf Title Tourney, This Summary, by an Expert of the St. Louis Country Club Links Is Worth Reading.

Clarence L. Wolff, one of the leading St. Louis players and the first rank amateur medal player of the city, has analyzed the Country Club links. His complete summary below can be accepted both as sound advice and as a faithful picture of the difficulties of the course.

No. 1, 405 yards, par 4.—A fine, "sporty" two-shot hole. Your drive should be placed well to the left in aid of the second shot, which calls for a very accurate iron or stiff-mashie, depending on wind and course conditions. Out-of-bounds to the right and a ditch and thicket on the left, will spell ruin for the misdirected drive.

No. 2, 230 yards, par 3.—This is one of the most difficult single-shot holes in the country. You have no alternative; the ball must carry all the way and that carry must be at least 200 yards onto a narrow, undulating double-plateau green, surrounded on three sides with trouble. It's a very hard three.

No. 3, 180 yards, par 3—The accurate iron player has a distinct advantage here. The shot required, under normal conditions, is a midiron with all carry. The green is of ample dimensions, but deep traps almost entirely surround it.

No. 4, 428 yards, par 4.—A long well-placed drive to the left is justly rewarded on this interesting hole. From this side is the only safe avenue of entrance to the green. From the right of the fairway even the boldest player will hesitate to "go for the flag" with his second. The green is of scant area with a trap at the right front and another across the rear. From start to finish this hole requires the utmost caution and safety-first methods. A par 4 is no sinecure.

No. 5, 495 yards, par 5.—Two long straight shots will bring you within pitching distance of the deep "punch bowl" green. The contour of the green offers a keen test for the putter. A par score is less difficult here than at any other hole.

No. 6, 325 yards, par 4.—A drive-and-pitch hole, which requires a well placed drive and a perfect mashie-niblick. Out of bounds for the slice and trouble for the hook or pull is in evidence everywhere. The second shot must be pitched across a ravine to a rolling green fringed with traps.

No. 7, 145 yards, par 3.—An exceedingly fine test for the mashie or jigger. The green sets up in the air on the same elevation as the tee and the shot is played across a deep ravine. The only place of safety for the ball is the green, which is generously encircled with traps at the base of the high steep walls which support it.

No. 8, 350 yards, par 4.—You cannot find a more sporty hole anywhere, nor one where two good shots are better rewarded. It is copied from the famous "Cape" hole on the National links—a dog-leg or elbow hole, with the bend to the right. The drive from the lofty tee to the valley below must be not less than 225 yards and very, very straight, otherwise the second shot, a mashie-niblick, may occasion much mental anguish and discomfort. The green is of the bottle-neck shape, and amply guarded with natural hazards.

No. 9, 525 yards, par 5.—Much depends upon your tee shot here. A ditch runs diagonally across the fairway and must be carried on the second. Only the bold player, who places his drive to the left and close to the ditch has a chance to get near the green in two. From the right it requires a tremendous carry to clear the ditch, leaving a short pitch to the green.

No. 10, 370 yards, par 4.—Another elbow hole where accuracy is at a premium. The drive is rather "tight" and you'll find it necessary to play a little slice to the bend of the fairway. The second shot, up a steep grade, calls for a high mashie and the distance is quite deceptive.

No. 11, 395 yards, par 4.—From the hill top your tee shot is played down into the valley which winds through the woods. Place a good drive to the right here and you'll have a crisp iron shot into the green. From the left, the second shot is almost blind, with bunkers and mounds to carry. You'll be satisfied with a 4 here, if you get it.

No. 12, 185 yards, par 3.—This saucer-shaped green looks right at you from the opposite hillside. You must carry all the way into the bowl as the green is well guarded in front with traps, and the ball will hold when it hits.

No. 13, 575 yards, par 5.—The longest hole on the course and probably the most difficult to negotiate in par. 415 yards from the tee, three immense traps cross the fairway diagonally. After a drive of say 225 yards, you can choose the long or short route. Without a good drive you must, for safety sake, "lay up" to the traps, whence you'll find a brassie necessary for the third shot. The green is of comfortable size and favorable contour, but well trapped in front.

No. 14, 414 yards, par 4.—From the back tee you must get a fine drive, otherwise it means a "blind" shot from the side of a slope. A carry of 210 yards from the tee, gives you a desirable position on the plateau, affording a view of the green, leaving a fine iron or jigger shot to get home.

No. 15, 475 yards, par 5.—Whoever gets on this green in two shots can say he's done something. The drive should be placed to the left to avoid a hanging lie on the slope of the fairway. The long second shot is partially blind and must carry the deep traps across the fairway. There is trouble beyond the green and traps on right and left to catch the misguided second, with an out-of-grounds roadway running the whole length of the course on the right.

No. 16, 185 yards, par 3.—There's only one suggestion here. Do or die—carry the green and hold. The shot is played diagonally on to a cape, with trouble all around. This hole will wreck the hopes of many; it's an easy 3 or a hard 5 and should have been named "The Teaser."

No. 17, 395 yards, par 4.—This one is often referred to as "the pride of the course." A most interesting drive-and-mashie hole. Place your drive well to the left and you can look straight into the flag. From the right a big yawning trap, built into the green, will stare you in the face, and render your second shot most trying.

No. 18, 420 yards, par 4.—Your tee shot is played toward the face of an abrupt slope, which the long hitter has a chance to carry. The second is anything from a brassie to an iron and you'll never know its fate till you see its resting place. The green is sunk 15 feet below the fairway with an immense deep trap across the entire front. The distance for the second shot is very deceptive, but it's best to play boldly.

LYNCH BEATS HAMEL IN PARK GOLF EVENT

L. J. Hamel gave Frank Lynch a hard fight yesterday in their second round match in the Forest Park Golf Club tournament over the Municipal course. Lynch won, 1 up.

Jim Lincoln continued his unexpected triumphal march, defeating W. E. Werner rather easily, 4 and 2. Other results follow: George C. Robbins defeated George Hazen, 3 up and 2; Harry Franke defeated Roy Fish, 5 up and 4; Frank Pep defeated E. H. Cheney, 4 up and 3; Eddie Held defeated L. C. McClean, 1 up; Dr. A. P. Briggs defeated George Koob, 3 up and 2. Other matches in the second round will be played today.

Qualifying Round at A. A. A.

W. R. Orthwein has turned in the best qualifying round thus far in the Triple A Club golf tournament. He turned in a card of 83 yesterday, the next best being an 87 by Danna Von Shrader. Lower scores are expected today. In the challenge tournament Vance J. Higgs won himself a gold button, his opponent, Link, now sporting Higgs' old silver one.

Hornsby Leading In Race for Big League Laurels

Cardinal Slugger Has Two-Point Margin in Percentage Over Detroit Crack.

Rogers Hornsby was leading the world by a hairbreadth in the major batting averages of last week, including games of Thursday. Rogers had two points more than Heilman, the leading regular in the American League. Sisler regained some ground last week.

The Cardinals are still leading batters of the National, with the Browns fourth in the American, but owning a husky percentage of .297.

Following are the team averages and the .300 hitters of both organizations:

ENGEL'S HOMER WINS FOR SHAPLEIGH TEAM

The Shapleigh team of the Manufacturers' League defeated the Fulton outfit, 8 to 7, yesterday. Centerfielder Killiran misjudged a liner off Engels' bat in the sixth, with two men on base and the drive went for a home run. In the other game played the Triple A team defeated the Butler Bros. nine, 7 to 6. The leading Great Western team won on a forfeit from the Gibbins-Lohn team, when the latter failed to appear.

No Stars Will Be Absent From U. S. Title Event

Entry Lists Indicate Ouimet, Travers, Egan and Even British Stars Are Coming.

Fear that the national amateur golf championship, to be played over the St. Louis Country Club course Sept. 17 to 24, might develop into a mere sectional affair has vanished with the announcement of entries from far and wide. H. Chandler Egan, twice holder of the National and four times holder of the Western golf title, will come from Oregon.

W. F. Hunter, British amateur champion, will compete. So will Jerome Travers, Bob Gardner, W. A. Fownes, George Ormiston and Davidson Herron. With Hunter will come Raymond Swift, a crack amateur of the Oakdale Club of England. Jim Von Elm of Salt Lake City, winner of the recent transmississippi tournament, also will make the journey to St. Louis.

Francis Ouimet recently displayed signs of a return to the brilliant form which made him one of the greatest stars of the links and that virtually insures his appearance in the National Amateur field.

All Sections Represented.

It was feared that the distance necessary to travel to St. Louis might prevent Eastern and Western stars from competing here, but the national character of the competition now is assured.

F. H. Semple, chairman of the Housing Committee, announces that competitors need have no fear of being unable to find hotel accommodations. There will be a booth at Union Station where the golfers will be able to obtain all necessary information as to hotels, transportation, etc. The headquarters will be at a downtown hotel and reservations will be made at three other hotels for golfers.

In addition, the Country Club will take care of about 100 persons, some at the clubhouse, some at the Bogie and Log Cabin clubs and at residences near the grounds. Officers of the U. S. G. A. will be guests at the residence of Stuart G. Stickney, on the club grounds.

Fire Hose Used for Irrigation.

Although the rains of the past two weeks have put the fairways at the Country Club golf course in good condition, the Golf and Grounds Committee, of which A. T. Terry is chairman, is not taking any chances of fickle nature the weather or anything else. So the committee has made arrangements to attach fire hose to the plugs which are distributed about the links and will, unless rain saves it the trouble, drench the fairways with good Missouri River water between now and Sept. 17.

The cost will be considerable for the Country Club gets its water by meter measurement.

The irrigation of the fairways will be a new departure in golf. While some of the golf clubs in the arid regions of the West have irrigated courses—they could not grow any grass otherwise—the courses in the Middle West, East and South have never enjoyed irrigated fairways, though putting greens have been generally artificially watered.

Forty men and boys have been working on the fairways during the past week picking out weeds and noxious grasses, leveling up divot holes and making the course fit for championship play. These men and boys will continue work until the championship. The putting greens have been weeded, top-dressed, trued up and are now resting for the big event. Play on the links at present is restricted to temporary greens.

ENTRY OF W. J. HUNTER BRITISH GOLF STAR IS RECEIVED BY WIRELESS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—All doubt as to the appearance of William I. Hunter, the British amateur golf champion, in the coming American amateur championship at St. Louis was settled today when a wireless message was received by Secretary W. D. Vandespool of the United States Golf Association, from Henry Gullane, secretary of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, Scotland, formally entering Hunter for the St. Louis championship.

"As the Royal and Ancient is the controlling golf body of Britain, the O K of Secretary Gullane fixes the amateur standing of Hunter, despite all the reports that have been circulated as to his intentions regarding turning professional," said a prominent golfer connected with the U. S. G. A. yesterday, when told of the Hunter entry.

No sooner had Hunter won the British title than rumors began to circulate that he was going to become a professional. Then a few days ago it was given out in London that Hunter had abandoned his Government job as a postal clerk and had decided to make a six months' tour of the United States and Canada. The news naturally caused a renewal of the report that he intended to become a "pro."

British Golfers Beaten.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Aug. 20.—John G. Anderson of New York and W. W. Patten of Schenectady, N. Y., amateurs, defeated George Duncan and Abe Mitchell, the British professionals, 1 up, in an 18-hole exhibition golf match at the Pittsfield Country Club today. Patten and Anderson had a best ball score of 69 as against 71 for Duncan and Mitchell. Anderson's three on the last hole won the match.

BLESSED SLEEP.

NOW I lay me down to sleep,
For that's the only thing that's cheap.
A good, long slumber I will take—
It costs too much to stay awake.

When I'm around upon my feet
I have to pay for things to eat.
While I must purchase clothes and shoes
It doesn't cost a cent to snooze.

So to the hay I shall repair
And dream that I'm a millionaire.
Don't wake me up until the Browns
Have trimmed the seven other towns.

QUITE SO.

The Browns started their drive too late for the pennant, but it does look like first division.

RALLY IN NINTH ROUND WINS FOR CAR ACCOUNTS

The Freight Receipts Missouri Pacific League defeated the Freight Claims, 13 to 2. The Car Accounts won from the General Accounts, 7 to 6. The Car men came from behind and scored two runs in the ninth, to win the game. The Engineers defeated the Purchasing nine by a 16 to score. The Freight Traffic-Operating game was called off by agreement.

Shutout Pitching Grows as 'Rabbit' Ball Is Abandoned

Nearly as Many No-Score Games Since July 4 as in Previous 2½ Months.

Statistics on the season of 1921 show that shutout games have aggregated considerably fewer than the total for the same time last year. Including the games played Aug. 14, there were only 78 "whitewashes" in the majors this year—42 in the National and 36 in the American—against a total of 125 for the same time in 1920. Figures further show that there are 31 fewer shutouts in the N. L. and that the A. L. is 16 behind the 1920 figure.

"Dope" on the present campaign also reveals that since July 4, when the so-called "rabbit" ball was shelved in favor of one not so lively, almost one-half the major league shutouts have been pitched. The figures show 35 shutouts since July 4, against only 43 for the games played from April 13 to Independence day.

Only two pitchers stand out prominently in the matter of blanking the opposition. They are Urban Faber of the White Sox and Sam Jones of the Red Sox. Each owns four shutouts. Faber has pitched two against the Indians and one each against Detroit and Boston. Jones has handed ciphers to the Nationals on two occasions and to the Indians and Tigers.

Only Two Brownies Succeed.

Only two Brownie hurlers have turned in shutout victories—Urban Shocker and Ray Kolp. For the Cardinals, Haines has pitched two; Doak, Pfeffer and Pertica, one each, and Doak and Schupp, combined, blanked the Phillies June 6.

The shutouts for the 1921 campaign:

TO THE PUBLIC

The Department of Agriculture has made an extended statement of an official character, setting forth that milk conditions in St. Louis are subnormal; that eighty-one per cent of the milk sold here is higher in bacterial count than it should be and that a large number of the 31 Pasteurizing plants in St. Louis are not operated in accordance with official schedules.

If the Department had given the names of the dairies that furnish doubtful milk and the names of the plants that fall far short of the Pasteurizing standards, there could have been no criticism, but the good and bad were classed together, with the consequence that the public was shocked with a report of low averages that cast a reflection upon the dairies that adhere to standards and strive for excellence in milk service.

The Jersey Farm Dairy, long famed for the purity of its product, not only furnishes milk having the required butter fat content, but its supply is safeguarded, its bottling thoroughly sanitary and its Pasteurization is automatically controlled and effective. Our slogan is, "RICHER THAN THE LAW REQUIRES."

Welcoming all official scrutiny, the Jersey Farm Dairy desires to say that the public which has long shown its confidence in this company's product may continue to do so in complete assurance that all standards are met and that every humanly possible safeguard is thrown about its product, all the way from the cow to the consumer.

NEW CONSTITUTION BACKERS PROPOSE MANY CHANGES

Interested Persons Already Discussing Proposals They Desire Incorporated Into the Fundamental Law.

NEXT STEP IS TO ELECT DELEGATES

Governor Expected Soon to Designate Date When Personnel of Convention Will Be Chosen.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 20.—Questions to be considered by the constitutional convention to be held to amend, revise or rewrite the organic law of the State within the year, already are matters of interested conjecture here.

The State taxation system, all agree, will be one of the mooted points before the convention, as the forces desiring changes of one sort or another in the taxing plan now followed in Missouri have been strong among the advocates of a new Constitution. Pleas have been made from time to time by local divisions, school districts, townships, counties, villages, towns and cities for removal of, or changes in, the limitations placed upon their taxing powers by the present Constitution.

Representatives of wealth also have made frequent efforts to change the system in its various phases, the secured debts tax law, recently held void by the State Supreme Court, being one of the latest of these attempts. An effort by real estate men, brokers and other persons of like interests, to write this law into the new Constitution is expected.

To Consider Election Regulations.

Modification and tightening of the constitutional provisions governing elections also will be suggested, to the end that stricter honesty may be exacted of election officials. One of the changes to be attempted in this regard undoubtedly will be a section to enable easier opening of ballot boxes in investigation of suspected frauds in elections and primaries.

The judicial system of the State also will come in for attention. One branch of opinion favors elimination of the three appellate courts and a proportionate enlarging of the Supreme Court to take over all appellate functions. The three appellate courts each have three Judges, while the Supreme Court has seven, and now is being aided in its work by a commission, terms of whose members, however, expire in 1923.

Another proposal already twice submitted to the people in the form of a proposed amendment to the existing constitution, is the creation of two additional supreme judgeships. At present the supreme Court is divided into two divisions, one of four judges, the other having three. Were the Court enlarged to nine members it probably would be organized into three divisions of three judges each. It is urged that such a tribunal could do far more efficient work proportionately, than the addition of two judges would indicate, as many opinions from the four-judge division are forced into the court en banc to be considered anew, because of tie votes, a condition which could not occur in uniform three-judge divisions.

Legislative Changes Proposed.

Changes in the provisions governing the Legislature also are favored by some. One suggestion is that the right to hold bills indefinitely be taken from standing committees of the two houses. That power to hold measures indefinitely until called out by vote of the House, has resulted at every session in much jockeying on controversial measures. The advocates of this change would have a bill go on the calendar in a definite number of days after it is referred to a committee, unless previously reported out unfavorably.

Modification of the provisions governing corporations also is regarded as certain to be brought before the convention, many favoring more lenient requirements along the line of those in force in some of eastern states. These ideas have not taken the shape of concrete suggestions as yet, however.

Among the more local questions this body may be asked to settle is that of the annexation of St. Louis county or a part of it, to St. Louis. An effort to write home rule for the larger cities into the organic law also is expected. The cities will have a chance to obtain from the convention changes they believe to be their due and which they have been unable to obtain from the Legislature because of their relatively small representation in the Legislature.

Cities to be Well Represented.

In the constitutional convention of the Sixty-eighth District delegates, St. Louis, under the new senatorial districting, will have 16; Jackson County (Kansas City), eight, and Buchanan County (St. Joseph), two. Some of the 15 delegates at large also may be expected to come from the cities, which will give them upward of 26 of the total of 83 delegates. This will be a strong part of the 42 which will constitute a majority. It is assumed that delegates to the convention will be elected from the districts as re-aligned last April by Gov. Hyde, Secretary of State Becker and Attorney-General Barrett, though Democratic partisans are expected to protest this proceeding, claiming the re-districting was illegal. There has been some talk of using the nomination of delegates at large to test the legality of the redistricting.

A Democratic partisan has alleged that a candidate for delegate at large may test the redistricting by obtaining signers to his petition of candidacy from the old district within which he resides. If the Secretary of State refused to accept this petition, as he undoubtedly would, a mandamus suit to compel its acceptance would test the districting. Differences of opinion exist as to how district delegates should be nominated, whether by party primaries or conventions, which, of course, must be within the district. The method to be followed is left to the senatorial committee of political parties of the districts. Each party may nominate one candidate in a district, from each of which two delegates will be elected.

Hyde to Call Election.

Inquiries to Dr. E. B. Clements of Macon, chairman of the Republican State Committee, and to C. E. Yancey of Liberty, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, as to which method each favors, brought answer from Clements, favoring the convention method because it would result in a choice after considered judgment, and because of the extreme expensiveness of district primaries. No reply from Yancey was received, it being said that he was away from home. Clements expressed a hope that in the selection of the delegates at large a heated political fight may be avoided, if possible, in the interest of a conservative Constitution.

Gov. Hyde has indicated that when he returns from his vacation in the Ozarks, probably about the end of this week, he will confer with representatives of the New Constitution Association as to when the election of delegates shall be called. The Constitution requires him to call such an election, at which district delegates and delegates at large shall be chosen, not less than three nor more than six months after Aug. 2, last. Certificates of nomination of the district delegates, and nomination petitions of the candidates for delegates at large, to bear signatures of voters residents in the senatorial districts in which the candidates reside, equal to 5 per cent of the entire vote cast for Governor in their district at the last election must be filed with the Secretary of State at least 30 days before the date of election of delegates. The convention must be called by the Governor within six months after the election of delegates.

WIFE SAYS MAN WHO DIED OF THIRST HAD WATER WITH HIM

She Asserts Husband Was Saving Supply and Some Oranges for Her and Their Children.

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., Aug. 20.—August Kaufman, Pasadena contractor who was found dead in the Arizona desert last Sunday, literally died of thirst while he had a supply of water in his possession, according to a statement given out here by his widow.

Mrs. Kaufman arrived from Arizona bringing two small children and the body of a third, who died of hardship while Kaufman searched for water after their automobile had become stranded in the desert. She declared her husband had taken a small quantity of water and some oranges with him when he left the automobile Aug. 10 to begin his search and that both were found on his body untouched.

"He was saving them for us," Mrs. Kaufman said.

Mrs. Kaufman declared she thought it possible thta her husband might have survived had he drunk the water and eaten the oranges. The surviving members of the family were rescued about the time Kaufman's body was found. It developed that the party was within half an hour's drive of a ranch house and succor when Kaufman left the car.

GERMAN SEAMEN HIRED ON AMERICAN SHIPS, LEGION CHARGE

Complaint Made That Aliens Are Employed at Wages on Which Americans Could Not Live.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—That the employment of Chinese, Japanese, Portuguese, Spaniards, Greeks and Germans as seamen on American vessels is forcing American seamen out of employment, is the charge made by members of the American Legion at Boston, who have appealed to national headquarters of the legion to assist them.

The American seamen say it is impossible for them to exist on the wages paid the aliens. "Can a married seaman support a wife and be an American on $500 a year?" one of the complaining seamen asks.

It is charged that an American ship operator hires German crews at Hamburg, lands them in this country and hires them on the return trip as American seamen.

13 PERSONS HURT IN COLLISION

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20.—Thirteen persons were seriously hurt, one perhaps fatally, and more than a score of others bruised, in a head-on collision between two Cleveland, Painesville and Ashtabula Shore Line interurban cars east of the city limits late today.

CENTENNIAL DRAMA MALE CANDIDATES IN A TEST TODAY

Tryout of Those Desirous of Taking Part Will Be Held at Community Hall at 3 P. M.

PLAY TO BE GIVEN IN THE COLISEUM

Request for Information as to Descendants of Pioneers Now Here Produces Many Responses.

Seven weeks of active preparation for the production of the centennial drama, "Missouri," chief feature of the St. Louis observance of Missouri's centenary, will begin with the testing of male candidates for parts in the production, this afternoon. The candidates will meet at Community Center Hall, 1401 South Grand avenue, at 3 o'clock and will be tested by Thomas Wood Stevens, author of the drama, and Robert Hanna, chairman of the Production Committee, as to their qualifications of voice, appearance and acting ability.

Active exploitation of the St. Louis celebration was withheld until this time, because the committee in charge wished to do nothing to detract from attendance by St. Louisans and others at the State Fair centennial celebration in Sedalia. Now that the fair is over, the St. Louis celebration will have the right of way.

First Ceremonial Oct. 5.

It will begin in Veiled Prophet's week, the first public ceremonial being on Wednesday, Oct. 5, the day after the Prophet's annual parade and ball. The Lafayette Pageant and Lafayette ball will take place on that evening, all participants being in the costumes of the early nineteenth century. The following day, Oct. 6, will be Civic day, with a program under the direction of the city authorities. Friday, the 7th, will be Advertising Club day, with a trade-mark parade, trade-mark mask ball and advertising pageant.

Saturday night, the 8th, will be marked by a community sing, led by a chorus of 1200 voices. On Sunday, the 9th, ministers will be asked to preach sermons appropriate to the statehood centenary.

The drama "Missouri" will be the feature of the second week. The author, Thomas Wood Stevens, wrote the Pageant of St. Louis, which was produced in the last week of May, 1914, at the foot of Art Hill, Forest Park, together with Percy Mackaye's Masque of St. Louis. The Coliseum will be the scene of the production, from Monday night, Oct. 10, to Saturday night, the 15th, inclusive.

A number of responses have been received by the St. Louis Missouri Centennial Association, 602 Commercial Building, to its request for information concerning pioneers whose descendants now live in or near St. Louis. Most of those who sent such information dated their ancestral connection with St. Louis or Missouri back to the time of statehood, or to some time in the '20s. Some others mentioned ancestors who settled in the State as late as 1833.

Some of Descendants.

Some of the names of descendants and ancestors sent in were:

Mrs. James A. Waterworth, 14 North King's highway, grandaughter of Col. Thomas F. Riddick, member of the Legislative Council of Missouri Territory and member of the first Constitutional Convention.

Mrs. Norvelle W. Sharpe, 3520 Lucas avenue, great-granddaughter of John Baytap Scott, commandant of the district of New Madrid, Louisiana Territory, with headquarters at Cape Girardeau, spoken of in Houck's history as "the soundest and ablest man in the territory."

Paula L. Sage, St. Louis, great-niece of J. B. Howell, who located near Amazonia, Andrew County, in 1822.

Mrs. Lavinia Crow Reilly, 4425 Forest Park boulevard, great-granddaughter of John H. Gay, who came to St. Louis in 1824.

Mrs. Maud M. Hill, Clayton, descendant of Chouteau and Langdean families.

Mrs. Lucy Perry Walker, 2853 Russell avenue, granddaughter of James Perry, who settled in Washington County before statehood.

Mrs. J. U. Menteer, 1239 Amherst place, great-granddaughter of Isaac Ely, who settled in Ralls County in 1818 or 1819.

Mrs. Nellie C. Fleshman, Wellston, great-granddaughter of Dr. Warren Cottle, who settled in St. Charles in 1800.

J. L. Jenkins, Jackson, Cape Girardeau County, grandson of Dr. Franklin Cannon, who practiced medicine in Jackson in 1821, and was later Lieutenant-Governor.

R. F. Florentin, manager of the Bogey Golf Club, Clayton, sent an account of his descent from Capt. J. B. Royer, a pioneer settler, who died in St. Louis in 1783, and whose land holdings were the basis of a lawsuit by his descendants, which was decided against them. Of the latter experience, Florentin writes, "I am convinced I would be better off as the descendant of an auctioneer than of a pioneer."

FORMER NAVY LIEUTENANT TO BE MADE EFFICIENCY EXAMINER

City Position Paying $3300 a Year to Be Offered to Arthur C. Meyers.

Chairman Hertenstein of the Efficiency Board, yesttrday announced that the position of Chief Examiner for the board, paying $3300 a year, would be offered to Arthur C. Meyers of 4040 North Taylor avenue, who was a senior Lieutenant in the navy during the world war. He was with a fleet of destroyers which patrolled for U-boats in French and English waters and acted as convoys for troop ships. He also for a time was in charge of a naval barracks at Brest, France.

Meyers was the only one of five applicants who made the required percentage to pass an examination which they recently took. He is a son of John C. Meyers, an insurance agent. The position of examiner was made vacant by the death of Alonzo F. Barr about six weeks ago.

ASKS POLICE TO FIND HUSBAND

Police of St. Louis and East St. Louis have been asked to search for Ernest Shively, 35 years old, a grocer at Edgemont Station, who disappeared Friday.

Mrs. Shively received a letter yesterday from her husband, postmarked St. Louis, in which was a check for money he had in a bank. He also informed her where she could find a truck in which he left home.

Mrs. Shively said she knew of no reason for her husband leaving home.

UNEMPLOYMENT BRINGS INCREASE IN READING

Works on Applied Science, Psychology and Self-Help Most in Demand at Libraries.

The effect of unemployment on the attendance of readers at the Central and branch public libraries is discussed in the annual report of the Public Library, which was distributed last week.

The report on the Applied Science department expresses the view that the increased use of that department was due in part to unemployment. In the circulation department of the Central Library, it is stated that unemployment has less bearing than is generally supposed, though it increases the number of child readers, who no longer are supplied with lavish picture-show money. In the open-shelf room of the Central Library, it is reported that the gain in readers has been normal, and while in part due to unemployed, is more largely due to the increased use of the library by the schools and by Washington and St. Louis Universities. Interests in spiritualism is declared to have abated noticeably, while practical works on psychology, self-help and mental mastery are in demand.

Unemployment is mentioned in connection with the reports of increased attendance at the various branches of the library. A man carrying an armful of books from the Divoll branch remarked, "I haven't anything to do but read."

The Divoll branch, it is stated, checks newspaper lists of births and marriages in its neighborhood, that of Eleventh and Farrar streets, and lists of books on home-making and infant care are sent to the homes indicated.

JUDGE VAN VALKENBURGH URGED FOR HOOK'S PLACE

Kansas City Bar Association to Ask President to Appoint Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 20.—The appointment of Judge Arbas Van Valkenburgh to succeed the late William C. Hook as Judge of the United States Circuit Court, was proposed by the Kansas City Bar Association meeting yesterday.

A committee was appointed to send a telegram to President Harding urging the appointment. The committee is headed by John B. Pew, president of the association.

A telegram has been sent to Col. E. C. Curley, president of the Missouri Bar Association, at St. Louis, requesting him to put the request of the Kansas City Association to the President.

Submarine Launched With Wine.

By the Associated Press.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 20.—The S-51, last of the submarines now under contract for the United States to be biult here, was launched today. Mrs. R. P. Mills, wife of an official of the company, acted as sponsor. After breaking a bottle of champagne on the bow of the submarine, she released a carrier pigeon bearing a message to President Harding on the launching.

LORRAINE WELCOMES LEGION VISITORS

Girls in Costume and Bearing Flowers Greet Americans at Metz and Chasseurs Salute.

By the Associated Press.

METZ, Lorraine, Aug. 20.—The members of the American Legion visiting Europe were welcomed here today by girls in the costume of Lorraine and bearing flowers. As the Americans left their train they were saluted by chasseurs.

The officers of the garrison were presented to the Americans, among whom they found many comrades during the war. The first act of the visitors was to place flowers on the monument here to those killed in the war.

MORE U. S. SOLDIERS THAN GERMANS WED RHINE MAIDENS

Marriages of Year Total 1178, of Which 720 Are Americans and Frauleins.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

COBLENZ, Aug. 20.—Rhine maidens found more husbands among American soldiers in 1920 than among German civilians, according to the Coblenz burgomaster's report. There were 1178 marriages in the year, of which 720 were of American soldiers and Frauleins. In 1913 Coblenz had only 411 weddings.

MRS. ADDIE D. MOONE DIES AT HOSPITAL AT AGE OF 73

Survived by Two Sons, a Daughter, a Sister and a Brother; Funeral Tomorrow.

Mrs. Addie D. Moone, 73 years old, of 3740A St. Louis avenue, widow of Hiram D. Moone, died Friday night at St. John's Hospital of a complication of diseases. She had been ill for some time. Mrs. Moone was born Aug. 7, 1848, in a house between Fourth street and Fifth street (now Broadway), and witnessed the building of the courthouse, across the street. As a young woman she saw the sales of negro slaves on the steps of the courthouse. She was the daughter of Liberty Waite, a Justice of the Peace here in the '50s.

Her husband founded the Mount Vernon Band of Hope, a church society, and she was an active worker in it, extending its efforts to dramatic instruction, and in that capacity giving early training to Della Fox, Kitty Mitchell and Katie Tongray, actresses of a former day. She is survived by two sons, Elmer L. Moone, Republican City Committeeman for the Twentieth Ward and a deputy Circuit Clerk, and Edgar D. Moone, a clerk in the city water rates office; also a daughter, Mrs. Harold E. Price, a sister and a brother.

Funeral services will be held at an undertaker's at Grand and St. Louis avenues at 2 p. m. tomorrow and burial will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

What Leading Women in National Organizations Think of Plan for a Woman Disarmament Delegate

Successful Figures Believe There Are Many Women Who Would More Than Meet Miss Alice Robertson's Requirements.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.

WHEN Alice Robertson of Oklahoma, only woman member of Congress, announced that she doubted the wisdom of appointing a woman on the Disarmament Commission because she knew of none who possessed the necessary qualifications, the New York World sent telegrams to various representative women of national organizations, asking the opinion of each and the names of any woman believed to possess the qualifications enumerated by Miss Robertson. Those qualifications are:

Knowledge of international law.

Thorough acquaintance with diplomatic formalities.

Ability to speak French.

Assured social position to command respect of male colleagues.

Judging from replies so far received, the nation is well supplied with women eminently qualified to serve in any capacity, on any commission, at any time or place. Apparently not the slightest degree of professional jealousy exists among the women quoted. Each communication bears the stamp of sincerity and conviction; each disagrees wholly or in part with Miss Robertson.

A few writers make colorful remarks as to Miss Robertson's inexperience, limited vision and lack of acquaintance with women leaders in great movements.

Here are some of the replies in order of their receipt:

Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, second vice chairman of the Woman's Nonpartisan Pro-League Council, Port Washington, L. I.—Miss Robertson's statement is absurd. Evidently she has little knowledge of the women of the country who are doing things worth while. I can mention offhand half a dozen women, any one of whom would be a valuable acquisition to such a commission. They are: Mrs. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, Mrs. Montgomery Hare, Mrs. Frank Vanderlip, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Mrs. Valentine of Virginia and Mrs. James Tucker of California.

Mrs. Julian Heath, president National Housewives League, New York City—We have many women who are better trained than some men in certain respects, but not in statesmanship. I do not like Miss Robertson's position in Congress. She herself told me that she was doing nothing at present but sitting still and "listening in." Until women are sufficiently trained in statesmanship to go in on an equal footing and not take a year to "listen in" for training, they should keep out. Personally, I do not want to see a woman appointed to that commission for these very reasons. As to French, there are people outside of Oklahoma who speak French. The question of social position is absurd. In politics ability is the only thing that should count.

Maud Wood Park, president National League of Women Voters, Washington—Miss Robertson makes the mistake of assuming that international affairs should be arranged solely by diplomats. The war taught us that the great masses of the people should be represented in international agreements. I realize that women have not had the opportunity for training in diplomatic procedure, but since women have a special responsibility for human life, I believe that the woman's point of view, if represented at that conference, would be of far-reaching value.

Mrs. James Paige, director Fifth Region, National League of Women Voters—I regard Miss Robertson's requirements inadequate. French, diplomatic formalities and social position are relatively unimportant. Members should have broad vision, courage, sincere love of humanity, devotion to progress, as well as profound knowledge of the present world situation, able and constructive minds, ability as speakers and thinkers; they should be respected as powerful leaders and pioneers in good works in the community and nation. I know several women filling all these as well as Miss Robertson's requirements. Prominent among them are Carrie Chapman Catt and Maud Wood Park.

Mrs. George Gellhorn, director, Sixth Region, National League of Women Voters, St. Louis.—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and President Carey Thomas of Bryn Mawr are women with knowledge and ability to cope with international problems, and whose wisdom would command respect on any commission. If the size of the American delegation will permit, I trust that President Harding will appoint a woman member of that commission.

Vera B. Whitehouse (Mrs. Norman DeR. Whitehouse), Newport, R. I.—There are a number of women who would be of value on the disarmament commission. Carrie Chapman Catt is pre-eminent among them. Anyone who is familiar with Mrs. Catt's experience, wide knowledge and great wisdom cannot doubt that she possesses all the essential qualifications to make her of the greatest service on the commission.

Pattie Ruffner Jacobs (Mrs. Solon Jacobs), secretary board of directors, National League of Women Voters, Birmingham, Ala.—No man is better qualified for real service in the disarmament conference than Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and Miss Jane Addams, whose international experiences cover many years.

Mrs. Frank Day Tuttle, chairman, the Woman's Pro-League Council, New York.—It is more difficult to find the spirit that would place a woman on the disarmament council than it is to find a woman qualified for the appointment. It is doubtful if any of the men appointed would qualify in all of Miss Robertson's requirements. There is one woman who does, however. I take great pleasure in naming her. She is Miss Sarah Wambaugh of Cambridge, Mass. First, she is author of a book on plebiscites and is a student of international law in this country and abroad. Second, she is versed in diplomatic formalities and has had a year of experience in Geneva, serving in the secretariat of the League of Nations. Third, she speaks French. Fourth, she has an assured social position as daughter of a Harvard professor. Other women with international knowledge are Jane Addams, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw and Mrs. Norman DeR. Whitehouse.

Mrs. Frank Kep, third vice chairman, the Woman's Pro-League Council, Great Kills, Staten Island.—Certainly there should be a woman on the commission. There are more than a dozen women in New York City, well qualified, who could be on that commission. They are: Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Mrs. Frank Day Tuttle, Mrs. Raymond Brown, Miss Bertha Rembaugh, Mrs. Charles L. Tiffinay, Mrs. Charles E. Simonson, Mrs. Frank I. Cobb, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Minturn Pinchot and Miss Elizabeth Goan.

Mrs. James Erskine Neal (May McKinney Neal), treasurer, the Woman's Pro-League Council, New York.—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, in all four of Miss Robertson's specifications, is the peer of the President's appointees. She may have had no specific training in international law, but I submit that special training in international law has never been the sine qua non of our diplomatic appointments. We have trusted, rather, and wisely, to broad experience and sound judgment.

Mrs. C. B. Simmons, director, Seventh Region, National League of Women Voters, Portland, Ore.—I most sincerely favor a woman on the disarmament commission. Many women have the qualifications mentioned by Miss Robertson. The women of the world would be pleased to be represented by any one of the following: Carrie Chapman Catt, Ida Tarbell, Maud Wood Park, Jane Addams and Florence Kelley.

Mrs. F. L. Slade, director Second Region, National League of Women Voters, New York.—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt is eminently qualified to serve on the disarmament commission. There are many other women who could also be of great service.

Juanita Breckinridge Bates (Mrs. F. E. Bates), chairman Thirty-seventh Congressional District, State League of Women Voters, and president New York State Division, American Association of University Women, Ithaca, N. Y.—I know of many American women who possess the qualifications mentioned by Miss Robertson, and who possess, in addition, many other qualifications much more essential. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt has all the qualities of a statesman. Other women are Mrs. Percy Pennybacker, former president-general, Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Thomas J. Winter, president-general, Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, chairman New York State League of Women Voters; Miss Virginia Guildersleeve, dean of Barnard College; Miss Anna Gordon, president National Woman's Christian Temperance Union; Mrs. Norman DeR. Whitehouse, chairman of the woman suffrage party during the successful campaign of 1917.

German Staff Officer's View of Part Played by Missouri-Kansas Guardsmen in Argonne

TRIBUTE TO FIGHTING QUALITIES OF 35th DIVISION

Major von Giehrl, Chief of Staff of the 16th Army Corps, German Army, During the Meuse-Argonne Battle, Shows in Magazine Article the Effect of Hard Blows Dealt in Early Days of Struggle.

Reverse of Kaiser's Troops on September 26, When the Left of the First Guards Division Was Flattened Out and Driven Back Against the Argonne, Is Mainly Credited to the 35th; His Description of the "Main Blows."

By Ward L. Schrantz

Former Captain of Machine Gunners in the 35th Division.

WHAT did the Germans think of the operations of the Missouri and Kansas national guardsmen who made up the Thirty-fifth Division during the Meuse-Argonne offensive? Considerable light is thrown on this question by an article in the U. S. Infantry Journal this month, written by Maj. Herman von Giehrl, Chief of Staff of the Sixteenth Army Corps, German army, during the battle. The article appears to be definite proof of the potent influence the sledge-hammer blows of the Thirty-fifth exerted in the early days of the struggle.

According to Maj. von Giehrl, the German positions that were attacked by the Americans Sept. 26, 1918, were defended by the Seventy-sixth Reserve Division, Second Landwehr Division, First Prussian Guards Division, 117th Infantry Division and Seventh Reserve Division. The First Guard Division held the position that was attacked by the Twenty-eighth, Thirty-fifth and a portion of the Ninety-first American Divisions, the Twenty-eighth operating against the Prussians' right and the Thirty-fifth and a part of the Ninety-first against their left.

The First Day's Battle

Of the first day's battle the German Major says:

"Although the French attack west of the Argonne in no way surprised the German command, the Americans had succeeded in cleverly concealing their preparations for attack and in establishing a homogeneous American front of nine divisions during the night of Sept. 25, in the place of the mixed French-American troops between the Argonne and the Meuse. These divisions were from the west to east and the Seventy-seventh, Twenty-eighth, Thirty-fifth, Ninety-first, Thirty-seventh, Seventy-ninth, Fourth, Eightieth and Thirty-third, divided among three corps headquarters: the First, Fifth and Third. Of these divisions the Seventy-seventh, Twenty-eighth, Thirty-fifth, Fourth and Thirty-third had had experience in battle, the Thirty-seventh and Eightieth had until then been engaged on a quiet front only, while the Ninety-first and the Seventy-ninth were in the fighting line for the first time. All the divisions were well rested, fresh and in thoroughly good fighting condition. Their nourishment, morale and equipment were excellent. Artillery, aviation and tanks were in abundance.

"Shortly after 11 o'clock of the night of Sept. 25 a strong enemy artillery fire was opened on the whole front from west of the Argonne to the Meuse. At first only a harassing fire was directed on the Argonne. Many gas shells were used. The long-range fire reached far into the back areas. The hum of airplanes and the sound of explosions were reported near Vauquois. The German telephone lines, meteorological stations and survey and signal posts were put out of action.

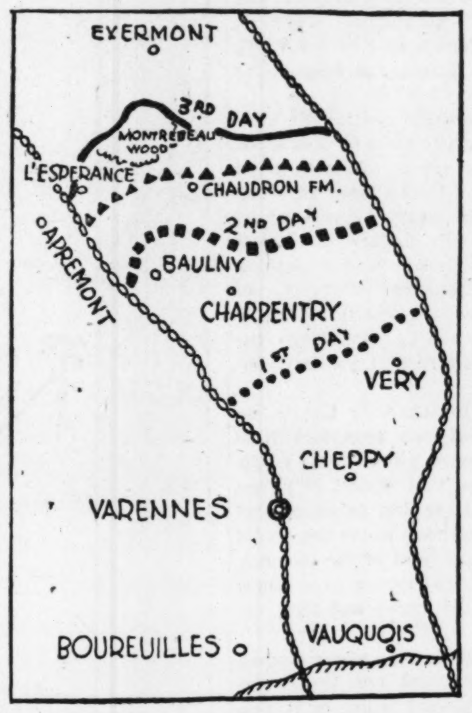
Effect of German Batteries

"The effects of the German counter batteries were limited, as the front east of the Argonne was but sparsely provided with reinforcing artillery.

"At 2 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 26 the enemy's fire, which in the meantime had died down, was renewed with full force and the American infantry came into the attack at 5 o'clock the same morning.

"The blow fell chiefly on the First Guards, whose position lay east of the Argonne, and the adjacent 117th Infantry and Seventh Reserve Divisions.

"The attack of the American infantry was favored by a thick mist, which remained until late in the morning. The Seventy-seventh and Twenty-eighth American Divisions in the Argonne did not make a serious attack, and on the day of the attack won only an insignificant amount of terrain which was for the most part voluntarily ceded by the Second Landwehr Division. The left flank of the First Guards Division was at first quickly flattened out and the entire division then forced back against the eastern edge of the Argonne. Varennes and Cheppy were lost. During the evening the enemy pushed through as far as Baulny, but were driven out by the Fourth Guards Regiment. Eighteen tanks, disabled by fire, remained stranded near Charpentry alone. In the evening the First Guards Division, which had suffered extremely, held the line running approximately through Argonne-Charpentry-Epinonville.



"There was a wide gap left in the Valley of the Aire. No reserves were available, as only one regiment of the Fifth Guards Division (Infantry Regiment No. 20) had arrived and had already taken up a position near Exermont."

Farther to the east, Maj. von Giehrl continues, the 117th and Seventh Reserve Divisions were overrun and flung back to the north, so that during the day's fighting the Americans had won terrain to the depth of from four to nine kilometers on a front of about 20 kilometers.

The valley of the Aire was the place that was causing the German command the most anxiety on the evening of Sept. 26, owing to the "flattening out" and "throwing back" of the left of the First Guards Division. This was in the main the work of the Thirty-fifth Division, although both the Twenty-eighth and the Ninety-first had participated to a somewhat lesser extent. Cheppy had been captured by the Thirty-fifth and Varennes had been captured partly by the Thirty-fifth and partly by the Twenty-eighth.

The Second Day's Battle

Maj. von Giehrl's account continues:

"There was little heavy fighting in the Argonne this day. Heavy fighting again developed between the wooded hills and the Meuse. Meanwhile on the Montblainville-Epinonville front the whole of the Fifth Guards Division had been pushed in between the thin ranks of the First Guards Division. The main attack, supported by tanks, was launched on both sides of the Valley of the Aire against Montblainville and Charpentry. Both of these places, which were defended by Landwehr troops and the Third Guards Regiment, were lost. The enemy pushed up to Baulny and, farther east, crossed the main road running in a northeasterly direction from Charpentry. The counter attacks of the Fourth Guards and the Twentieth Infantry Regiments produced a temporary relief of the tension, but were unable to prevent the enemy, late in the evening and supported by large numbers of tanks, from taking the heights north of Baulny. As in the Valley of the Aire on Sept. 26, the situation east of the Aire for the Germans, who had no further reserves available, was extremely critical."

Between the region mentioned above and the Meuse, Maj. von Giehrl states that in the main the German defense was successful with the exception that Montfaucon had to be definitely abandoned. American writers have usually expressed the opinion that, in general, Sept. 27 was a day of check for Pershing's army, and the importance given by Maj. von Giehrl to the capture of Montblainville, Baulny, Charpentry and the high ground north of Baulny, which made an "extremely critical" situation for the Germans, should be something of a revelation to those who have been inclined to belittle the achievements of the Thirty-fifth Division. Montblainville was taken by the Twenty-eighth Division. Charpentry and Baulny and the important high ground north of Baulny were taken by the Thirty-fifth.

The Third Day's Battle

In reference to the third day's battle the German Major writes:

"The American army command must have realized during the battles of the two previous days that the weakest spot in the German defense was still the Valley of the Aire. * * *

"This point of view appears, too, to be borne out by the attacks of Sept. 28. * * * As was expected, the Americans launched their main attack on both sides of the Valley of the Aire. Their close lines, supported by tanks, endeavored to break through the German lines during the day.

"But in spite of all their efforts they had captured only Apremont and the wood and the heights of Montrebeau by the time evening arrived. * * * The enemy infantry suffered particularly from the flanking fire of 13 German field batteries, which, from their position on the eastern edge of the Argonne, constantly held up the advance. * * * The American losses were heavier on this day, but the German troops had also suffered severely."

Maj. von Giehrl seems to have attached comparatively little importance to the operations of the Americans this day, although the Thirty-fifth Division, in taking the heights of Montrebeau, made what Frederick Palmer describes as a "spectacular advance" across several kilometers of open ground, swept by the flanking fire of the 13 German batteries in the Argonne. Apremont was taken by the Twenty-eighth Division. It is to be noted that, although all American divisions from the western edge of the Argonne to the Meuse River were attacking this day, the Germans describe the "main attack" as having taken place in the Valley of the Aire. Farther to the east this day the Americans had gained considerable ground near Nantillois, but in the Valley of the Meuse an advance had been prevented by the flanking artillery fire from the west side of the river.

The Fourth Day's Battle

Maj. von Giehrl says of the fourth day:

"From 6 a. m. on the Americans once more attacked after a heavy artillery preparation. A German attack by the Third Battalion of the 120th Landwehr, aimed at recapturing Apremont, was stopped. The main blow of the Americans was at this time directed against Exermont and the Valley of the Gesnes, running thence eastward. At 10 a. m. the enemy, assisted by tanks, had broken through at Exermont and beyond, but was flung back again on and past Exermont by the entrance into the struggle of two regiments of the Fifty-second Division. The German counter attack was then pushed forward up to Esperance Farm and Montrebeau Wood, and Tronsol Farm was retaken. This attack of the Fifty-second Division, supported on its right and left by the remainder of the Guards divisions, temporarily, but seriously, shook the American front, until the German counter attack was stopped by the bringing up of strong American reserves, together with fighting and bombing squadrons. The Twenty-eighth and Thirty-fifth American divisions bore the brunt of the fighting here and suffered exceedingly heavy losses, partly due to flanking fire from artillery in the Argonne. The German position here on the afternoon of Sept. 29 was, on account of the lack of reserves, a very serious one." * * *

The force that burst the German line at Exermont was the dead-weary and intermingled units of the Thirty-fifth Division, which stumbled forward doggedly to the attack without having had a chance to reorganize. Tronsol Farm, mentioned by Maj. von Giehrl, was in the area of the Ninety-first Division. The "heavy reinforcements" that stopped the German counter attack were the less advanced elements of the Thirty-fifth Division. The enemy Major gives the fighting elsewhere minor importance, saying that a short voluntary withdrawal was made in the Argonne and that some distance east of the Aire Valley the Americans took Ogon Wood.

The Fifth Day's Battle

The story of the fifth day is brief:

"For four whole days had the American troops been attacking. They had obtained a great tactical success on the first day and had gained more ground on the 27th and the 28th. Sept. 29, however, not only saw their first reverse, but demonstrated that the attacking power of the troops was exhausted. * * *

"Sept. 30 saw further local attacks by the Americans at Apremont and on the heights of Montrebeau which the Fifth Guards Division had retaken in the early hours of the morning. These American attacks, however, produced no further notable results. * * * As early as the night of Sept. 30 the enemy withdrew the Twenty-eighth, Thirty-fifth, Thirty-seventh and Seventy-ninth Divisions from the line and replaced them with fresh troops."

Maj. von Giehrl's description of this portion of the Meuse-Argonne offensive shows, among other things, that:

1. The most embarrassing section of the whole battle line for the Germans was the Aire Valley, where the Twenty-eighth and Thirty-fifth Amer-

After-War Materialism and Morality Themes in "The Duster's" Latest Book

"The Glass of Fashion," by Unidentified Writer, Assails English and American Women, as Only Seeking "A Good Time."

By FERDINAND TUOHY.

A Distinguished British Journalist.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.

WHY shouldn't the beautiful Lady Diana Manners have a hot bath at midnight if she wants to, and take freely, too, of the "fine assortment of salts and ointments and scented waters" laying to hand?

That fastidious scribe, "The Gentleman With a Duster," who gripped us with "The Mirrors of Downing Street," seems to glimpse in the fair Diana as she leans over the bathtub sprinkling the crystals a vision of Britannia (whom the fair Diana has so often impersonated at charity fetes) about to immerse herself in a slough of the grossest materialism. The burden of his latest book, "The Glass of Fashion," is to stress the headlong career of English society toward such a morass; yet it is doubtful if he does more than underline the garish and cynical attitude of a section of it. In a special preface written for Americans, the still anonymous author declaims: "The same contagion of materialism which is attempting to destroy us is also attempting to destroy you, and the same depression of a false science, which is weighing down the human spirit in these British Isles, is also weighing down the human spirit in your United States of America. You, too, have your Repingtons and Margots; and you, too, have the same heroic but ineffectual goodness which here in England vainly seeks to stem the monstrous flood of modern animalism. We are both of us cursed by the same inheritance from the last century, the inheritance of a scientific falsehood as baseless as it is repulsive. We are both held by the philosophic paralysis which has crept over the human mind ever since the dark and disfiguring shadow of Darwin fell upon the field of life. In both of us the center of cynicism preys upon the divine faculties of our humanity whereby alone we can respond to the joy, wonder and beauty of existence. Out of the stagnant fen of materialism into which humanity seems at this time to be fast sinking, we can be lifted only by one of these great waves of moral enlightenment, which in the first century of our dispensation saved mankind from the darkness of paganism and in the sixteenth century rescued Europe from the clutches of an iron dogmatism. I suggest that we should look at Fashion, that we should take the measure of the leaders of mankind, those who set the fashion of daily life, whose influence is the moral climate in which we breathe and form our opinions. With you, as with us, the fashion of daily life is set by those who have sacrificed to a false science, almost without thought, the one great secret of joy, namely, faith in a creative purpose, faith in man's immortality. By the term Fashion I mean all those noisy, ostentatious and frivolous people, patricians and plutocrats, politicians and financiers, lawyers and tradesmen, actors and artists, who have scrambled on to the summit of England's national life and who, setting the worst possible examples in morals and manners, are never so happy as when they are making people talk about them."

Materialism From War.

How much, we may well ask, of this is true and what proportion of it is due to the Duster's blurred vision as he peers through the panes of his own glass house?—for be it said he worships at the shrine of Victorians, oblivious to the fact that a deal, a great deal of the cynicism and materialism prevalent today is the direct outcome of the war, which in turn was part begotton by these selfsame Victorians, smugly building up empire on a plan as devoid of imagination as of morality. Our Dusting friend seldom probes for cause; instead he rocks ahead in sensational verbiage replete with generalization. And he is so very uneven. Holding up the Victorians as models of virtue, and particularly Gladstone, he relates of the latter how late one night on leaving the House of Commons he espied a Magdalene cowering in the rain on the steps of the Duke of York's column: "He bade her rise and follow him the short way that led to Carlton Gardens, where he was then living. He was alone in London, his family at Hawarden. He let himself into the house with his latch key, and found his frugal supper prepared in his library. Adjoining this was the room he used when alone in London. He gave the woman, cold and drenched as she was, some food; he then sent her into the adjoining room, bade her undress, dry her clothes at the fire kept burning for him, and try to rest. He sat up all night reading and writing, and when the morning dawned, let the woman go forth, warm and comfortable, with a few coins for her breakfast, and probably some good advice and further instructions."

We have but to picture the holes that would have been torn in such a tale had it emanated from Mrs. Asquith in her recent reminiscences, had that spritely soul narrated how she took a wet tramp home. "Why didn't she give him money for a night's lodging?" would have thundered our gentleman with dusters.

Repington and Margot.

This Gladstone anecdote points the inherent weakness of "The Glass of Fashion" as a serious contribution to social phenomena in that it has been inspired by and built up on two isolated personalities in the London Whirl, Col. Repington and Merry Margot; and you cannot impale society by treating luridly the antics of individuals in it. Half of the book is made up of extracts from the now famous diary of the former and autobiography of the latter, plus sweeping sweeps with the duster. The Repington diary should, it seems, have been devoted to telling us "How the great ideal of England sustained the English aristocracy through those dreadful years," instead of acquainting us with lively luncheon parties and tales of beautiful ladies. Admittedly, as Repington himself says, posterity will probably consider the way London's "smart set" carried on, even to the tune of 3000 and 4000 casualties a day, as callous in the extreme, yet Repington is on firm premises when he likens the "for-tomorrow-we-die" spirit of London to the bearing of the French nobility awaiting the tumbril during the Revolution. The first persons who would have struck at any attempt to take the war to Chopin instead of to jazz-time would have been the soldiers home on leave. The "dignified decency" yearned for by our dusting friend is not a physical possibility of modern war. Whatever finer emotions it may engender, war likewise releases lust, brutality, a complete disregard for tomorrow and for self-control, and a raging desire to enjoy the fleeting hour, whate'er the cost to one's self or to the others. The masses are not seriously concerned over the manner in which Repington's set may have offended the proprieties, since in another key they did so themselves. They are far more concerned about war, the cause of our present spiritual void, more than any suspicion of our potential descent from monkeys.

Quotations From Mrs. Asquith.

In passing to Mrs. Asquith, cynicism is well dissected: "In their horror of enthusiasm, which they regarded vulgar, these people have fallen into a pit of sneers. They like to depreciate; it is natural in them to degrade. The universe has no majesty for them, life no secrets, religion no reverence and the nature of man no illusions. They know everything—everything that darkens and destroys, nothing that elevates, nothing that purifies, nothing that sustains. To climb to the heights would be too exhausting for souls enervated, if not rotted, by the negations of cynicism.

The cymbals clash, and the dancers walk,
With long silk stocking and arms of chalk.
Butterfly skirts and white breasts bare;
And shadows of dead men watching 'em there.

Mrs. Asquith is characterized anarchist in regard to manners and belonging to "that insurgent class of the commercial rich, which broke into society soon after the second reform bill and during the years of King Edward's reign completely overwhelmed it." (Principally owing to His Majesty's personal attitude toward wealth.) The fact that Margot is "a devoted wife, an exemplary mother and that she believes in God makes her assault on the decenies all the more heinous." There was a time when the English aristocracy made its influence felt throughout the whole social organism from a privacy and a seclusion which were inviolate. That time is past. We are now without standards. Society's door has been opened from within. On the strength of Merry Margot's exceptional adventures, apparently the whole of English society is going to the dogs.

"Fashion," pursues our relentless critic, "in degrading manners and morals, has also degraded the happy playfulness of the human spirit. Life is no longer amusing. It is not vivacious, but noisy. There is no zest, no richness, no sparkle, no color, no fire, no splendor. It is drab. It is dreary. There are crazes instead of

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Bank Encouragement of Speculation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A TIDE of high prices rolled over the country, succeeded by an ebb-tide that shows no sign of turning. Doubtless the rising tide could have been checked in its mad career. It originated in the human desire to make gains—a wholesome thing when it stops short of greed.

Banks do not speculate in commodities. Their customers do. By helping the speculator the banks helped to create the rising tide and doubtless got their share of the gains. Of course, the consumer was expected to pay the fiddler. He did until he got tired and went on strike. He is not on strike today, for the reason that a vast multitude of people are out of work and cannot buy. Those in receipt of incomes have buttoned up their pockets and a general wreckage of values has occurred. The public does not come back because it cannot come back. If those persons who were in control of the money of the country had refused to lend aid to speculation, the tide could not have risen. Had they done so, they would not have on their hands as collateral for speculative loans commodities of more or less perishable nature. When it was too late the check-rain was applied.

Deflation was seen to be necessary. Those in control of the circulating medium, seeing that the rising tide must be checked, checked it. No great amount of brains was needed to see that trouble would come from giving aid to speculation. The banks were in the scramble. Until they are restrained from making loans to aid speculation, the country will have the same thing again and again.

A remedy to prevent these convulsions should be sought. If a speculator with a small margin can buy stocks with the aid of a bank loan, he stands to lose. No one speculates by paying 100 cents on the dollar. He pays 10 or 15 cents and a bank supplies 85 or 90 cents. If the bank were limited to lending not more than 50, the customer would not speculate at all, for when he cannot carry a $10,000 deal on a $1000 margin, or must put up $5000 as margin, the game will not invite him. The suggestion to place a limit on bank loans may be putting the finger on the rotten spot. Ask the banks—they know. E. R. D.

Soldier's Relief Fund.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WILL some one kindly explain what has become of the ex-soldier relief fund, one of the issues of the spring election? Many former service men are in need of help and should rightly receive their share of this so-called relief benefit at once. AN EX-DOUGHBOY.

Southeast Missouri Crops.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I WAS much pleased with your interesting article on Southeast Missouri, the land where everything grows. I am an oldtime Mississippi riverman in days when steamboating was in glory. Many a time our big sidewheeler left St. Louis rather light, but adways depended on New Madrid to fill us up with corn for New Orleans. Now some people in states where 25 bushels of wheat and 40 bushels of corn per acre is considered a full crop will hardly believe me when I state that 40 bushels of wheat and a 100 bushels of corn per acre is about the average in Southeast Missouri.

The Anthem's Words.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN answer to letter signed "Also American," who claims that the soldiers who served overseas had "too much anthem" while in the army, I disagree with him. I was also a soldier and saw service on the other side. I don't think that two men out of every ten that were in the army actually knew the words to the "Star-Spangled Banner" and could sing it. I believe that everyone who claims the United States of America as his home and claims to be 100 per cent American should know the "Star-Spangled Banner" by heart.

ANOTHER AMERICAN.

Windy but Wet.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I RECENTLY had occasion to go to Chicago on a business trip, and was surprised to find things wide open. Every other saloon in Chicago is selling beer, not near beer, for I am an old beer drinker and personally tested it. One does not have to be known or whisper, "Have you anything good?" All one has to do is to walk in, ask for a stein and it is immediately served, as well as wine or anything else one wants. I would like to know how the self-appointed guardians of other people's morals account for this.

WILBUR VANCE.

Cause of Moonshining.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WE all agree with Attorney-General Barrett's proposition to enroll all organizations that stand for health and morals to stamp out moonshining, but he took care not to mention those that stand for liberty. I hope that these organizations which he mentions will use their good offices to remove the cause of plague and pestilence, namely, prohibition. A CONSTANT READER.

THE RIVERS COMING BACK.

It is said that in New Orleans, where the appearance of a boat from upstream or from one of the tributaries of the Mississippi had become so rare that the coming of such a craft was heralded by the newspapers, there are now from three to a dozen river boats at the wharves every morning.

These come from up the Mississippi and its tributaries. Some of them are in the Government barge service to St. Louis and the Warrior River. Within the past 18 months, so it is stated by H. H. Dunn in the current Popular Mechanics Magazine, 47 river boats have returned to work on the Mississippi, the Red, the Atchafalaya, Bayou LaFourche, Bayou Terrebonne, the Warrior, the Tombigbee River and other streams of the South, where the successful experiment of the Government barge line and the increase in railroad freight rates have encouraged river craft to come back.

The same thing is happening upon the Upper Mississippi River and its tributaries. Only the prohibitive cost of boat construction has kept the St. Louis water front from exhibiting the returning life of the inland streams. More river boats operate out of St. Louis now than have been operating from this port in 25 years, and as soon as construction costs go down this number will be greatly increased. It is not entirely that railroad freight rates are so much higher than they were: there is an assurance of protection from unfair tactics upon the part of the railroads in the Esch-Cummins law, which will do quite as much to revive traffic on the rivers as the lower operating costs of boats in comparison with trains.

There has always been a considerable volume of business for boats upon the Mississippi and its tributaries. The steamboatmen were only driven off by unfair competition, countenanced by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Happily, Congress has set its foot upon such tactics, and at a time when possibly less than a half a dozen railroads in the United States are making money the steamboats are operating profitably upon almost a dozen hitherto unused streams.

The spirit of this revival pervades the whole Mississippi drainage basin and extends east and west along the gulf coast. Mobile is building docks for coastal traffic, and Morgan City, 100 miles west of New Orleans, on the Atchafalaya, wants to become a port of call for both fresh and salt water craft. The Government is building terminal docks for its barge line at South and East St. Louis, Cairo and Vicksburg. Senator McKellar of Tennessee thinks the earnings of the barge line over its operating costs is so important that he has gained consent of the Senate to put the figures for the past six months in the Record.

It is important. To the Mississippi Valley its importance could hardly be exaggerated. To St. Louis, despite the apathy of her shippers, it contains as nothing else, perhaps, the germ of growth.

The rivers are coming back. Notwithstanding the disposition upon their very banks is to think of them still in terms indelibly impressed upon everyone's mind by the picturesque genius of Mark Twain, they are bound speedily to impress themselves upon the whole country in terms of modern transportation.

CO-OPERATION AND INSPECTION.

The long agitation for better milk, culminating in the Department of Agriculture's investigation and recommendations, makes it clear that the three agencies—production, transportation and distribution—must co-operate if we are to have an assured pure milk supply.

It would be difficult, if not impracticable, for local distributers to purify an impure product. The purification of milk should begin at the farm. Yet if every possible precaution were taken at the farm the labor would be largely, if not entirely, lost by careless, insanitary transportation. Health Commissioner Starkloff declares that milk should be shipped in refrigerator cars. The Government's report as to the contaminating effect of high temperature on milk supports the Health Commissioner's requirement.

Whether such co-operation can be compelled by city ordinance is debatable, although the right of a city to enforce certain conditions as to the handling of milk on the farm has been upheld. A voluntary, earnest co-operation by farmer, carrier and distributer would, of course, be preferable.

Assuming such co-operation to be operative, it is imperative that the city assist vigilantly in making the co-operation efficient. Such assistance can be rendered only with a force of thoroughly competent inspectors. Politics should have nothing whatever to do with the appointment of such inspectors; they should be chosen solely because of their fitness for the office. Men of such training can be found.

As to the necessity of pure milk there is no division of opinion. Milk is the one food product with which no city can afford to take chances. With babies and young children it is a question of life or death. Mayor Kiel is secure in saying he will sign any ordinance designed to guarantee our milk supply. Back of the Mayor's attitude is unanimous public opinion determined on establishing and maintaining a pure milk supply whatever the effort or expense.

A SKYLINE'S SERMON.

Not beauty alone, but something that touches us with an even deeper significance, may be envisioned in that magnificent skyline so magically arising upon Lindell boulevard.

Yet solely in its physical aspect, what a scene of classic grandeur will lie before the spectator of the future as, from his window in the 14-story hostelry at Grand avenue, he gazes toward the west! To the left the delicate, tapering Gothic spires of St. Francis Xavier's Church, softly mellowed and darkened by the winds and rains of years. And to the right, in telling contrast, the massive square pile of the new Scottish Rite Cathedral, half obscuring the graceful masonry of the St. Louis Club. But a little way down, St. Peter's, and the Oriental splendor of Moolah Temple, facing the bright garden spot across which looms the marble of Shaare Emeth, and beyond, the broad doors of the Columbian Club.

Along the wide thoroughfare his eye travels until it rests upon that mighty granite mass at Newstead, bearing aloft its Byzantine crown of gleaming green with its cross of gold; and on to the towering group of apartments at King's highway, beyond which opens the rich, flower-dotted verdure of Forest Park, and farther still, along the shaded reaches of Lindell drive, past mansions of brick, of stone and gay terra cotta, past the stately colonnade of Jefferson Memorial, and halting, finally, at the foot of those commanding towers that guard Washington University.

And this is no dream of the shadowy Utopia, no legend of Grecian glory or Roman grandeur: it is a solid reality of a twelvemonth hence. This is the St. Louis that is soon to be, that almost is now—and here we see not only the city but an epitome of that America which we all envisage above the sordid party turmoil and the social conflict of the moment, made free by enlightenment and secure in a world which reason has purged of the smoke and mud, the filth and blood of war.

This is the America of the future, where Roman Catholic and Mason, Protestant and Jew, trader and educator, strive only to outdo each other in raising yet greater temples of worship, study, fraternity and commerce. Slowly, through the grinding passage of the years, the dream is coming true, and St. Louis now holds forth the brightest herald of that golden dawning. Many have not lived to see this thing for which they strove greatly. But on the Lindell boulevard skyline which is springing aloft will be written their shining epitaph: "They labored well."

WAR PREVENTION AND EDUCATION.

Does the problem of preventing war call for a "mental revolution" on the part of the people? Is it the people rather than their Governments who must be educated to oppose war? Where does the need of education in international politics lie—in the people or in professional diplomacy?

Dr. Henry Jackson, Washington educator, speaking before the Pan-Pacific Educational Conference, assumes that responsibility in war making lies in popular ignorance of international affairs. Because of his belief that the problem of preventing war calls for a mental revolution on the part of the people, he proposes a public school course in international ethics.

If such a course would do no good certainly its only harm would be as a consumer of time. But the problem of peace, so far as the people are concerned, is not one of ethics. It is a problem of knowledge of facts and the ability to build accurate conclusions upon them in disregard of the clatter and chicanery of partisanism and free of the primordial prejudice which inflames the Chinese mob against the "foreign devil."

International ethics and international politics are Greek to the citizen who is ignorant of the first principles of domestic politics, and most of our school graduates are. Let's not have less international education in the schools, but more education in the science of government and more stimulation to induce the student to read and investigate for himself.

FANCIES—IN AUGUST.

I.

THE air most pensive is today.
The trees are still. They seem to say
The year is at its bloom,
And in this hour of gorgeous pause
It searches deeply for the cause
Of Winter's pending doom.

II.

Wide spreads the sky, a desert tract,
And the pilgrim clouds, in robes of white,
Betake their way, with the winds of God,
To rest in the courts of night.

We have no more picturesque American than Gen. Charles G. Dawes. Here is a characteristic anecdote from his published reminiscences of the war, in which he acted as purchasing agent for the American expeditionary force:

"Gen. Pershing by no means overlooks the important relations of some little things to the general scheme. His mind is certainly open to details, no matter what the surroundings. After he had finished his conference with Gen. Foch he was standing across the road from me and some Frenchmen, with Gen. Harbord, waiting for Foch to take his automobile for his trip to Abbeville to see Haig. I saw him looking at me, notwithstanding the sound of the cannon, with a look of mingled friendliness, admonition and concern. * * * It led me to make a hasty self-appraisal of my attitude, in which, however, I could surmise no fault. He spoke to Harbord and the latter walked across the road to me. As Harbord carefully buttoned up my overcoat, which was opened, including the hooks at the top, he murmured in my ear: 'This is a hell of a job for the chief of staff, but the General told me to do it.' Some soldiers told me that in England there was a kodak taken of John with one breast pocket unbuttoned. For this picture I am going to search that country—to use it for justifiable defensive purposes."

Sir: A celebrated St. Louis lawyer was engaged on a case by a large drug company to fight a copyright case for them. They had been refused a decision on a trade-mark for "Limestone" mineral water on the grounds that it contained no limestone, and here is part of the brief he prepared in reply:

"Ivory soap has no ivory in it; Gold Dust washing powder is not made of gold; Old Crow whisky was not made from crows. There is no bull in Bull Durham. Royal baking powder is not used exclusively by royalty, nor is Cream baking powder made of cream. Pearline contains no pearls, and White Rock mineral water no rocks. There is no cream in cream of tartar, in cold cream or in chocolate creams; no milk in milk of magnesia, in milk weed or in cocoanut. These are all as remote from milk as the cowslip. There is no grape in grapefruit; no bread in breadfruit. A pineapple is neither pine nor apple. A prickly pear is not a pear, an alligator pear is neither pear nor alligator; apple butter is not butter, and all the butter is taken out of buttermilk. Therefore, why should we be denied the right to have this trade mark registered?" KOAJ.

BEAUTY.

The Secret of Acquiring and Maintaing It.

By Babette de Cookie,

Beauty Adviser to the Duchess of Jazzo.

It is only natural for woman to yearn to be beautiful. For beauty is that priceless gift of the gods, with which few women are blessed. Fortunate are the few thusly endowed. It is an undeniable fact that vanity is woman's ruling passion. Also, it is an undeniable fact that all men, not merely the majority, prefer a woman with beauty rather than a woman with brains. Small wonder, then, that woman should covet beauty. And let me state right here that without health there can be no beauty. It is absolutely essential. Without health there can be no fair complexion, radiating youth; no soft, pink cheeks nor sparkling eyes. Yea, verily, beauty is more than skin deep where there is health. Exercise and food are the two greatest and safest beauty promoters. This article is written expressly for women at whose birth the Goddess of Beauty forgot to preside. Let them conscientiously follow the instructions herewith given and the results obtained will be most gratifying; first granting, however, that they possess at least a passable looking face, at which an ordinary person can gaze without feeling sorry for the owner of it. For, when a woman will honestly admit to herself that her face is her misfortune (which few ever do), then for her there is no hope. Instructions, cold creams, specialists and beauty appliances and paraphernalia will avail her nothing.

THE FACE IN GENERAL.

To begin with, it is most important to know that every woman possesses a face. Some, however, have two—the one they were born with (facia naturalata) and the one they paint on themselves (facia artificialata).

Care of the Face—The face should be kept clean. When it needs a washing, give it one. Don't powder it instead.

The Food—The food consumed should always be sanitary, substantial and must possess the proper amount of calories and carbohydrates. But does the average girl or woman care one whit about this? No. After working all morning in an office, when lunchtime arrives, she will trip off to a soda fountain or some tea shop, instead of going to an honest-to-goodness restaurant. She will dine on chocolate sodas, cream puffs or cherry parfaits, instead of soup, beans, spinach and kidney stew. As a result, her complexion becomes sallow, and she suffers from anemia. To the woman who would be beautiful, let me say that a square meal will do her more good than all the cosmetics in the world.

Exercise—It really is astonishing to know what a prodigious amount of time most women spend exercising—their tongues. Indulge frequently in strenuous exercises, such as doing the family wash, scrubbing floors, beating rugs and also your husband, if you have one. Irish women possess the most rugged, finely developed physiques in the world. Why? Because they not only exercise their rights, but also their lefts. Swimming will do wonders. Don't be one of those whose aquatic activities consist of promenading up and down the beach attired in deshabille affairs. Get in the water. Don't be afraid of it.

Events in the Social World

Many Girls of the "Sub Deb" Class Plan to Postpone Their Debuts and Spend Some Time in the Various Finishing Schools and Colleges.

EACH year many girls belonging to the so-called "sub-deb" class decide to postpone their debuts for a year or more in order that they may spend time in Eastern finishing schools and colleges, and this year the roll of those who have chosen higher education in preference to the pleasures of a gay social season is unusually extensive, including the names of daughters of many prominent St. Louis families.

Miss Mary Virginia Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cummings Collins, 20 Lenox place, will enter the Finch School in New York; Miss Marion Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Wilson, 14 Windermere place, is planning to attend Wellesley; Miss Ruth Bass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Bass, 4651 Lindell boulevard, will go to Vassar College, which will also claim Miss Margaret Brooker of Brentmoor Park; Miss Emma Zimmerer, 5142 Waterman avenue; Miss Dorothea Nagel, 44 Westmoreland drive, and probably Miss Marjorie Lang of 5965 West Cabanne place, Miss Mary Hitchcock, 5363 Waterman avenue, and many others.

Three Going to Smith.

Among those who will probably go to Smith College in September are Miss Mary Frances Dickson, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Dickson; Miss Julia Marceline Reyburn, daughter of Mrs. Charles F. Sparks, and Miss Dorothy Claggett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Claggett.

Other schools will receive their quota of St. Louis girls, for Miss Frances Bradshaw of 5130 Washington boulevard plans to enter National Park School in Washington; Miss Claire Garneau will return to the Bronson School in New York; Miss Elizabeth Robert will attend Briarcliffe Manor School in New York; Miss Helen Josephine Rhoades, 6363 Waterman avenue, is enrolled with the Sullins College students at Bristol, Va.; Miss Mabel Nichols, 7019 Washington boulevard, expects to attend Pine Manor in Wellesley, Mass.; Miss Sarah Boogher, 6214 Waterman avenue, will enter Wells College, Aurora, N. Y.; and Miss Margaret Chandler of 6247 Waterman avenue is going to Miss Wright's school at Bryn Mawr.

Bennett's school has among its prospective entrants, Miss Margaret Lyles Pedigo of 6306 McPherson avenue and Miss Jane McElroy of 5933 Forest Park boulevard. Miss Mabel Thompson of 5045 Lindell boulevard will go to school in Rome, Italy.

Washington U. Attracts Many.

Meantime our own Washington University will have a large number of girls who wish to remain at home and at the same time continue their studies. Miss Roberta Katherine Bryars of 5024 Raymond avenue will take advantage of the honorary scholarship which she earned at Mary Institute last year; and Miss Mary Dell Woods, of 7069 Kingsbury boulevard; Miss Frances Susan Henry, 3939 Westminster place; Miss Elva Louise Ruler, 6335 Waterman avenue, Miss Winifred Church, 611 Linden drive, St. Louis County, Miss Olive Isabel Oatman, 5330 Pershing avenue, will no doubt attend Washing University also.

Miss Hadley Richardson has chosen Sept. 3 as the date of her marriage to Ernest Miller Hemmingway of Chicago. The wedding will take place at the First Presbyterian Church of Hortons Bay, Mich., at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Miss Richardson will have her sister, Mrs. Roland G. Usher, and Mrs. George J. Breaker as her matrons of honor, and Miss Ruth Bradford and Miss Katherine F. Smith of Chicago as bridesmaids. William B. Smith of St. Louis and William Dodge Horne of Yonkers, N. J., will be groomsmen, and John L. Pentecost II and Howell G. Jenkins of Chicago, George J. Breaker of St. Louis and Charles H. Hopkins of Muskogee, Ok., will serve as ushers.

Miss Richardson is the daughter of the late Mrs. Florence Wyman Richardson. She was educated at Mary Institute and Bryn Mawr and made an informal debut a few years ago. Mr. Hemmingway is the son of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Hemmingway of Oak Park, Ill. He served with the ambulance corps during the war, and later attended the University of Padua in Italy. He was the first American to be wounded in Italy and was decorated by the King.

Miss Richardson and her sister, Mrs. Usher, are the guests of Mrs. J. W. Charles at her summer home near Charlevoix.

Mrs. H. C. Korndoerfer of 5548 Delmar boulevard has as her guest, Mrs. Harry Sudekum of Nashville, Tenn.

Miss Katherine Vest, 21 Thornby place, whose marriage to Leslie Williams of Memphis, Tenn., will take place Saturday, Sept. 10, has chosen Miss Mary Gilmer Moore as her maid of honor, and will have as her bridemaids Miss Mary Dynham of Summit, N. J., and Miss Ursula Fay of Chicago. Dr. Thomas M. Coppedge of Memphis will be best man and the groomsmen will be the bride's cousin, George Vest, and Alexander Lewis of Webster Groves. Little Sallie Harmsberger of New York, cousin of the bride, will serve as flower girl. The ceremony will be at 8 o'clock in the evening at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. George P. B. Jackson, the Rev. Dr. William Crowe of Westminster Presbyterian Church officiating. The couple will reside in Little Rock, Ark.

Announcement has been made of the approaching marriage of Mrs. L. O. Crall of 6126 Washington boulevard and J. Handley Yore, 4458 Washington boulevard. Mrs. Crall is the widow of the late Dr. L. O. Crall. Mr. Yore is a member of an old St. Louis family. The exact date for the wedding has not been set, but it will take place within the next two weeks.

Miss Fannie Land of Tulsa, Ok., arrived this morning to be the guest for some time of Miss Naomi Brown of 16 Portland place.

Invitations have been issued for a party with which Mr. and Mrs. George M. Burbach of 7012 Washington boulevard will entertain Tuesday evening at the Algonquin Club in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Garfield D. Merner, 7000 Washington boulevard. Mr. and Mrs. Merner will depart Thursday for Paris, France, where they expect to spend the next year.

Daugherty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Daugherty of 4220 Folsom avenue, were married. The Rev. W. J. Brown of the Shaw Avenue Methodist Church, officiated. The young couple will make their home in St. Louis after a wedding trip.

Mrs. Harry Byers Alban, who has been the guest of Mr. C. A. Alban of Clifton Heights for several weeks, will depart Wednesday for the East to meet her husband, Lieutenant Alban, upon his return from an African cruise.

Mrs. John T. Donegan of 4155 Laclede avenue is visiting relatives in Philadelphia and New York. She will return early in September.

Madame Stella DeMette, St. Louis opera singer, former leading contralto of the San Carlo organization, who has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. De Mette, of 3809 Hartford street, departed today in company with her mother for Mexico City to fill an engagement in the National Opera House in connection with the Mexican centennial celebration. She is to sing this winter with the Boston Grand Opera Company.

Miss Grace Girardi, 406 Clara avenue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Girardi, of the Westmoreland Hotel, and Pope Boeckler, of 5129 Washington boulevard, were married last Wednesday at the Maple Avenue Methodist Church, the Rev. E. Coombie Smith officiating. Miss Amy Creveling attended the bride, Rowe Sutter served as best man. Mr. and Mrs. Boeckler will be at home after Oct. 1, at 6625 Kingsbury place.

Announcement was made last week of the engagement of Miss Leonora Strassburger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Strassburger of 6174 Westminster place, to Norman Hascall of Toledo, O. The wedding will probably take place in the spring. Miss Strassburger was educated at Mary Institute and made her debut two years ago. She has twice served as maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball. Mr. Hascall is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Eddy Hascall of Toledo. He is a graduate of the University of Ohio.

An out-of-town wedding of interest in St. Louis will be that of Miss Katherine Robinson, daughter of Mrs. John Marshall Robinson of Washington, D. C., and Hunt Benoist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Benoist of 4632 Pershing avenue, which will take place at Jamesport, R. I., on Aug. 27. The ceremony will be a quiet one, only members of the two families attending. Miss Robertson will have as her attendant Miss Evelina Cleaves, daughter of Admiral Cleaves, and Blaine Mallon of Washington will serve Mr. Benoist as best man. Miss Robinson is known to many St. Louisans, as she visited in St. Louis last year as a representative of the Washington Junior League and again last April, when she was a bridesmaid at the wedding of Miss Miriam Benoist and Lieutenant-Commander Patrick N. Lynch Bellinger. The young couple will reside in Greensboro, N. C., where Mr. Benoist now resides. Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Benoist will depart for Jamesport Aug. 24 to attend the ceremony.

Miss Hazel Price of 5033 Cates avenue has returned from a tour with friends through Canada and the Eastern States.

News of St. Louisans at the Summer Resorts

WEQUETONSING, Mich., Aug. 20.—H. J. Bradley, of Chicago, son of C. M. Bradley, president of the Wequetonsing Golf Club, this week won the club championship by defeating W. L. Ross of Toledo in the finals, after a picturesque play before a large gallery. In the semi-finals, Bradley downed George Mattis, of Champaign, Ill., and Ross beat O. R. Ryan, of Streetor, Ill. Others who made good showings were E. C. Klipstein, E. C. Thomas, St. Louis; C. M. Bradley, E. N. Mathews, Chicago; Victor Pattengill, Lansing, Mich., and Dr. Samuel H. Holley, Lexington, Ky.

An amusing incident in the championship tournament resulted from the wearing of a great flowing green necktie by Holley when he played Ryan. After he had been beaten, Holley took the tie over to Ryan's cottage and made him a present of it, and next day he appeared on the course displaying an equally large bright red tie and declared he never would wear a green tie when he was playing against an Irishman. Ross, who lost the finals to Bradley, is president of the Inverness Golf Club at Toledo, whose course was the scene of the play for the western championship last year.

Entries all are in for play for the Bradley cup as follows: George Ravold, E. C. Thomas, E. H. Steedman, St. Louis; Temple Robinson, Louisville; Dr. J. R. Cowan, Danville, Ky.; M. A. Hanna, Columbus; J. S. Pratt, W. L. Ross, Toledo, Ohio; C. C. McKinney, E. N. Mathews, Chicago; C. B. Wood, Delavan; G. M. Mattis, Champaign; O. R. Ryan, Streetor, Ill.; David Ingle, Evansville, Ind.; Max Layne, Helena Mont.

Bradley Has Low Score.

The race for the season's lowest score on the Wequetonsing links is almost over, with Champion J. H. Bradley best man at 57, and J. S. McIntyre of St. Louis next with 64. Others in the running are: Wade Childress, Russell E. Lortz, St. Louis; F. M. Biggar, W. K. Nottingham, F. M. Lee, Kansas City, Mo.; O. C. Mosman, Wells Sinclair, F. J. Dickman, John Clark Fetzer, W. M. Fetzer, Huntington Eldridge, William Logan, Chicago; D. H. Hodgman, Moline, Ill.; W. L. Ross, John S. Pratt, Toledo, O.; A. J. A. Alexander, Spring Station, Ky.; Max Layne, Helena, Mont., and E. H. Brown, Indianapolis.

Fifteen hundred different players have used the "Weque" course thus far this season, the season memberships and those for shorter terms being double those of last season. Peter W. Henry of Cleveland, professional on the "Weque" course, is entered for the Western open championship at Cleveland Aug. 24-26.

Thus far, August has been gay socially in Wequetonsing and at Roaring Rock. Dancing and afternoon bridge and teas are claiming a good deal of attention. Mrs. W. K. Nottingham of Cincinnati and Mrs. Robert W. Dittmann of St. Louis gave a dance and bridge party recently at Wequetonsing, the following guests being present: Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Becktold, Mrs. C. M. Biggers, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bluthardt, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Biggar, Mrs. Mortimer Platt, Kansas City, Mo.; Donald Wiley, Mrs. Wiley, W. K. Nottingham, Cincinnati, O.; Mrs. E. M. Eaton, J. E. Eaton, Kalamazoo; Miss Mary C. Holton, St. Johns, Mich., and Paul W. Fowler, Wilmette, Ill.

Mrs. C. W. Condie of St. Louis, who is summering at Roaring Brook, gave a dinner dance recently for her daughter, Miss Virginia Condie. About 25 guests were present. During the dance Mrs. Eugene H. Angert of St. Louis conducted a punch party. Mrs. Condie is one of the committee of seven who were in charge of a bridge party given Wednesday at Roaring Brook for the benefit of the tennis courts of the Roaring Brook Association.

St. Louis Girls at Pinewood.

The Misses Marion Rombauer and Virginia Becker of St. Louis are among 115 girls who are enjoying the pleasures of Pinewood Camp.

Mrs. Fermin Desloge and Mrs. Annie Greer, both of St. Louis, each gave a delightful bridge and luncheon for a large number of friends in the parlors of the Hotel Wequetonsing last week.

Among those who have been members of dinner parties recently at the Wequetonsing Hotel are Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Wilson, C. E. Thomas, E. R. Thomas, Thomas Pettus, Julia Wells, Richard Simmons, J. F. Brown Jr., Edward S. Manny, Fred G. Ziebig, St. Louis. Mrs. W. H. Morgens, J. Allen Morgens and Miss June Morgens of St. Louis are passing some time at the Colonial Hotel, and Woodsaw Woods and James H. Woods of St. Louis are registered at Ramona Park Hotel.

The latest cottage arrivals at Wequetonsing are Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Nelsonof Bunceton, Mo., and S. B. Montgomery of Quincy, Ill., banker, who arrived Thursday morning.

St. Louisans at South Haven Take "Spins" in Flying Boat.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SOUTH HAVEN, Mich., Aug. 20.—The flying boat "New Orleans," piloted by Ray Applegate, swooped down on Lake Michigan just off the beach of Monroe Park here Tuesday morning. In the boat was J. T. Milliken Jr. of St. Louis. J. F. Kretzer, captain of the swimming squad of the M. A. A., St. Louis, went up in the machine for a spin over the lake. The "New Orleans" is an old navy craft of the Curtiss F-boat type.

Mrs. A. D. Grant and a number of her St. Louis friends here banded together to give the "grand razz" to the newly married Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Campbell of 3655 West Pine boulevard. The couple were married only a few days ago, and are spending the first part of their honeymoon at "Grant's Camp," in Monroe Park. Mrs. Campbell was formerly Miss Florence Blankenship of 3705 Washington avenue.

When Mr. and Mrs. Campbell arrived they were met at the steamship docks by a taxicab chartered and decorated especially for the occasion.

Couple Wedded at Charlevoix, to Make Home in St. Louis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHARLEVOIX, Mich., Aug. 20.—An unusual open-air wedding, at which beauty and wealth combined to make the affair attractive, and at which occupants of an airplane swooped down and showered the bride with flowers, was solemnized on the lawn before the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Armstrong, when their daughter, Dorothy, became the bride of George Edward Wantz, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wantz of Oak Park, Ill., who is head of the St. Louis office of the Victor X-Ray Corporation of Chicago, of which his father is chief executive.

Dorothy Ann Wood of Chicago and William G. King of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra played Lohengrin's Wedding March, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. James A. Smith of Charlevoix. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wantz, Miss Elizabeth Wantz, James Crighton, Oak Park, Ill.; Mrs. Ralph DeVries, Mrs. Russell Fouts, Grand Rapids, Mich. The grandmothers of bride and groom were present.

After a trip throuhg the East Mr. and Mrs. Wantz will reside at The Argonne Apartments in St. Louis. The bride is a graduate of the University of Michigan.

Several St. Louisans Among Vacationists at Petoskey.

PETOSKEY, Mich., Aug. 20.—Lee Goessling, who has been here a month with his parents, who are summering here, has returned to St. Louis, but expects to come up again in the fall. E. M. Taylor of St. Louis, who comes to this region for his summer vacations, has arrived for a stay of several weeks, and Mrs. Hattie B. Levy of St. Louis has joined her sisters at the Foster cottage.

Misses Rebecca and Emma Levy of St. Louis entertained a number of friends at a luncheon recently. Among the guests were Miss Hattie Cook, Miss Clara Cook and Mrs. L. D. Loevy of St. Louis. Miss Cora Black of St. Louis has arrived for the late season, and is a guest at the C. M. Mattison home.

Miss Katherine Malone and Mrs. Thomas Hogan of St. Louis were among the guests at a luncheon and bridge party this week.

Dr. A. B. King of St. Louis, who is summering at Elk Rapids, drove up with a party of nine St. Louis friends and passed the day in Petoskey.

St. Louisans recently registered at Petoskey hotels:

You Wouldn't Crush Your Fingers in a Vise!

Yet ordinary shoes often do that to your toes. Cantilever Shoes, in contrast, have toe room aplenty. The outline of the inner sole follows the line of the foot; the toes are free to point straight ahead as they naturally should.

Cantilever Shoes give unusual comfort without the sacrifice of good looks. The lasts are patterned on trim lines; the shoes are made of the most popular leathers.

The extra broad tongue is padded so that the shoe can be laced tightly without binding the instep. Pulling the laces raises up the flexible shank to fit the foot arch snugly and give restful support to the foot.

The flexibility of the shank permits the arch muscles to exercise and grow strong. Blood circulation is encouraged. The result is a healthy foot, strong and free from pain, just as nature intended. The ordinary type of shoe, with rigid shank, frequently causes muscular weakness, through disuse, and impeded blood circulation.

If your feet get tired and strained, Cantilever comfort will refresh you.

Try on the Cantilever Shoe and note its snug fitting, restful arch.

Beginning Monday at 8:30 A. M.—The Premier August Economy Event

Sale of $75 to $125 Coats

Over 800 in All—at the Astonishingly Low Price of

$48

We announce this sale after weeks of preparation, with the assurance that it can be termed without exaggeration—

A Coat Sale Beyond Comparison

You may marvel, and rightly so, at how we can offer such extraordinary savings so early in the season. This is how we accomplished the feat. Seven or eight weeks ago, at a time when manufacturers were experiencing their dullest period, we induced several noted makers to eliminate practically every cent of profit on this special order of Coats, our purpose being to make this stimulating August Economy Event the biggest sale of its kind in years. We, too, have disregarded any thought of profit. We resolved to have this sale go down in merchandising annals as an incomparable triumph. Come down bright and early Monday morning. See these wonderful Coats. Convince yourself of the extraordinary nature of the values. We are confident you will buy and be fully satisfied in every respect.

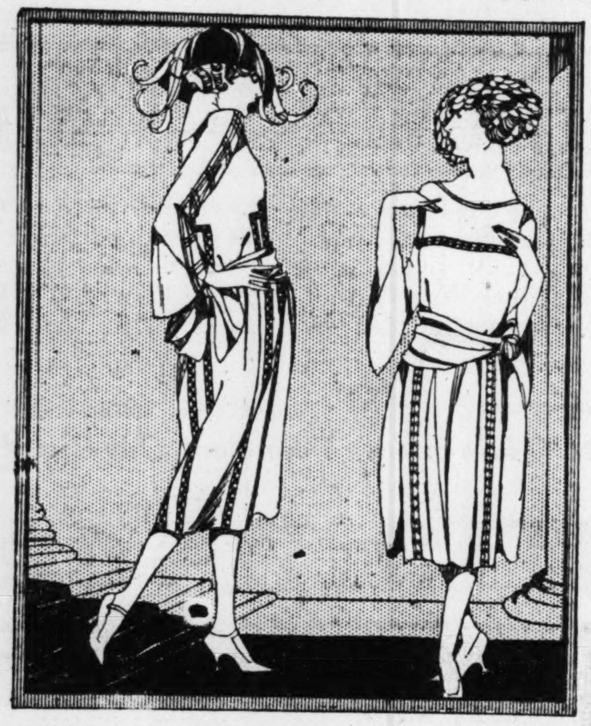
Fascinating Fall Frocks

For Women Who Appreciate Unusual Values



$45 and $49.50

ILLUSTRATED at the left is a black Canton crepe, lined with scarlet chiffon which peeps from the latticed seams and traces a square pattern on the wide sleeve. Simple, of course—but it tells the story of the new Fall Frocks.

At the right is another beauty from our vivid array. Its lines are so simple that only a master designer could have achieved it. Both sides of crepe-back satin are used in this striking model.

It would be impossible, of course, to describe our array of beautiful Gowns at these prices, because each has its own particular charm. Just one common trait do they possess—every model is an unusual value. Cantons, crepe-back satins and combinations of chiffon and Canton are included in this remarkable offering. (Third Floor.)

New Fall Suits of Definite Charm

WHEN the first cool breezes blow you won't feel well dressed unless you have one of the stunning Suits we are presenting now at extremely moderate prices. The new colors, in brown Autumn tones and black, are shown in newly perfected fabrics. While you are not hurried there is this notable opportunity to select carefully, after studying the great variety of styles we are showing.

The tailored types, chic and snappy in style, are just right for rather formal wear, more ornamental models are beautiful and becoming for more dressy occasions. Smart fur trimming adds luxurious beauty to many models. $59.75, $79.50, $89.75 up to $375.00 (Third Floor.)

Your Suit or Overcoat Made to Your Measure

Hundreds of new Fall and Winter patterns will be here—you select the pattern you like best from the full piece—expert tailors will finish it to your measurements.

The Usual Price Would Be $50 to $75—in This Sale at

$36.50

Not since before the war have we been able to hold a "Made-to-Measure Sale" that would be of UNUSUAL interest to our patrons. We waited until we could obtain fine woolens at a price and could secure the co-operation of a maker upon whom we could depend to uphold the high standard of workmanship for which our Men's Clothing is celebrated.

A 7-Day Offer

We have only 1000 of these garment lengths. They are such excellent values at $36.50 that we know they will be snapped up by the first 1000 value-versed men who read this announcement. Therefore, we must limit this sale to seven days, as we cannot obtain any more at so low a price.

Stout men, slim men, short men, tall men—every size and build of man can have his Suit tailored to order without extra charge.

St. Louis Girls Take Part in Annual Pageant at Bay View.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BAY VIEW, Mich., Aug. 20.—The annual Bay View assembly closed the most successful season in recent years last night when the final concert of the four which constituted a two-day festival of music drew to a close. Some of the best musical talent in the Middle West was on the program. Aside from the music festival Dr. Nathaniel Butler was the stellar attraction of the final week. The assembly will not disband, however, until Sept. 1, added entertainment having been arranged for.

Many people from 15 states, among them St. Louisans, took part in the annual pageant at Bay View. The pageant told the story of the struggles of the Pilgrim Fathers and was intensely patriotic. Miss Esther Bloomfield Merriman of Chicago was in charge of the training and took the part of "Hope."

Helen Kleinschmidt of St. Louis was one of the skaters representing "North Wind," and Laura Chandler of Kansas City took the part of "Faith." Edith and Grace Whitmer of St. Louis were among those representing "Pestilence." Sallie B. and Effie G. Powers of St. Louis took part in a group dance representing "Memories," and Eleanor Kleinschmidt of St. Louis was in a scarf dance representing "Waves."

A jolly party from St. Louis at "Inglenook," on the campus, consists of Mrs. P. G. Gunn, Philip A. Gunn, Richard Gunn, Miss A. O. Trout, Miss J. G. Dunn, and Miss M. A. Dunn. Mrs. Madaline Lasar of St. Louis is at the Kenilworth, and these St. Louisans are at Terrace Inn: Miss Augusta Schaffer, Mrs. W. T. Nock, Mr. and Mrs. C. Stocker, Jane Elizabeth Stocker, Janet Cocke, Mary Cocke.

Cottagers newly registered include Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Morgan, Brooks and Paul Morgan. Carrie E. Griffiths and Eleanor Graves of St. Louis are recent arrivals.

Mrs. I. P. Lusk and Mrs. C. R.

Mahogany Davenport and Arm Chair to match; spring cushion seats covered in tapestry	$137.50

Drapery Special

Sixty pieces of fabrics, including velvets, armures, reps, plain and figured fine damasks and brocades. These fabrics may be used for furniture covering and draperies. Many very fine fabrics in this lot priced as low as one-fourth of the original factory cost; some as low as 50c a yard. Also quite a few pieces of sunfast drapery are included in the lot. All pieces carefully measured and specially marked "so much for the piece," in lengths ranging from two to eight yards. A great opportunity to secure enough material for upholstering a chair or davenport or enough drapery for a window at a bargain.

Wild's Printed Linoleum

A wide range of patterns included in this lot of printed Linoleum at.......... 89c Square Yard

There is more to buying Linoleum than choosing the quality and patterns. There's the laying, which must be done right, and then it must be cared for properly. We are experienced in these things. Ask about them.

Thrift Terms A dignified method of buying house furnishings which recognizes your credit power fairly. Very few houses, office or commercial buildings are sold on a "strictly cash basis." Why? Because the BUYER knows it doesn't pay him. The seller usually lends him the money to buy the property.

We wish to lend you money to buy our merchandise.

Swimming Chief Pastime of Young St. Louisans at Harbor Point.

HARBOR POINT, MICH., Aug. 20.—Swimming in the harbor at the end of the Harbor Point dock near the clubhouse and diving from the 14-foot elevation there has been the principal pastime of the younger St. Louis set ever since it arrived here, and the impetus given to the sport by the unusually warm waters in July has not been allowed to slacken with the cooler weather of August.

Harry Richards of St. Louis is the instructor, and youngsters not yet in their teens have become expert swimmers and divers this summer. Richards is as brown as any of the primeval settlers of the Point, and some of the children are about as brown. When the Post-Dispatch reporter debarked from the ferry Richards was giving pointers to Frederick Meier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Meier; Jack Curby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Curby, and John Sluder, son of Dr. and Mrs. Greenfield Sluder. Duncan Meier Jr., was there, too, and Duncan Dobson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Dobson, also was a pupil.

More than 100 St. Louisans have been swimming at the Point this season, and more than a score have been taking lessons. Among the swimmers and divers are Duncan Meier, Henry Meier, Miss Ada Johnson, Miss Mary Louise Cotter, Miss Eva Cotter, Miss Vesta Reed, Miss Margaret Shapleigh, J. B. Kennard Jr., Miss Melissa Kennard, Miss Dorothy Dobson, Miss Isabelle Bond, Miss Mary Scudder Bond, Miss Virginia Sluder, Miss Martha Sluder and John Sluder.

George P. Whitelaw of St. Louis has won the Claypool cup, time-honored gold trophy offered every season by Newton Claypool of Denver, from a large field.

St. Louis entries for the match play on the Harbor Point course are: C. S. Edgar, Dr. F. E. Woodruff, R. C. Dobson, Dr. S. Wheeler Bond and T. Pettus. Miss Mary McKeen and Miss Elizabeth Kennard of St. Louis have entered for the match play for women.

Recent arrivals at the Point and guests at the clubhouse include Mrs. M. C. Bay, Miss Margaret Lyons, Mrs. T. J. Moss, Mrs. A. V. Morrow, Miss Katherine Smith, Mrs. B. B. Culver, H. L. Block, Mrs. Arthur Hiemenz, Martin Lammert, Martin Lammert Jr., Mrs. Franklin Morey, Mrs. F. A. Leland, William Pape, Charles Evans Jr., Guilford Duncan, Katherine T. Engel, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Gannet, Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Lake Jr., Fred L. Lake III., R. C. Dobson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Meier, G. A. Ross, Paul Simmons, St. Louis.

Summer Colony at Narragansett Attends Annual Lawn Fete.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 20.—The annual fair and lawn fete of St. Philomena's Church was held Wednesday and Thursday afternoons on the grounds opposite the Casino, and was largely patronized by members of the summer colony.

MID-AUGUST IS GAY SEASON AT RESORTS ALONG NORTH SHORE

St. Louis Well Represented in the Various Summer Colonies Assembled in New England.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 20.—Mid-August finds New England summer resorts at the height of their gayety. The North Shore of Massachusetts, a section of beautiful estates, always goes in strongly for horticulture. Each Saturday during the season two or more of the gardens have been opened to the general public for the nominal fee of 50 cents, the receipts going to the National Civic Federation. Now the time has come for the flower shows, and next Tuesday the largest of the summer will be given at the North Shore Horticultural Society rooms in Manchester. Among those to exhibit will be Mrs. George A.

"AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION"

DR. F. J. GUILBAULT, OPTOMETRIST and OPTICIAN

The old adage that "An Ounce of Prevention Is Better Than a Pound of Cure" applies with especial force to your eyes.

If you are nearsighted or farsighted, if your vision is growing blurred or indistinct, and particularly if you are a sufferer from headaches that do not yield to ordinary treatment, you should have your eyes examined at once.

My glasses have been worn for years by thousands of people right here in St. Louis who have found through my services better vision and complete relief from the sufferings and annoyance of defective vision.

TO SEND MARKET DATA BY RADIO TELEPHONE

St. Louis University Will Send Daily Returns for 150 Miles, Commencing Tomorrow.

A radio telephone report, which will cover the important features of the St. Louis livestock, grain and provision markets will be sent out daily by the Department of Science of St. Louis University, beginning tomorrow. The messages will be broadcast promptly at 2 p. m., a wave length of 350 meters being used. The service is intended for the country tributary to St. Louis, for a radius of 150 miles, going to the same receiving and distributing stations that now are receiving the daily weather forecasts and river gauge readings distributed by the university's radio telephone station.

The new service is an expansion of the weather service instituted three months ago, and will be a resume of the compilations of the various branches of the United States Bureau of Markets. It will consist of statements of receipts of cattle, sheep and hogs at the National Stockyards, condition of the market and prices. The expected shipments for the following day, both in East St. Louis and Chicago, also will be given. In the grain department will be given local receipts of wheat, corn and oats, with the offerings at country points, demand and closing market prices, both cash and futures.

The provision market report will be confined to staples and seasonable fruits, with the Chicago potato market, which is considered basic, added.

The addition of the market reports is in compliance with requests from many of the more than 100 communities now receiving the radio telephone weather forcast service of the university, sent out at 10 a. m. daily.

AFTER-WAR MATERALISM DISCUSSED IN LATEST BOOK OF "THE DUSTER"

stability. There is a rush for excitement, a taste for cocktails and cocaine, a constant winding up of the brain to experience reaction. The whole secret of happiness, quietness at the center, is lost. The one great reward of existence, a sense of growth, is forgotten." Our Duster is at times difficult to follow, tripping from Goethe to Bolshevism, and from the Gladstones to social uplift with grasshopper leaps; but in the main he manages to keep his set purpose before him—namely the production of evidence that this is an age of cynical disregard for the verities of existence.

He is, of course, a great admirer of the old guard, of Queen Victoria and all of her crinolined Duchesses and this patent adulation of other times, other morals, rather offsets his value as a critic of actuality. He forgets the thousand and one things which stand between us and the quaint stability of bygone times—such apparent trifles as the invention of telephone hastening up meetings where our grandparents had to make long stage coach journeys to see their loved ones, such disturbing eye-openers to youth as the modern newspaper, such factors as the dawn of feminism.

Chapter on Womanhood.

Indeed, the superficiality with which the author flicks here and there with his duster is nowhere more apparent than in a chapter on womanhood and which he rather cryptically prefaces with the Nietzchean aphorism, "The mother of debauchery is not joy, but joylessness" (what an excellent reminder, by the way, for our prohibition brethren!) "Women," he says, "are becoming bad. There is a moral declension. It has nothing to do with economics. It is a spirit appearing in the richest and in the poorest. In every circle of the community and in all conditions, morality has lost its grip. One markedly new thing in English life has accompanied the decline in morals and manners. This new thing is a new spirit in women. Our age has a new character: The Woman Who Knocks About; A few years ago the London suburbs were the strongholds of family life. Today many of the women go to London almost as regularly as their husbands go to the city. The vice of our public streets has undergone a remarkable change. There is a new race of immoral women. They come from offices and from shops. They are young and the glamor of the summit has bewitched them. Ask them what they want and they will tell you 'A good time.' That is all. They have ceased to feel the smallest respect for virtue. The womanhood of the nation is becoming corrupt. All this means that the great central ideal of the human race, a pure womanhood, is ceasing to inspire the heart of mankind."

But does it? Isn't it far more likely that what is happening with the women of England, as with the women of other nations, is the direct and logical outcome of female emancipation? We cannot have it both ways. Victorian staying at home is now anathema to every girl of spirit who believes that she is as good as any man. So out she goes into the world of personal experience.

Yet deplore as many may the undoubted slackening of morality that has attended the upraising of women to a status equal to that of men, and which may well endure for generation upon generation, the wise person is she who scans the horizon for the ultimate effect of that equalization and is not blinded by immediate symptoms. Our gentleman with the duster wants to go on dusting the glass over dolls, pure, corsetted but vacuous, oblivious to the fact that the forcible holding down of women to hearth and home in the past, cramping their minds and stunting their character and personality, has contributed widely to the general domestic distress marking this age.

But to proceed: "We are witnessing a new Drift Age in morals. A more likely danger to overtake the human race than Bolshevism, is destruction by pessimism. Moral langor means something more than a reversion to animalism; it means a descent into deviltry. We possess in place of an aristocracy of culture a powerful and synical plutocracy which is as wholly given to the worship of Mammon as any nation of heathen times. On the great bulk of the English people this has a vulgarizing effect—it makes them think highly of money and scornfully of culture; it makes them hot for self-indulgence and cold for self-development. The atmosphere of our day, lacking the vigor of a moral purpose, has the exhausting and atrophying closeness of a hot house. It preys upon the unconscious mind with a thousand suggestions making for self-indulgence. It wipes the slate clean of religion. It is an atmosphere inimical to moral health and absolutely destructive of spiritual aspiration. Love is a joke, one of the amusements, one of the sports, one of the adventures, one of the recreations of society. To take it seriously is provincial. There is only one reasonable pursuit—a good time. And this good time, this life of pleasure, of eating and drinking, of dancing and flirting, of crowds and crushes, of adventures in sex, of license and cynicism, of excitement and selfishness, of money and ostentation—what is it?

Proof of Seeking for Truth.

Well, well; but what are you going to do about it?

Even if all or even a goodly portion of our Duster's indictment of English, and indirectly of American society, were true, what next? The author, suffering from a Victorian complex, would have Fashion take a pull at itself and show the way to an Aristotlian existence of Higher Excellence, that the crowd might follow on. One fears that throughout his volume of sweeping statements, the Duster mixes up the workings of democracy with the publicity given a small proportion of the so-called best people, a confusing of factors which, added to the post-war moral turmoil, gives him his alarmist book. Compared with other times, this may well be an age of disillusion, of cynicism, of laughing at destiny, almost, one might say, of paganism.

But it is wrong to imagine that we are satisfied at its being so. The astounding all-round search for some sort of truth, the groping here and the groping there, the prominence given to religious discussion, the growth of new faiths and cults, such as spiritualism, all these prove the contrary. Whether Mrs. Asquith is picked up by a German officer or Diana Manners has a midnight bath or Col. Repington lunches with pretty women, makes not a ripple in the flowing current. The Duster exaggerates the importance of his own circle. He is one of those annoying people who want to get things settled before they die. His grandchildren will probably have reposed long in the grave ere the spiritual upheaval caused by the events of the last few animalistic years, propelled by the good Victorians as much as by any others, calms away into a happier and more enlightened age.

Stout
And Near-Stout
Women

IN this day of specialization, when people demand the most skillful treatment and most accurately made products, it is only natural for fully developed women to appreciate the service provided by this shop exclusively—especially designed garments for full-formed figures, ready for immediate wear.

Yes, there is a decided difference in these garments, designed over the Sveltline System, and those made for regular and extra sizes.

Sufficient length is provided from shoulders to waist so that the garments fit splendidly over the bust. Ample room is allowed also for the hips, which results in neat lines.

The buyers who make selections of the various garments devote their entire time and thought to the one question, that of purchasing garments with the very newest fabrics and colorings, chic styles and semi-visible lines that give a slenderized appearance.

Scores of ladies have been more than pleased with these specialized garments.

GERMAN OFFICER'S VIEW OF THE 35TH DIVISION IN ARGONNE

ican divisions were operating.

2. The worst reverse of Sept. 26 for the Kaiser's troops was the flattening out of the left of the First Guards Division and the driving of the division back against the Argonne—mainly the work of the Thirty-fifth Division

3. Although all American divisions east of the Argonne Forest were attacking with equal forces, approximately equal frontage and equal determination, the Germans considered that the "main attack" of Sept. 27 was along the Aire Valley, where the Thirty-fifth took Charpentry and Baulny and the Twenty-eighth captured Montblainville; on Sept. 28 they believed the "main attack" was again along the Aire, where the Thirty-fifth took Montrebeau Woods and the Twenty-eighth Division Apremont; Sept. 29 the "main blow" was directed at Exermont and delivered by the Thirty-fifth Division which, along with its sister division, the Twenty-eighth, "suffered exceedingly heavy losses."

These unintentional tributes from an enemy staff officer show the part the Missouri-Kansas National Guard division played in the battle of the Meuse-Argonne. It is a part of which every citizen of the two states may be proud.

Mother Hunting for Daughter.

Catherine Smythe, 15 years old, of Batesville, Ark., grew tired of country life and a week ago Friday she left home. Her mother, Mrs. Julia Smythe, is in St. Louis at the Portland Hotel in the hope that she may find some trace of her daughter. Catherine is described as being about 5 feet 6 inches tall and rather slender. She has blue eyes and light brown hair. She has been in St. Louis before, having attended the Sacred Heart Academy for three years.

Loyalty League Children Arrange Brilliant Program for Benefit of the Babies' Free Milk and Ice Fund

New Attractions Are Continually Being Added to Diversified Program of Next Saturday Evening at the Orpheum.

New attractions are continually being added to the unusually diversified program which Children of America Loyalty League will present at the Orpheum Theater next Saturday night for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund.

Pupils of Mme. Cirode's school of dancing will present the opening number, which is entitled "Statler Roof Garden Cabaret." It will consist of a series of cabaret acts, each given by a child artist. Among those who will participate in the number are: Carolyn Bialock, Virginia Volmer, Audrey Volmer, Viola Meier, Estelle Steinlage, Alys Maud Sebastian, Marion Ford, Audrey Weinsing, Eunice Rosenfeldt, Kathryn Hoerel, Bonita Freede, James Hunter, Lauryne Mittendorf, Florence Schuermen, Doris Kottemstett, Antoinette Wadsworth, Ruth Lee, Jim Cocoran, Mickel O'Connor, Leola Hunter, Alice Silverstein, Rosemary Powell, Corinne Vail, Mathilda Nothaker, Helen Helay, Eunice Heitmann, Violet Lueke, Alice O'Hare, Audrey Dennison, Viola Hunter, Jean Murdock, Ruth Wilshusen, Florence Petzold, Leona Mueller and Dorothy Hughes.

In the list of Miss Irma Summa's dancers who will present "Dance Divertisements" are the following children: Kathleen Wheeler, Virginia and Elizabeth Cave, Marjory Ammon, Audrey Logsdon, Louise Kanzuriff, Charlotte Anschuetz, Ruth Gruenert, Mary Frances Chadwick, Irene Eigelberger, Louise Thomas, Annette Warner and Mary Jane Lewis.

As has been stated before, the entire proceeds of the benefit are to be used for the purchasing of pure milk and free ice for children of the tenement districts. Everything in connection with the performance, including the Orpheum theater, its attaches, the vaudeville acts which will be presented, and the time and talents of those who are managing and presenting the program, are being donated in a sincere effort to aid the unfortunate little ones during these hot days. Over 300 children will be included in the cast, and every child has not only purchased its own tickets but has volunteered to dispose of at least $3.50 worth among friends.

Admission prices for the entertainment correspond to the regular Orpheum prices. Tickets are on sale at the Orpheum Theater box office.

WHOLESALE PRICES OF BEEF NEARLY AT PRE-WAR LEVEL

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Wholesale prices of dresseed beef in Eastern markets this week were down to within 2 cents of pre-war prices of 1913, the price decline during the year having been nearly 45 per cent, according to figures published today by the American Meat Packers' Institute. Average wholesale prices approximated 14 cents a pound during the week, against 20 cents in the same week of last year, and 15½ cents in 1916, it was stated.

Ordinary grade beef dropped 27 per cent during the last two weeks in the New York markets, and the next grade, medium, 19 per cent, only fancy beef prices holding "fairly firm," because of the limited quantities available, it was stated.

These figures should furnish consumers with opportunity for "bargains in beef," the institute statement said, "particularly the consumer who does not insist on fancy beef and the popular cuts therefrom."

OFFICERS OF NAVAL RESERVE WILL BE REDUCED ONE-HALF

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Reduction of the officer personnel of the naval reserve force by approximately one-half has been ordered by the Navy Department, as a retrenchment measure on recommendation of the general board. Reserve commissions in several of the staff corps have been abolished and all warrant officers in the reserve done away with.

There are now 26,500 reserve officers, including all classes. The new orders provide for reduction to the following totals: Line officers, 4500; medical officers, 300; supply officers 200, and aviators, 2000. Decision as to the reduction in Class 3, the Merchant Marine, has not been reached, but Navy Department officials said that it would be materially reduced.

Class 4 of the reserve, known as the naval coast defense reserve, composed of officers who obtained commissions for shore duty during the war, is to be entirely abolished.

The department asked Congress for $14,000,000 for the maintenance of the reserve, but received only $7,000,000.

20 BENEFITS GIVEN BY CHILDREN ADD $215 TO MILK FUND

This, With One Cash Donation of $3.60 Brings Total to $5474—One Bazar Nets $40.

Returns from 20 benefits and one direct cash donation have increased the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund $218.97, bringing it to a total of $5474.30.

One of the largest benefits given recently was the bazar at 4528 Laclede avenue which netted $40. The children who promoted it were: Dorothy Murphy, Marion Muth, Walter Hoffer and Junior Ellenberg. They were assisted by Jane Bruce, Celeste Muth, Elizabeth McKay, Catherine Ehresman, Anna Ellenberg and Glennon Hardy.

Six children at Cedarhurst, L. I., gave a play for the benefit of the Milk and Ice Fund and earned $22. Their names follow: Ruth Rothschild, Marjorie May Lesser, Sidney Rothschild Jr., Paul Rothschild, Julius Lesser and Harry Lesser Jr.

A show at 2346 North Market street brought $19. The participants were: Virginia Bruman, Marguerite Klockenbrink, Margaret Vonderahe, Esther and Bernice Cook, Arline Mankae, Zerelda Bangert, Viola Richert, Janet Duerbeck, Arline Forsting, Marie and Florence Sansone, and Melba and Fern Koch.

Twelve children from the neighborhood of 6802 Scanlon avenue gave a show there and earned $15.10 for the fund. Those who took part were: Celeste Cunningham, Lorraine Cunningham, Dorothy Falvey, Pearl Story, Erle Story, Hazel Meier, Karan Tuck, Norma Nolte, Pansy Nordman, Virginia McKee, Anna Beifus and Eunice Krewson.

Children Write a Play.

Children from the 5200 block of Paulian place wrote a play which they presented for the benefit of the babies. Following the performance they sold home-made ice cream. The evening's work netted $15 for the babies. Those who worked were: Ottomar Predock, Lotamay and Lurline Graham, Gertrude Stiehl, Craig and George McAlister, Glen Barrow and Virginia Quade.

Another affair recently given which netted $15 was the show and lemonade stand at 1039 Allen avenue. Those who had charge of these benefits were: Lucille Baer, Hilda Dierkes, Mildred Swatek, Mildred Vidlak, Lorraine Drosda and Ruth Baer.

A carnival at 4754 St. Louis avenue added $14.78 to the Milk and Ice Fund. The children who took an active part in the success of the affair were: Ruth Hukenbeck, Myra Swenson, Francis Cullen, Kathryn Cullen, Loretta Ryan, Blanche Hammon, Walter Ferris, Margaret Bennett, Melba Diekhoner and Russell and Donald McCaron.

Doris Dunbar, Celia Willard, Catherine and Nugent Weis and Rose Mestman gave a show at 1252 Aubert avenue which earned $12.52 for the fund.

Entertainment Nets $12.45.

Substantial assistance was given to the babies by the returns from an entertainment at 6016 Enright avenue, which netted $12.45. The workers were: Marcella Anderson, Jane Noland, Idaree Hopkins, Pauline Stimson, Louis Anderson, Edward Stimson, Norman Anderson, Fullerton and Jack Wilhite, Harry Kurtz, Harry Moss and George Stimson.

An entertainment given at 2221 Alberta street followed by a sale of refreshments brought $10.33. The children's names follow: Edwin, Roy and Joe Brune, Helen and Adele Menne, Mildred Kaelin, Helen Kaelin, Gussie Schonnerd and Roy Delargy.

A show at 2013 South Eleventh street cleared $9.10. The actors were: Loretta Ludwig, Effie Morris, Helen Vidlak, Teresa Vidlak, Leo Vidlak, Gregory Stockglausner, Margaret Stockglausner, Margaret Fitze, Hazel Ludwig and Anna Baggy.

Girls of the 3500 block of Grace avenue gave a show at 3509 Grace avenue and earned $6.10 for the fund. The money was forwarded by the girls, who did not inclose their names.

A show at 1041 Allen avenue netted $5.39. Those who participated were: Effie Morris, Loretta Ludwig, Lorraine Drodza, Mildred Vidlak, Mildred Kozel, Herman Peters, Oscar Morris and Berdie Grover.

Edward Schulz, Billy Irwin, Louise Krey, Oliver and Billy Abel and Herbert Neumann, assisted by Mrs. Neumann, conducted a root beer stand at Grand and Kossuth avenues and earned $5.25 for the Milk and Ice Fund.

Lemonade Stand Nets $5.

A lemonade stand at 3137 Allen avenue netted $5. The conductors were: Virginia Roe, Frank Adam, Wayne Weaver, Charles Roe, Bill Reinholdt, Jack Weaver and Anne Reinholdt.

From Webster Groves came a check for $3, the proceeds of a lemonade stand conducted by Helen Hubbard and Margaret Bernard.

Gladice Hunt, Mae and Beulah Henderson, Robert Jennings and Evelyn Ruth Lewis managed a lemonade stand at 4864 Natural Bridge avenue which brought $2 for the fund.

Brightie Brown and Ann Trepp, each 7 years of age, conducted a lemonade stand at 4942 West Pine boulevard and earned $1.35.

John Kelly, Patrick Kelly, Joe Miller and Paul Mulvihill managed a similar enterprise at 2933 Hickory street and earned $1.

One dollar came from Ruth Rauscher and Alice and Eva Kardell who earned it by giving a show at 4414 Ellenwood avenue. They charged 3 cents admission and sold lemonade and popcorn for 1-cent a serving.

The only direct cash donation received for several days was a check for $3.60 to be credited "in memory of Mrs. Hattie Meyer."

Leaving the City This Summer?

If so, you'll want to know what's going on at home and should have the Post-Dispatch sent by mail from the publication office. The mail rate includes postage. Drop a line to the Post-Dispatch Circulation Department a few day before you go, or if you prefer, telephone Olive or Central 6600.

CHIEF TO SUMMON VIOLATORS OF THE AUTO TRAFFIC LAWS

A plan of dealing more severely than has been the practice in the past with automobile drivers who drive past street cars disembarkin or taking on passengers had been approved by the Police Board and Chief of Police O'Brien, and will go into effect at once, it is announced by the Vigilance Committee of the Mississippi Valley Division, National Safety Council.

Robert E. Lee, chairman of the committee, said that in the future all such violators of the traffic law would be called personally before the Chief of Police. Last week 142 such violators were reported. Persons reported by the committee for having passed a street car to the left on a double track line will also be called in by the Chief.

LETTER CARRIERS TO MEET HERE

More Than 1000 Delegates Expected at Convention in September.

The convention of the National Association of Letter Carriers at the Claridge Hotel Sept. 5 to 10 probably will be attended by more than 1000 delegates in addition to the delegates to the auxiliary convention.

The association had its origin at an encampment of the G. A. R., in Milwaukee, Wis., in August, 1889, and started with a membership of 1500. At present the enrollment is 40,000, virtually 98 per cent of the regular letter carriers in service. A women's auxiliary was organized at Portland, Ore., in 1905. The association has two subsidiaries, the Mutual Benefit Association, which provides life insurance of members, and the Naitonal Sick Benefit Association, which pays sick benefits of $10 a week.

The national officers are Edward J. Gainor, Muncie, Ind., president; P. J. McNabb, New York, vice-president; Edward J. Cantwell, Washington, secretary; M. T. Finan, Washington, assistant secretary, and Charles D. Duffy, Chicago, treasurer.

To Talk on Advertising Costs.

St. Louis newspaper advertisers and business men generally have been invited to attend the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Advertising Club to be held in Parlor A at Hotel Statler, at noon Tuesday. U. S. G. Welsh of Chicago, western representative of the New York Tribune, will explain the fundamentals underlying the cost of advertising space.

Dies of Electric Wire Burns.

Richard Robiele, 32 years old, of 917 North Ninth street, died at St. John's Hospital at 2 a. m. yesterday from burns suffered Thursday when he came in contact with a live wire when painting on the McKinley bridge.

BOY HIT BY AUTO WHEN RIDING BICYCLE DIES

Driver of Machine Rearrested Pending Inquest to Be Held Tomorrow.

Jerome Rock, 13 years old, son of Charles Rock of 1824 Shenandoah avenue, died at the city hospital at 2:30 a. m. yesterday from injuries received when knocked from his bicycle by an automobile at 4:20 p. m. Thursday at Jules street and Shenandoah avenue. Otto Rueckert, 22 years old, a press feeder, of 2510 South Twelfth street, who drove the automobile, was rearrested and held for the inquest, which will be conducted Monday.

Rueckert was arrested Friday morning, charged with felonious wounding and leaving the scene of an accident and released on bond. His first arrest was delayed while police traced the ownership of the machine through seven persons, and from the latest owner, Julius Buchardt of 403A St. George street, who had loaned it to Rueckert Thursday afternoon.

The Rock boy was riding west on the north side of Shenandoah avenue and Rueckert, driving south in Jules street, was turning east on Shenandoah. Two women nearby heard the boy beg to be taken home after he was struck and saw the license number of the machine. Finally the boy was taken in the machine to his father's woodenware shop at 2009 Shenandoah avenue and left on the sidewalk. His uncle, William Wiedeman, who lives upstairs, carried him in and then had him taken to the city hospital.

Rueckert told the police that he did not think the boy had been seriously hurt.

COAL IS HIGHER IN ALABAMA THAN MISSOURI, SAYS WALLACE

In view of agitation for the Government or State control of the coal business, E. J. Wallace, Commissioner of the Missouri State Retail Coal Dealers' Association, has made a survey which shows that in Alabama, under State control, retail prices are higher than in Missouri without such control. The difference consists in the allowance by the Alabama Commission of a greater margin to the retailer, over the actual mine cost and freight charges.

Carbon Hill coal in Alabama, which corresponds to the Carterville coal in Illinois, is sold at Birmingham at $9.28 per ton, while Carterville sells in St. Louis at $7.50.

The margin allowed retailers in the larger cities of Alabama is $3.10, scaling down to $1 in the smallest group of towns. The margin in the larger cities advances 10 cents per month until it reaches the peak of $3.50 in December. On the same basis, according to population, the St. Louis margin would be about $1 more, which would make the retail cost of Carterville coal $9.71. The St. Louis price for Mount Olive would be $7.44, instead of $6.25, and the St. Louis price of 2-inch standard would be $7.69 instead of $4.75 to $5.

The good feature of the Alabama plan, Wallace finds, are that consumers are assured of cleaner coal and more honest weight, and the Fuel Administration keeps the public informed as to the existing and prospective coal situation, which encourages early buying and keeps the mines more continuously in operation and labor more continuously employed.

The Season Is On

The season is already on at Vandervoort's. Do not accept this statement on any lesser authority than that of your own eyes. Come and see for yourself.

¶ There is no more delightful experience in the sales year than caring for this early trade. Purchasers are unhurried; goods are fresh; stocks are complete. Enthusiasm over new patterns and new designs is strong on both sides of the counter.

¶ And still they come—both goods and customers. The tide rises hourly. There are the mothers with their daughters to outfit for school or college; you should see them among the walking suits, the athletic clothes and the dainty new evening gowns. That sun-browned woman with the merry eyes has left her small flock in a cottage beside the lake in the hands of a capable older daughter; she realizes that school begins on September 6th, and does not propose that the cares of shopping shall complicate the first few busy days of the homecoming. A young married couple is spending a happy hour among the trunks and bags; the husband's vacation is late this year, and they are preparing for their first flitting together. There among the chintzes is the housewife who was unexpectedly detained at home through the vacation season, who has taken advantage of the experience to have certain rooms done over at leisure by our interior decorators, before the autumnal rush.

¶ Our buyers many months ago entered sympathetically into these various human experiences. Vandervoort's retained, to meet the needs of the St. Louis public, the most skillful hands and the most artistic minds in the world's great centers of craftsmanship. Scotch weavers and Philippine embroiderers, French dyers of silk and Swiss makers of lace, artisans who know the secrets of the lacquers of Japan, the woods of India and the porcelains of China have co-operated with the artists and technical experts of the United States to prepare us for today.

The season is on. Come to us with your needs; we are ready to meet them.

AUTO NEWS and GOSSIP

DORRIS CAR MAKES 513 MILES IN ONE DAY

A new four-passenger Dorris car owned by Mr. W. J. Flesher of Lexington, Ky., recently completed what proved to be an unusual trip. On a tour from St. Louis to Yellowstone Park, the tourists accomplished the feat of clipping off 513 miles in 14 hours actual driving time on the way to "The Wonderland of America." On the return trip another good showing was made when a distance of 736 miles (Denver to Nowata, Okla.) was made in two days.

Leaving St. Louis the 28th of June, the party traveled to Kansas City, Mo., in one day, the speedometer showing a distance of 295 miles. The drive from Kansas City to Clay Center, a distance of 175.6 miles, according to the blue book, was made in one-half a day. The remainder of the trip to Denver, the 513-mile drive, was made the third day out from St. Louis, making a run of practically 1000 miles in two days and a half.

After a trip to Colorado Springs—Pike's Peak and Yellowstone Park, the party returned to Denver. On leaving Denver for Nowata, Ok., the 90 miles to Lyman was covered in two hours and 10 minutes. From Lyman the trip was continued, covering a distance of 736 miles in two days. From Nowata the tourists continued to Tulsa, 54 miles further southwest, from which point the car was headed toward home on the 27th of July, and arrived in St. Louis by way of Kansas City on the 31st, covering a distance of 575 miles.

Of the mileage made on this trip, at least 500 miles were through the mountains. The Continental Divide was crossed seven different times during the trip. A climb of approximately 5000 feet in eight miles was made going over the Berthoud Pass. The average mileage obtained from a gallon of gasoline was 10 miles; but an average of 13 miles was made where the roads were good.

NEW MODEL AUBURN BEAUTY SIX ANNOUNCED

The Auburn Automobile Co., Auburn, Indiana, is announcing a new model Auburn Beauty Six embodying many distinctive features.

"The new model is not a radical departure from the former model, says Mr. J. I. Farley, vice president of the Auburn Automobile Co. It contains, however, many important refinements which have been thoroughly tested during the past several months.

"The objective we worked toward in designing this new model was restful riding. The motor, the brakes, the foot pedals, the quietness of the car, leg and tonneau room, upholstery—in fact every detail of the car, is designed to contribute its share to this desired goal of restful riding."

A unique feature of the new model Auburn Beauty Six which strikes the observer instantly is a smart aluminum strip along the sides in place of the usual bevel. This not only adds an appearance of unusual trimness to the car, but affords, at last, a perfect molding for the edges of the leather upholstery.

The first shipment of the new models will arrive here this week and will be on display in the showrooms of the Mound City Auto Co.

"Vamps Smile Way Into Autos."

Because hundreds of young girl "vamps" in Chicago were found lining Sheridan road every morning to smile their way into the automobiles of business men bound for the loop district, police women supported by a mobile force of the best looking policemen, dressed in citizen's clothes, are assigned to tour the boulevard in cars, the destination of the machines to be the police station, instead of the loop.

Pads Prevent Noises.

Squeaking noises in automobiles are prevented by the invention of pads made by closely woven fabric soaked in asphaltum and dried, for insertion in loose places.

Children Death Rate High.

Statistics show that 9 per cent of persons killed in automobile accidents are children under five years of age, and that 26.4 per cent are children from five to nine years old.

Too High.

Tax on passenger automobiles in Great Britain is $5 per horsepower. In Italy the tax for an average car runs to between $2,000 and $3,000 a year.

Money No Object to Motorists.

The American people are spending approximately $3,000,000,000 a year for automobile passenger cars, and $2,500,000,000 a year for trucks, including both first cost and operation.

Do You Know Your Car?

In a recent survey conducted by the police department, not one driver in six in New York city claimed to know anything about his automobile except how to start and stop it.

To Meet World Supply.

To meet the world supply of automobile tires, American manufacturers require 375,000,000 pounds of crude rubber each year.

Wagon Equipped With Horn.

To command from pedestrians the respect they show operators of automobiles, a driver of a horse-drawn wagon in New York City has installed an electric horn such as is used on motor vehicles. The dry cells are beneath the driver's seat and the push button is conveniently located.

ADJUST CARBURETOR TO INCREASE FUEL

Automobile owners who are having trouble getting expected mileage out of their gasoline consumption may find that by having their carburetors adjusted carefully increases in fuel economy can be obtained.

This is advice given by the Associated Advertising Clubs in a bulletin issued by its Vigilance Committee reporting investigation of claims made for a carburetor advertised as sure to save one-half to one-third on fuel and to increase the power of any motor from 30 to 50 per cent.

The bulletin states that tests made by the Government Bureau of Standards was to the effect that the extravagantly advertised carburetor showed no marks of superiority over others, and that the Government Bureau stated great numbers of automobiles are being operated with a considerable excess of fuel under average conditions and careful readjustment of the carburetors would in many cases bring about worthwhile economy. The Government Bureau also pointed out that the apparent superiority of some carburetors for which overdrawn claims are made is due to the care with which they are adjusted, says the association bulletin.

WILLARD BATTERY SHOWN IN MOVIES

While the public has been centering its attention largely upon the development of the feature photo play, notable progress has quietly been made on another side of the film business—the development of educational and industrial films.

In evidence of the strides which this branch of screen art is making is the fact that capable feature play directors are leaving that field to devote their efforts to the other. Among the latest to do this was Arthur Berthelet.

What direction such as Berthelet's is able to accomplish in his new field is shown by a series of four-minute films produced by the Willard Storage Battery Co. of Cleveland. This film, which shows the construction and operation of a Willard storage battery, is now being exhibited throughout the country.

CHEVROLET MODELS TO BE CONTINUED

The Chevrolet Motor Co. announces definitely that its "Four-Ninety" model is to be continued for this season and will not be replaced by a successor model.

The model "Four-Ninety" chassis and the Chevrolet "FB" models, which include the touring car, roadster, sedan and coupe, have been improved and modified in minor details.

These changes are in line with the policy of the company, announced a short time ago, of maintaining established models that have proved their merits and found favor with the public.

AUTO OWNERS SHOULD DEMAND GENUINE PARTS

Economy to Replace Worn or Broken Parts With Kind Manufacturer Put in Car Originally.

Automobile manufacturers very generally are reporting that service on their cars in the hands of owners is suffering because of repairmen's cupidity in substituting inferior parts for genuine in making replacements.

"Pirate" parts, as they are called in the trade, are very unlikely to be as good as the original, because, to undersell the latter, they must be made cheaper, which nearly always means inferior material or workmanship. So, as explained by Arthur B. Cumner, chairman of the Service Committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the motorist is the loser. Seldom does he get the benefit of the lower cost of the part and he is always out of pocket if the part is inferior.

Labor is almost always the largest item of a repair bill, and if the part put in was not properly hardened or tempered and hence wears out or breaks prematurely he has to have the job done over much sooner than necessary, with a repetition of the labor charge.

Protect Reputation.

"The car manufacturers," said Mr. Cumner, "have developed parts that they thought were the best for their cars and, having a reputation to sustain, would naturally be more insistent on careful inspection before permitting these parts to go into their cars. Pirate parts makers, on the other hand, without any such pride, have no incentive to carefully inspect parts. There is no comeback on them if the service their parts render is not satisfactory.

"Motorists generally will appreciate that paying the price for the best material and workmanship, rigidly inspecting the product and standing the loss of rejecting that which is not up to the standard, all tend to increase the cost of genuine parts. A little thought will show that it is money mighty well invested not only for the sake of the manufacturer but quite as much for the ultimate owner of the car. In advising automobilists, no matter where they buy their repairs or have their service done, to insist that none but genuine parts be used for replacements, the manufacturers feel that they are doing that which is to the interest of the automobilists quite as much as themselves.

"Dealers generally have a concern akin to that of the manufacturers in protecting the reputation of the car, hence when a car owner goes to an authorized service station of his make of car the chances are small that he will get any subtsitute parts.

DURANT SIX TO BE BUILT AT MUNCIE

Muncie, Ind., will supply the demand for "Durant sixes," according to a statement made in New York today by W. C. Durant, president of Durant Motors, Inc.

First steps in line with the program were taken this week in the organization of Durant Motor Co. of Indiana, with a capital of $3,000,000. The directors of the new company are W. C. Durant, T. W. Warner and D. A. Burke.

Durant Motor Co. of Indiana will take over immediately the Muncie plant of the Sheridan Motor Car Company Division of General Motors Corporation, the purchase of which by Durant interests was announced several weeks ago.

Such changes as may be necessary to equip the Muncie plant for its new product will be undertaken as soon as the details have been completed for financing the new Indiana company.

Durant four-cylinder automobiles will be manufactured at Long Island City, N. Y., Lansing, Mich., and Oakland, Cal., but all of the six-cylinder models, which are being perfected under the direction of Durant engineers at the New York plant, will be manufactured at Muncie, Ind.

The line of six-cylinder automobiles to be manufactured at Muncie will include five and seven passenger touring cars, runabouts, coupes, sedans and limousines.

REDUCTIONS MADE ON ALL G. M. C. TRUCKS

Announcement was made Wednesday by the General Motors Truck Co. of Pontiac, Mich., of a reduction in the price of all models of the GMC truck.

This is made possible by greater production in all capacities. A flat cut of $500 was made on the new one-ton GMC. This truck, known as Model K-16, is the outgrowth of the model that was made a standard of the United States army.

The current model presents many refinements. Principal among then is the new GMC engine with removable cylinder walls. This truck also has electric lights and starter, larger brakes, pressure lubricating system, cord tires and many desirable betterments.

TAX RULING ON TOPS BEING DISTRIBUTED

A copy of a ruling recently received from the Treasury Department, Bureau of Internal Revenue, pertaining to tax on a new top cover for an automobile is being sent to all members of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers Association and the Motor Accessory Trade Association by Robert E. Lee, secretary and manager of the two organizations.

"The ruling states that when a new top cover is made from raw material for an immediate repair job and placed on old top bows, no tax attaches, top covers so made and used not being finished parts within the meaning of the law.

However attention is called to the fact that if a concern manufactures automobile top covers to be kept in stock and sold to meet the demands of customers, tax attaches to all such sales, whether the top covers are sold for installation on new or old top bows."

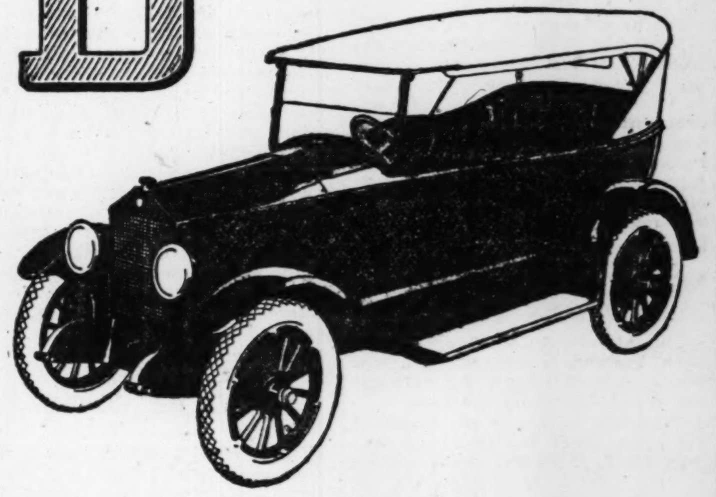
DORT
Quality Goes Clear Through



This Car Is a Matchless Value

At the recently lowered prices the new Dort represents an automobile value unequalled in its price-class.

It looks like a costly car, it performs like one, and it is a long-time car in point of reliable performance.

And yet the new price is less than $1000—to be exact $985 at the factory.

You will find the rugged pulling power, the lively action, the restful riding comfort, of the new Dort particularly pleasing.

And rarely indeed is it necessary to give the Dort any attention save the common care you bestow on any good investment.

In every detail the new Dort is the fine product of a concern that has specialized for years on a single type of motor car, a single chassis, and a single aim to improve that product constantly and continuously.

WARNING TO AUTO DEALERS

You are aware of the fact that the new law requiring auto safety signals on all closed cars goes into effect in Missouri next November. It is plainly your duty, as well as a wonderful profit opportunity, for you to see that all of your closed job customers are reminded of this law and that they install an auto safety signal in accordance with the law—you know the old saying, "Ignorance is no excuse in the sight of the law." We want to get in touch with a distributor in St. Louis who is well located and who also has a competent sales force to sell to the trade the new improved Kobzy Semaphore Auto Signal. This device has been in actual use for over two years and has successfully met every test under utmost adverse conditions—it has been approved by the Underwriters' Laboratory and recommended by The Safety Institute of America. There are over 100,000 closed jobs in Missouri—most of which can be equipped with the Kobzy. Write or wire

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

More Than Par Value

At the new price of $1635 the five-passenger "Glenbrook" gives you gratifying evidence of how far your dollar can go today.

Here is a brand new product—not an old model carried over as a 1921 motor car. And it is a sound, practical investment because with the Paige first cost is last cost.

The "Glenbrook" is endowed with the thrift idea. It has respect for your pocket book when it comes to gasoline, tire mileage and repair bills. And as for performance—

Imagine a motor that accelerates from five to twenty-five miles an hour in nine seconds flat! Then you will have a new vision of what to expect when you sit behind the wheel of the "Glenbrook" and accept any challenge of the road.

Beauty at Its Source

One undeniable fact regarding St. Louis has been gradually impressed upon its citizens: That is that this city is fast building for itself a reputation as an art center, rivaling the cities of the East.

Our great Louisiana Purchase Exposition had much to do with advertising the artistry of St. Louis to the outside world. The Pageant and Masque of 1914 contributed its share. The Municipal Opera, the annual Style Show, our beautiful parks and residence districts, our public buildings, our artistic productions in shoes, apparel and millinery—all these have helped turn the faces of the Nation toward St. Louis for things artistic.

In this city of beautiful ideals, the Dorris Car is produced—an object of such symmetry of line, such grace, such wholesome loveliness as to excite the utmost admiration of all who appreciate art, not alone in St. Louis, but in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago and in the Pacific Coast cities.

The real value of The Dorris lies deeper than its beauty, however. Under its handsome body is a chassis of wonderful design so carefully built as to leave absolutely nothing to be desired. Every individual part is so proportioned as to give the greatest economy of operation and maintenance, to provide power and speed for all emergencies and the utmost comfort with sturdiest roadability.

And behind the Dorris Car is an organization that has carried the Company through sixteen years of success—a success as substantial and powerful as its famous car.

ENGINEER NAMED TO DIRECT WORK OF SAFETY COUNCIL

W. L. Patterson to Make Traffic Surveys and Formulate Policies for the Organization.

The Mississippi Valley division of the National Safety Council announced yesterday that it had established the position of public safety engineer to be head of its department of public safety. W. L. Patterson, automotive engineer, identified in safety work, both in the council and on the City Traffic Committee for several years, has been appointed to the office.

Patterson's duties will be to direct public safety activities, including the making of surveys of traffic conditions and working out plans for uniform safety work to be done with the assistance of automobile manufacturers, dealers and drivers.

President Charles M. Talbert of the local council said the establishment of the new office was in line with the council's policy of "putting safety activities on a business basis."

"The plans for the public safety department of the Safety Council include measures looking toward more uniform efficiency in driving and efficiency of equipment among large fleets of trucks operated in the city," Patterson said. "Manufacturers and dealers and finally the owners of the trucks will be asked to co-operate. It is planned also to outline uniform methods of instructing inexperienced drivers to operate passenger cars."

LONE ROBBER HOLDS UP OFFICE OF COAL COMPANY, TAKING $50

A lone robber held up and robbed the office of the Donk Bros. Coal Co. at Union boulevard and Natural Bridge avenue about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, obtaining $50 from a money drawer and escaping.

Only one man was in the office at the branch yard when the robber appeared. This was Fred Gengler, a weigher, who was forced to hold up his hands while the intruder took the money from the drawer.

Gengler told the police the man was the one who entered the office about two weeks ago and held him up and took $110 from the cash drawer.

SATURDAY CLOSING ENDED FOR THE SEASON YESTERDAY

The downtown stores, including the large department stores and the women's wear stores, will be open again on Saturday, beginning next week.

The Saturday closing began July 16 and ended yesterday. Beginning Aug. 29 the stores will go on their winter schedules, being open from 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. At present the hours are from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m.

NEW PIERCE-ARROW PRICES ANNOUNCED

A substantial reduction in the prices of its touring car models, effective after Sept. 1, and a reduction on the prices of its truck models, effective immediately was announced several days ago by George W. Mixter, president of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co.

The prices on all open models have been lowered $1000, while the closed cars were reduced $500 each.

The new price of the standard four and seven passenger touring car is $6500 and the runabout $7000.

The new prices of the closed models are as follows: Coupe, coupe-sedan, four-passenger, and the brougham, $8000; seven-passenger sedan and vestibule sedan, $8500; landaulet, limousine and four-passenger four-door sedan, $8250. The new prices of its truck models are: $4850 for the five-ton size; $4350 for the three and one-half-ton and $3200 for the two-ton. The above prices are f. o. b. factory.

UNIVERSAL AWARDED BADGER TOP AGENCY

The "Badger" winter top, manufactured by the Wisconsin Top Co., Inc., of Racine, Wis., will be distributed in St. Louis by the Universal Manufacturing Co., Channing and Locust, automobile trimmers and painters.

The Badger top, which is California style, comes equipped with dome light, silk curtains, sun visor and rain curtains for summer use, and according to Mr. Lovy of the Universal company, converts the touring car into a sedan. The top is made for 16 different makes, or about 60 models of cars.

HOLMES MOTORS TO HANDLE TULSA CAR

The distribution of the Tulsa car manufactured by the Witt-Thompson Automobile Co. of Tulsa Okla., for St. Louis and adjacent territory has been awarded to the Holmes Motors, Inc.

The car, which sells for $1285, factory, is equipped with a 3¼x5.4 cylinder, Herschell-Spillman motor and a Saulisbury axle. Several models of the new car are now on display in the showrooms of the Holmes Motors.

NEW AGENCY FOR TEMPLAR

A new Templar agency to be known as the Templar Locomobile Motors Co. has opened at Nineteenth and Pine.

The management promises all Templar owners and prospective owners the best service and attention, announcing that a full line of parts will be carried and that only the best mechanics will be employed.

The new company will be distributors for Eastern Illinois and Southern Missouri.

NEW DODGE SEDAN HERE

The new Dodge sedan, with many body improvements, is now being displayed in the showroom of the Tate Motor Inc.

The new body is set several inches lower than those of the former design. The corners of the windows have been squared and the frames are of walnut, provided with a new antirattle device. Disc wheels with cord tires are standard equipment on the new design. The car lists delivered in St. Louis at $1925.

You will never require the full Stamina of your Ray Battery

The Ray Battery is built to work in your car. It was devised after a thorough study of battery failures to prevent their repetition in your driving.

It has only one purpose—to supply electrical energy as you need it. To be ready at call without constant attention; to go on long drives without overcharging; and to endure a slight measure of abuse without permanent injury—these it is built to do.

And so well is it built that the Ray actually has stamina and ruggedness far beyond the possible requirements of day-by-day driving. In laboratory trials and in test drives, it has proved that it can endure more severe strains than a motor car can possibly place upon it.

The Ray unconditional two-year guarantee—a signed, dated contract which assures you a new battery if your Ray fails for any cause whatever except wreckage, within two years—is possible only because of this reserve stamina. This guarantee is the bond of our faith that the Ray is a more rugged battery than your driving needs will ever require. And the Ray has justified that faith; only one half of one per cent of the Rays in service have been returned and those only for minor defects.

Get a Ray Battery from your dealer today. It will more than do your work.

NO 1921 CONFEDERATE REUNION

Meeting Abandoned Because No City Has Invited the Veterans.

By the Associated Press.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 20.—According to a letter received by Gen. D. B. Morgan, commander of the South Georgia Brigade of the United Confederate Veterans, the 1921 general reunion of the United Confederate Veterans has been abandoned.

Nathan Bedford Forrest of Biloxi, Miss., secretary to Gen. K. M. Vanzant of Fort Worth, Commander in Chief of the United Confederate Veterans, has written Gen. Morgan that because no city has invited the veterans there will be no reunion this year.

JUDGE GRIMM'S LETTER OF OPINION ON PAROLE SYSTEM

Agrees With Head of Police Board That Investigation and Supervision of Paroles Is Necessary.

WOULD PUT WORK IN HANDS OF FEW

Of Opinion That Police Department Should Be in Charge—Believes Volunteer Plan Would Fail.

Circuit Judge J. Hugo Grimm, whose protest against the discontinuance of the Police Parole Bureau drew a reply tfrom President Miller of the Police Board that the criminal divisions of the Circuit Court and the Courts of Criminal Correction would not be deprived of the services of the police in the investigation of applications for parole, has written another letter to President Miller expressing his views on the subject. The letter, in part, follows:

"Your observation that most of the paroles are granted to men who happen to have friends possessing some political, business, social or religious influence, often in cases where paroles should really be refused, while, on the other hand, ignorant and unfortunate men, perhaps first offenders, are allowed to suffer punishment merely because they are ignorant and friendless, is in a large measure true. It was this very consideration which, in part at least, influenced me in asking for the detail of a man to make investigations some 10 years ago. I fully agree with you that the man having the advantage of education, social position and good family connections, who violates the criminal law, is more deserving of punishment than the poor, ignorant fellow, who is often driven by circumstances to do wrong; and I also agree that the former, because of his influential connections, often escapes punishment where he should not, and the latter, because of his very weakness, should receive mercy, but does not, because no one takes enough interest in him to present his case properly to the Judge. This is a good reason for supplying the courts with reliable investigators, who will present the claims of these poor human derelicts to the Judge.

Plead Guilty to Lessen Offense.

"I note your statement that, regardless of the statute, 'there have been numerous cases wherein persons charged with robbery (and whose conviction was certain) have been permitted to plead guilty to grand larceny or a lesser offense in order that they may be paroled and the provisions of the statute thereby defeated,' and I note your protest against allowing a man charged with an offense such as arson, murder, or robbery to plead guilty to a lesser offense in order that the Judge may parole him. While you do not say so directly, the implication from your language is that some Judges have resorted to a subterfuge to parole prisoners in violation of the spirit of our statute. I have no knowledge of any such subterfuge being resorted to, although I have heard rumors that it had been done. It certainly was never done in a court over which I was presiding. If there have been abuses in the exercise of this power they should be corrected, and the surest way to bring this about is to freely expose them.

"I agree not only that the police should have a record of all paroles granted, but that the matter of investigation and supervision following the parole should be in charge of your department, certainly so long as the courts are required to look to you for the men and women to do this work, but, of course, there should be co-operation between the police and the courts, and I have no doubt that recommendations from your department will receive proper consideration.

Agreed as to Necessity.

"We are agreed, then, as to the necessity of investigations, of subsequent supervision and of co-operation between the courts and the Police Department. The important question, however, remains—namely, are the investigations to be made by a number of officers selected because of their particular qualifications, or is the entire police force to undertake this task? If a large number of persons undertake to make investigations and reports, there will naturally be a great diversity in the character of investigations and the information gathered, unless, indeed, all of the men are given a course of instruction as to the manner of making investigations, their scope and the character of the reports to be filed.

"Then, as to the subsequent work of supervision, which I gather from your letter it is proposed to leave to volunteers to be provided by organizations interested in humane, charitable and religious work. I should not for a moment question these well-meaning people. I know many of them and admire their laudable desire to be helpful, and recognize the good work done by them in their various activities, but I must candidly say that in such work as is necessary to the supervision of men convicted of crime I doubt the efficacy of volunteer agents. The work is hard, often unpleasant, and many things about it are distasteful to a sensitive person. To properly look after a paroled prisoner involves in many cases a great deal of work and demands a great deal of time, in addition to the exercise of good judgment. The volunteer plan has been tried in the Juvenile courts of a number of our large cities and has usually been abandoned as unsatisfactory.

Prefers Small Group.

"Personally, I think this work of investigation and supervision can be more satisfactorily and efficiently handled by a small group of persons, instructed to act in a methodical way according to a definite and well thought out plan, persons who shall be paid employes and be required to make this work their one business, and who will be held to a strict discharge of their dutes and promptly remove if found incompetent or unreliable. While I do not wish to be understood as opposing the plan of trying out volunteer probation officers, I do want to let yon know how the suggestion impresses me, and that past experience does not encourage one to hope for a great measure of success. If however, you determine to try out the plan, I for one shall be glad to co-operate with you and try to make it work out satisfactorily.

"But I can't get away from the idea that if the present plan of organiaztion of your parole office is unsatisfactory that it would be the part of wisdom to reorganize it on a proper basis, and if any of the men and women now acting as parole officers have shown themselves incompetent or unworthy to replace them with others, who should, of course, be selected with a careful regard for their qualifications and character."

SALOON KEEPER SUED BY FORMER BARTENDER, NOW A DENTIST

Claims of S. D. Balauri Aagainst Harry Anastas Are for $200 Loaned and $600 for Oil Stock.

S. D. Balauri, a former bartender, now a dentist with offices in the Times building, yesterday filed suit for $200 on a note against Harry Anastas, a saloonkeeper at 2951 Olive street, and his brothers, Theodore and Naum Anastas, who conduct a laundry at 4440 Olive street. Balauri is an Albanian, and the Anastas brothers are Greeks.

The petition sets forth that Balauri, who had been a bartender for Harry Anastas and later studied dentistry, loaned Harry Anastas $200 on a note in January, 1920, which he has been unable to collect, and he names Harry's brothers as defendants in the suit because of Harry's alleged interest in the laundry.

The plaintiff also seeks to recover $600 for oil stock sold him by Harry Anastas, which, it is alleged, has not been delivered.

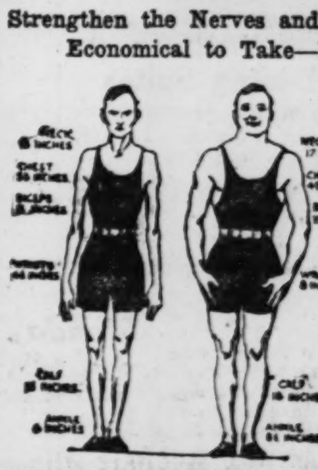
How Yeast Vitamon Tablets Put Flesh on Thin Folks

Strengthen the Nerves and Invigorate the Body—Easy and Economical to Take—Results Surprisingly Quick.



If you want to put some firm, healthy flesh on your bones, increase your nerve force and power, clear the skin and complexion and look and feel 100 per cent better, simply try taking two tiny Vitamon tablets with each meal and watch results. Vitamon contains highly concentrated yeast-vitamines as well as the two other still more important vitamines (Fat Soluble A and Water Soluble C), and is now being used by thousands. It positively will not upset the stomach or cause gas, but on the contrary is a great aid to digestion, to overcome constipation and as a general conditioner of the whole system. Complete satisfaction absolutely guaranteed or the trial costs you nothing. Be sure to remember the name Mastin's VI-TA-MON—the original and genuine yeast-vitamine tablet—there is nothing else like it, so do not accept imitations or substitutes. You can get Mastin's VITAMON Tablets at all good druggists, such as Enderle's six stores, Johnson Bros., Judge & Dolph, E. A. Medler, J. W. Pauley's, Wolff-Wilson, Huger's two stores.

MEETING ON NEW STATE CONSTITUTION CALLED

Selection of Delegates and Publicity Campaign to Be Discussed.

Dr. W. H. Black of Marshall has called a meeting of the New Constitution Association of Missouri, of which he is president, to be held at the Baltimore Hotel in Kansas City on Sept. 2. The object of the meeting, as set forth in the call sent out yesterday by W. M. Ledbetter, secretary of the association, from St. Louis, is to determine the future activities of the association and its relation to the following subjects:

1. The election of delegates to the constitutional convention.
2. The work of preliminary research and investigation to be carried on before the convention meets.
3. A publicity campaign to keep before the people of the State, and later before the delegates to the convention, the constructive measures to be considered.
4. The approval of the new Constitution by the voters, after the convention has finished its labors.

The meeting will be held in Kansas City to give the friends of a new Constitution in the Western part of the State a better opportunity to attend. Previous meetings of the association have been held in St. Louis.

"Must Realize on Victory."

"We have won a great victory, after many years of effort," said Secretary Ledbetter yesterday, "but in order to realize upon it, for the future good and welfare of the State, we must be vigilant and active. Already candidates are announcing themselves for delegates to the convention who have fought the movement from the start. It is reasonable to suppose these men, if elected, will obstruct and retard the work of the convention. We have an organization which extends into every county in the State, and by inducing representative men and women to become candidates and publishing the records of unsuitable candidates who announce themselves, we can exert a salutary influence and insure a high personnel in the convention.

"In the same way we can keep before the delegates the constructive issues that have made the convention possible and by concentrating public opinion on these issues we hope to secure the adoption of a Constitution that will be in keeping with the modern, progressive spirit, without sacrificing any of the excellent features of the present Constitution."

Women Eligible as Delegates.

A question to be considered at the Kansas City meeting will have to do with the participation of women in the convention. Under an amendment adopted Aug. 2 women are eligible to sit as delegates and the Missouri League of Women Voters undoubtedly will put up several candidates for delegates at large. To be elected as district delegates, however, women must get the indorsement of the regular Republican and Democratic party organizations in their senatorial districts.

There will be 68 district delegates, two from each senatorial district, and 15 delegates at large. St. Louis will have 16 district delegates and Jackson County, including Kansas City, will have eight. Buchanan County will have two. They will be equally divided between the two dominant political parties.

RENTAL CONTRACT ON WALL OF BARN CONTAINING STILL

Owner Not Arrested When County Deputies Find Document During Raid.

A barn on the farm of Philip Eiler, on the Telegraph road, half a mile south of Sappington Barracks road, was raided Friday night by Chief Deputy Sheriff Lill and Deputy Schmidt. They found 110 barrels of mash and a 200-gallon still which had not been completely assembled.

Tacked to the wall near the still was a contract dated June 24, as follows:

"I, Philip Eiler, have agreed to rent my barn to Sam Caluki for storage within the time period of six months.

"I, Sam Caluki, am responsible for anything that occurs during these six months. Agreed and signed by "SAM CALUKI."

It was not signed by Eiler. He told Lill that he rented the barn to Caluki for $100 a month and had collected $50 of the rent. He said he did not know what was being done in the barn, which is 200 feet from his house. He was not arrested. Caluki was not there.

BREAK IN MARKS FEATURES WEEK; STOCKS ARE DULL

Uncertainty Among Foreign Exchanges Continues — Strength of Indian Rupee Source of Encouragement —Money Goes Back East.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The Evening Post, in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"While the chief speculative markets have continued reactionary during the past week, the signs revealed of the general economic trend have been by no means discouraging. The stock market has, to be sure, remained dull and heavy, but this circumstance merely reflects the lack of public interest and the ability of professional operators to find weak spots in the industrial list. Dividends continue to be passed, and we must expect to hear of further embarrassments in the case of individual traders and companies, especially with another tax date approaching. In these events, however, is reflected business conditions of the past, and while troublesome and sometimes disturbing, have little relation to the conditions under which business will be done in coming months.

"Uncertainty among the foreign exchanges also continues. This is bound to be the case so long as the reparations payments are conducted along present lines. Germany apparently found it necessary to make direct purchases of sterling, using her own marks for the purpose, and this resulted in a sharp decline in the quotation for marks. The operation undoubtedly led to concurrent selling of marks for private account, and also was the cause of quite an extraordinary outburst of speculation on the Berlin Bourse. With marks depreciating sharply in the exchange relation, German speculators naturally anticipated a corresponding rise in the mark value of German commodities and securities and were anxious to profit by the movement. The episode illustrates the unsettling effect on business of artificial financial arrangements, which cannot, of course, always be avoided. Bearing in mind the nature of the disturbing forces, it is evident, however, that from a broad standpoint the exchange situation promises no fresh difficulties in the way of profitable business.

Commodity Price Level.

"Cotton and grain have continued to react, a circumstance which constitutes a misfortune for the farmer. Lower prices for his product mean just so much less with which to liquidate his debts at the bank and to purchase goods for current needs. At the same time it would appear that the winter wheat has been pretty well moved and that already the farmer has been able to make substantial progress in paying off his obligations. The reserve bank statements prove that the banking position is still improving despite the arrival of crop burdens, and there is not the slightest reason for doubting that the country's banking recourses will be easily adequate for any burdens the year may develop. As between regions, another equalizing movement of funds has taken place. Firmness in rates at New York has attracted back a portion of the money which went to the West at the time Eastern rates softened. Again taking a broad view, the news of the week with regard to the level of commodity prices is encouraging. The decline in the average of wholesale prices as computed by the Bureau of Labor statistics began with the month of June, 1920. The intensity of the recessions increased as autumn wore on and reached a climax in December, which month showed a decline of 8.7 per cent. Since then, however, a fairly steady reduction in the rate of decline has taken place, and the value of the index shows no change as between June and July.

India's Exchange Strong.

"The different groups of commodities of which the index is composed, furthermore show less spread than in previous months. House furnishing goods, which stand the highest above 1913 values, show the largest recent fall, while farm products, which are little above their pre-war value, actually rallied somewhat. These changes obviously are in the right direction. As a result of the current reaction in grain prices it is possible that the index may again sag slightly, but the tendency toward stability is nevertheles unmistakable.

"Another encouraging feature is the continued strength in the Indian rupee. This unit is now quoted at 25¼ cents, as compared with 23 cents a little less than a month ago. The gain amounts to 9.8 per cent while in the same period the price of foreign silver at New York has advanced only 2.9 per cent. Favorable reports of the progress of the monsoon plainly have some foundation and if the developments in this matter continue good, a marked increase in purchasing power in the Far East is in prospect.

"In general, then, the unpleasant financial news comes mainly from business operations which are past, while the chances for more profitable business seem to be slowly but surely improving."

Trade Light Saturday.

"Dullness was no more or less pronounced in stocks than in any of the other financial markets during the two-hour session this morning. The trading in securities furnished a fitting climax to a week of unimportant professional operations, the only apparent result of which was a correction of the technical position of the market. With transactions confined entirely to the transfer of stocks from one floor trader to another, the market drifted along during the first half without materially changing the price of any group of stocks. The attack on motor stocks which then esued might have been localized but for the lack of support in other directions when professional shorts offered the Steel and allied industrial shares. Weakness was most pronounced in Pierce Arrow, Chandler and Studebaker and in certain tire stocks. Steel common did little in either direction to reveal the speculative community's mental reaction to the corporation's announcement of another wage cut. The [illegible] market made practically no response to the Railway Labor Board's decision in favor of the brotherhoods in the matter of overtime rates of pay.

"Trading in foreign exchange was dull and uninteresting. There was not enough activity on either side of change rates more than slight fractions. The same condition prevailed in the market for cotton and grains. After opening up 4 points and advancing a scimilar amount to 13.52, cotton reacted to 13.41 around the end of the first hour. Still later it recovered to yesterday's closing price. December wheat advanced a full cent to 1.18¾ and then reacted to $1.18.

"An increase of $1,171,720 in the surplus of the Celaring House banks during the past week brings the total of this item to $16,975,670. Loans and discounts are higher than last week by $3,049,000. A gain of $2,144,000 in time deposits and a loss of $1,887,000 in net demand deposits brings a net addition of $257,000 to the deposits item. Reserve deposits at the Federal Reserve Bank are $544,000 less, and Government deposits decreased to the extent of $81,177,000."

Wall Street News and Comment
—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The stock market closed today with another series of losses in the industrial quarter, but with no general weakness. It was the same sort of a market that has been seen nearly all week. Professional selling was directed against a few selected issues, and these were forced down mainly because there wa snobody willing to try to hold them up. The Steel Corporation's third successive wage cut with the previous cuts lops off some $200,000,000 a year from operating expenses and brings labor cost back to where it stood when the United States went to war.

Neither the steel wage reduction, however, nor the testimony in the weekly trade reviews that business throughout the country was gradually mending, had any influence upon the price movement of the day.

Motor stocks were notably weak, with some of them down to new low prices. Steel common held firm and the independent steels, while lower, developed no important selling. Elsewhere the losses were confined to a few specialties. Nothing of consequence happened in the exchange market, which closed about where it did, last night.

The Bond Market.

Prices continued to harden in the bond market today, especially in the railway section. Here the general average is getting close to the top of the upswing, which culminated at the start of the month, when money rates ran up. Pennsylvania 7s at 105¼ and New York Central 7s at 103¼ were above their recent high and practically level with the best prices reached in the early part of the year. Very heavy trading continued in Great Nohtren 7s at their high figure of 101, Chicago & Northwestern 6½s got above 101 and Canadian Northern 6½s at 99 were right up to their best.

Westinghouse Electric 7s were not disturbed by the selling in the stocks. They touched 101⅝, but later reacted to 101½. The firmness in U. S. Rubber issues was noteworthy as indicating that the bond market is not sensitive to the einfluences which are depressing the stock market. The Rubber 5s closed at 78⅛, as against 73¾ yesterday. Cuba Cane Sugar convertibles were unchanged at 60½. Goodyear 8s were up a half point to 101⅝.

In the foreign group trading was more active in the new Urugay 8s at 98⅝. There was also unusually large transactions in Swedish 6s around 86½. The Copenhagen 5½s were the feature in this quarter, however. They were bid up on heavy dealings from yesterday's close of 78¾ to 79⅝.

Canadian Provincial issues closed the week about a half point higher on the average.

United States Government bonds were lightly dealt in and about unchanged from yesterday's close.

Financial Situation.

With the rate of money interest falling so that time loans are negotiable freely at 6 per cent again, and with 6 per cent also the prevailing figure on commercial paper, the bond market started upward where it left off at the close of July, when the money market had its little flurry. The measure of Wall Street's liquidation is found in the comparison of Federal Reserve discounts secured by war paper, which is the class of business representing financial, in distinction of commercial transactions. At the close of 1919 these discounts stood at $1,484,000,000. At the close of 1920 the total had fallen to $1,141,000,000. Now the same item stands at $559,689,000. Discounts secured by other than Government bonds and notes, that is, by one form or other of mercantile paper, were $747,000,000 at the end of 1919. They were $1,578,000,000 12 months later. It thus appears that while progress has been made toward liquidation in commercial lines, commercial loans at the Federal Reserve Banks are still $200,000,000 above what they were 20 months ago. One sees in this the evidence that, while paying off bank loans has gone on rapidly and thoroughly in many lines, there still remain certain big items of "frozen credits."

Among these is the vast floating debt—estimated at something like $4,500,000,000—representing the accumulation of years of unpaid balances due this country in the foreign trade, which the banks have had to carry. Then there are the enormous supplies of raw materials of various kinds—cotton, rubber, sugar, hides and the like—which it would be difficult to sell under present conditions even if the sellers were willing, which they are not in most intsances, which they are not in most losses. These unsold surpluses are also a dead weight upon the shoulders of the banks.

Next Week's Dividends.

Next week will be important for its dividend meetings, which will have a lot to do with the immediate course of the stocks concerned and probably also with that of the general market. Among the companies scheduled to take up dividend questions are Famous Players, Worthington Pump, Montana Power, Railway Steel Spring.

Foreign Exchange and Domestic Money

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—There were so many uncertainties in the international situation as well as in the domestic affairs of this country that foreign exchange rates during the week were subject to some confusion. The German reparations payments naturally had some influence, marks selling down to the lowest point recorded in a long time past, which had a depressing influence elsewhere in the exchange list. At 1.06@1.07 the quotation was down probably the lowest point reached in the current year, although there was some dispute as to the accuracy of such a statement in foreign exchange circles. The cabled reports that the proposed interallied finance conferees might take steps to prevent demoralization in the market which resulted in the previous reparations payment, had some influence, although it was admitted that the German Government naturally must operate in these exchange transactions as secretly as possible in order to derive the greatest advantage from its efforts.

There was some diversity of opinion as to the outlook for exchange rates of practically all European countries, and as a result at times during the week the market presented a dullness which had not been seen for a long time past. The sterling market was an apathetic one, while francs both reacted and rallied in sympathy with the sterling market. Italian exchange was extremely quiet, with reactionary tendency.

In view of the many cross currents in the general industrial situation both here and aboard which it is thought may continue for a long time to come and which naturally will create uncertainties there was a disposition on the part of those specializing in the exchange market to assume a most conservative policy in the matter of entertaining fresh commitments.

In the peseta market some irregularity was shown early in the week, with a moderate rally later on, as a result of buying orders said to be for South American account. The announcement that the Argentine loan negotiations had fallen through had a depressing influence on South American exchanges, and the future course of the market therefore will be watched with considerable interest. It was difficult to find any of the leading foreign exchange experts who were willing to advance predictions one way or the other in this connection.

Trading was dull and uninteresting Saturday.

Prime mercantile paper was quoted 6 to 6¼ per cent.

Following are Saturday's quotations in the foreign exchange market:

BUSINESS IS LIGHT ON NEW YORK CURB

Transactions Are Largely of Professional Character—Bonds Inquiry Good at Week-End.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Transactions on the curb market today were limited and of professional character. Todd Ship Yards Corp., which was neglected for some time past developed firmness and advanced sharply. The Commonwealth Finance issues were in fair demand, but prices held close to yesterday's level. United Retail Candy and United Profit Sharing were quiet but steady. Farrell Coal and the motor stocks were practically passed up in the day's trading.

Business in oils was the smallest for some time past. The Cities Service issues were steady, with the exception of the preferred shares, which after opening up a point, later lost the entire gain on liberal offerings. Continued heaviness was shown in Carib Syndicate, that stock selling down to [illegible] the lowest price touched in a long period. International Petroleum, Maracaibo and Simms Petroleum were quiet but steady. A fair inquiry was in evidence in the cheaper oils, but price changes in this group were unimportant.

There was a good inquiry for bonds but only small fluctuations were recorded. On fairly liberal offerings Switzerland 5½s developed heaviness. American Telephone and Telegraph 6s and Anaconda 6s were firm.

Bank Abandons Three Branches.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Because of unprofitable business due to conditions in South and Central America, the National City Bank has announced that it had decided to abandon its branches in Bogota, Medellin and Barranquilla, Colombia.

EXCHANGE CHAOS RELIEF WAITS ON EXPORT OF GOODS

Debtor Nations Should Be Encouraged to Discharge Indebtedness Through Shipments and Performance of Services, Contends London Writer.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Arthur W. Kiddy, financial editor of the London Morning Post and editor of the Bankers' Magazine, in today's financial review says:

"Any survey of the financial outlook which ignores the great political and human factors involved is incomplete, because the war upheaval was political and social, as well as economic, and because credit, both international and local rests on adequate recognition, both international and local of the importance of good will and mutual interests. In some way the war spirit, again international and local, as expressed in sheer force, must be eliminated before any reliable financial and economic progress can be achieved.

Complete Understanding Urged.

"It is because the difficulty is so great, however, especially in international affairs, that I have always emphasized the necessity of complete understanding and active co-operation between America and England as essential for giving the necessary lead, and the sooner those two countries recognize the magnitude of the task and the necessity for joint action, the better it will be for the world. Apart from natural kinship, the reason why joint action on the part of these two Powers is so essential is that both are really the freest from military aims. It is true that their economic and commercial interests may occasionally clash, but both will ultimately find that for some years their economic progres will be barred unless they have been able to check the militant and bolshevik spirit in other directions. To put the matter in plain language, though the war in Flanders is over, a new struggle to determine on what principles post-war civilization should be founded is now in progress.

"There is no way out of the exchange chaos save by all creditor nations, including our own, recognizing not only the reasonableness, but the desirability of debtor nations being encouraged to discharge their indebtedness through the export of goods and the performance of services. This necessarily occasions temporary sacrifice by the workers in all creditor countries, including America and Britain, but is essential as paving the way to ultimate general prosperity.

"Forgiving debt, except in exceptional circumstances is childish, harmful and pauperizing and the sooner Gerat Britain and America arrange their own indebtedness, the better the way will be paved for mutual understanding. No better tonic to debtor nations exists than a reminder of their indebtedness, provided it is combined with a reasonable recognition in the case of devastated countries that bricks cannot be made without straw. It is not considered that an international conference on the exchanges would do much good unless the cardinal principles already enunciated are accepted, because the call to increased industry by workers in the debtor countries is more important than mere remedial schemes for stabilizing exchange.

Moderately Firm Money Expected.

"Unless the Irish deadlock develops into acute civil war, which is possible, our autumn outlook is for new loans, moderately firm money rates and a revival in trade activity. Some nasty losses in important financial quarters may possibly yet be disclosed, however, if trade depression continues. In this case securities may be temporarily affected."

LIVESTOCK MEN ARE URGED TO REDUCE THEIR SHIPMENTS

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—A movement by commission men and packers to restrict incoming shipments of livestock came today in an appeal sent broadcas by Everett C. Brown, president of the National Livestock Exchange.

"The dressed beef trade is in a demoralized condition," it was explained. "Although wholesale prices of beef have dropped until forequarters are selling in some places at 4 cents a pound, retail prices have not come down.

"With retail prices up, the public is not buying with that condition existing, the retailer, of course is not selling and is consequently not buying from the wholesaler, who in turn has restricted his orders from the packers."

If retailers lower their prices in comparison with the decline in wholesale prices, it was argued, the public would be stimulated into buying the cheaper cuts of meat, thus opening the market for distribution all the way along the line.

Storage space on the Atlantic seaboard, it was declared, is so congested that beef arriving from the West cannot be unloaded.

Dry Goods Market.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Dry goods were firm and quieter today. Many lines of colored yard goods are sold well ahead. Gray goods are strong at top prices. Underwear is awaiting larger orders from jobbers for the fall season. Burlap has been stronger lately and prices today were up more than ¼ cent from the low of the week.

SHARP DECLINES MARK GRAIN TRADE OF WEEK

Action of Stock Market Bearish Influence — Longs Liquidate —Corn Follows Wheat.

Prices for all grains and provisions fell sharply during the past week.

Downturns in the value of wheat began under the influence of stock market depression. Northwest wheat receipts also were factor. Attention of traders centered especially on official announcement that 5,700,000 people in the United States were out of work, and on Federel Reserve Board statements about other factors operating against mercantile progress. Heavy liquidation on the part of holders of wheat ensued, and with bears operating on an extensive scale, the market appeared for awhile to have no support except from profit-taking shorts. On the decline, export demand became broader and country offerings were reported decreased. Selling pressure remained sufficient to prevent any decided upturn.

Corn and oats descended with wheat, and touched the lowest level at this season since 1906.

Provisions were pulled down by weakness in the hog market, as well as in grain.

WHEAT PRICES SLUMP IN LATE TRADING AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Wheat displayed some strength at the opening today. This was brought about mainly by the buying of local traders. The bulge, however, was not maintained, as offerings increased on the advances, which were ⅛c to 1¼c higher, with September at $1.17¼ to $1.18 and December at $1.18 to $1.18½, were followed by a setback that threw the market figures to around yesterday's close, but then the market rallied slightly.

December wheat sold down to a new low on the crop during the last hour and September was also carried along. Trading was not large and was mainly of a local character. The close was weak, 2½@4c net lower, with September at $1.14½@1.14¾ and December at $1.15¼@1.15½.

Corn displayed further weakness at the opening, some selling of September and buying of December drove the figures to a new low level. The market opened unchanged to ⅛c lower, with September at 52c to 52⅛c. A fractional rally on December followed and the market displayed some firmness.

Corn was under pressure and while rallying at times held within relatively narrow limits. The market closed weak, unchanged to a shade lower, with September at 51⅞@52c and December at 52½@52⅝c.

Oats showed independent strength, opening ⅛c higher and maintaing part of the advance, with September at 33⅛c to 33¼c.

Reports of good export demand had little effect, even though the seaboard estimated that around one million bushels had been sold abroad the last week.

Country corn offerings were much smaller and cash prices unchanged.

Oats averaged higher, although closing around the inside figures in sympathy with the breaks in other grains.

Provisions averaged somewhat lower with some buying of lard credited to packers, while commission houses sold on the break of 25c to 35c in hogs and the weakness in grain.

CATTLE AND HOGS HERE SELL ON LOWER BASIS

Corn-Fed Steers and Yearlings Are Exception — Sheep Prices Are Higher.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Cattle and calves	26,108	25,867	28,380
Hogs	40,829	41,227	41,151
Sheep	15,582	23,308	12,962
Horses and mules	818	1,166	2,958
Totals	83,337	91,568	85,451

Excepting best corn-fed steers and yearlings, the market for which was again higher, the general tendency in live cattle values at St. Louis the past week was downward. Hogs closed lower for the period, sheep advanced, while lambs showed relatively small price change.

The run of cattle was comparatively large (26,000 head), and consignments again consisted largely of common grass stock, including about 245 cars of Southwestern range cattle. These Texas and Oklahoma steers suffered the most severe decline of any grade, values closing 75c to $1 lower for the period. The range in price was from $4 to $7.20, and the bulk went at $5.50 to $6.50 per 100 pounds. Common and medium grass steers from native territory broke 50c to 75c, and fair to medium kinds ruled 25c to 50c off. The strictly best, on the other hand, advanced 25c. The top and highest price received locally since early in January was $10.25, paid Thursday for 3 cars of steers on the yearling order. Other good lots of steers and yearlings ranged from $9 to $10. Common grass steers found slow movement a greater part of the week and trade closed 25c and in spots 50c down. Most sold from $4.50 to $7. The butcher cow market was extremely dull throughout and values ruled off 50c and in some instances 75c. Canner and cutter cows, on the other hand, held about steady, sales ranging from $1.75 to $3. Butcher cows late in the week were selling from $3.50 to $5 for the greater part.

Bulls closed 25c or more lower, values ranging from $3.50 to $5. Stocker and feeder stuff opened strong for the week, but values ruled off later, closing prices averaging 25c down. Veal calves ruled steady to strong, top Friday making $9.25.

Hogs Are Irregular.

Hog market declined rapidly the first three days of the past week, and on Wednesday the top fell to $10, or a big dollar lower than the close of the preceding week. Thursday the market reacted slightly and on Friday a good advance was scored, the top going to $10.50, where it remained in the closing session. General market is 50c lower for the week. Lack of shipping orders due to high prices here as compared to other markets was said to be one of the influences contributing to the decline. Orders were very light at all times and the big packers also bought sparingly. Best light and butcher hogs are found selling from $10.25@10.50, medium weights, 220 to 250 pounds, from $10@10.35 and heavies from $9.75@10. Best weight pigs sold from $10@10.50, medium weight $9.50@10 and light kinds under 100 pounds from $9@9.50. Best sows were found selling at $7.75 and stags $6.75@7, which prices were also 50 cents lower. Receipts for the period were 40,829, against 41,227 a week previous.

Lambs Are Better.

Owing to greatly diminished receipts the past week, the lamb market reacted and recovered the previous week's 25@50c decline on better grades. Cull lambs and fat sheep and other aged grades sold unchanged. Lambs which were hard pressed to bring $9 at the close of the preceding week sold to shippers all during the week at $9.50, although packers did not go over $9.25 and filled most of their orders on $9 lambs. However, they did not get first pick and the real top kinds sold mostly at $9.50. Southwest lambs sold from $8.50@8.75, showing a 25c advance. Cull lambs sold from $2@4.50, fat sheep $3@4, breeding ewes $4.50@5, canners 50c to $1 and choppers and bucks $1.50@2. Receipts for the period were 15,632, against 23,308 the preceding week and 12,963 a year ago.

Under light receipts and a moderate demand, the horse market ruled steady to strong at St. Louis for the week under review. Fat, little Southerners of low price commanded the best attention and strength, where shown, was confined largely to these. The popular price was around $30 per head. Larger and higher priced Southerners, also Eastern horses, were not in such strong request and the market ruled slow at no better than steady prices. Commision receipts of horses aggregated 225 head. There were virtually no Westerns, though sales are scheduled for this week.

Th mule run was also comparatively small, but the market failed to show any improvement, values continuing on a low basis. Demand, moreover, was restricted almost wholly to good miners or little mules for export.

COTTON MARKET IS IRREGULAR AT CLOSE

Week-End Reviews of Goods Trade Factor—Selling on Weather Prospects.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The cotton market was very quiet, but showed a generally steady tone during today's early trading. There was some Southern selling at the opening, but trade interests were moderate buyers and there was a scattering demand encouraged by favorable week-end reviews of the goods trade and higher temperatures in the Southwest. The market opened steady at an advance of 2 to 6 points in consequence, and sold about 5 to 9 points net higher after the call, with December ruling around 13.50c to 13.52c, compared with 13.43c at the close yesterday. Private cables reported rather a better tone in the Manchester market toward the end of the week. The early Southern selling was accompanied by reports that the basis was a shade easier in the Southwest yesterday.

Trading remained very quiet and fluctuation later were narrow and irregular, with some scattered selling on prospects for cooler weather in the Southwest. December fluctuated between 13.41c and 13.52c, closing at 13.47c, with the general market closing steady, net 7 points higher to 11 lower.

Sales of print cloths in the Fall River district for the week were estimated at 10,000 pieces and the curtailment of production 110,000. The moderate increase in mill production there was said to result from increases in running time rather than the reemployment of idle machinery. At the close of business yesterday 130,000 bales of cotton were reported in shipboard awaiting clearance, compared with only 30,000 at the same time last year.

Cotton Exports Are Smaller.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Cotton exports during the past fiscal year showed a decline of 21 per cent in quantity and a decrease of 57 per cent in value, due to lower prices, according to a report issued today by the Commerce Department.

Exports of cotton, the report says, fell from 3,544,000,000 pounds, valued at $1,382,000,000 in 1920, to 2,811,000,000 lbs. valued at $600,000,000, in 1921. Imports of cotton, largely Egyptian, the report added, were less by 220,000,000 pounds in quantity and $112,000,000 in value in the last year.

Week's Pictures

"The Whistle," "Carnival," "Stranger Than Fiction," "Little Italy" on View

William S. Hart, Katherine Mac Donald and Alice Brady Stars in Leading Local Offerings.

WILLIAM S. HART in his latest picture, "The Whistle," will be the feature attraction at the Missouri Theater this week. This is said to have many dramatic thrills and to be off the beaten track of Hart productions. Hart has the role of a factory worker.

The story turns about the hero's effort to mete out justice to a man whose selfishness has caused the death of a child. One of the striking scenes shows a bridge tender asleep at his post and an automobile falling from the open bridge into the water.

A large part of the Missouri program for the week will be given over to a musical and scenic feature called "Memories of Caruso." A tenor has been engaged to sing many of the songs with which Caruso delighted opera-goers.

Katherine MacDonald and Wesley (Freckles) Barry in "Stranger Than Fiction" is the week's bill at the New Grand Central. The heroine is a society girl who goes into the slums to aid her fiance in breaking up a band of criminals known as the "Black Heart Gang." Events are complicated by the fact that the hero doesn't know she is doing this. Unwittingly they work at cross purposes and the young woman has many strange adventures. The picture is described as a thriller.

"Carnival," a picture said to have been produced in Venice, Italy, is the week's leading attraction at the West End Lyric and Lyric Skydome. It has an English cast. The leading motive is jealousy. An actor who suspects his wife is so carried away while playing the role of Othello that he almost kills his wife, who is playing opposite him. The picture is said to contain many actual scenes of carnival time in Venice.

At the Capitol Theater, Douglas McLean, screen star, will appear in person, and the film feature will be "A Thousand to One," with Hobart Bosworth heading the cast.

Alice Brady in "Little Italy" will be the offering for the first half of the week at the Kings Theater.

The Liberty announces that it will open for the fall season Sept. 3 with "Over the Hill."

On Local Screens

Missouri—William S. Hart in "The Whistle."

New Grand Central—Katherine MacDonald in "Stranger Than Fiction."

West End Lyric—Hilda Bailey in "Carnival."

Kings—Alice Brady in "Little Italy."

Strand—Mabel Ballin in "The Journey's End."

ODD FACTS ABOUT PICTURE PLAYERS AND FILMS

MOST fire scenes are faked by means of smoke pots and flare torches. These smoke pots are very much like fat, short cannon-crackers, and are lighted much the same way, with a fuse. They pour forth a steady column of thick smoke quite a long time. By means of these and flashes of flame from flare torches a good director can simulate a very creditable fire scene. Occasionally where some particular effect is needed and where it can be done safely a house or building will actually be set on fire.

Charlie Murray has gone back to his first love, vaudeville. Murray, who is now 49 years old, was on the stage for 20 years before going into pictures. He was a member of the famous old vaudeville team of Murray and Mack and began his screen career with the old Biograph Company. He was a comedian with Keystone in the days of the famous old Keystone cops. Murray is 6 feet tall, weighs 200 pounds and has red hair.

Mary Miles Minter is the authority for the statement that she has seen but 15 motion pictures in all her life. Mary further says that watching herself on the screen is really agony to her.

When Alice Terry becomes Mrs. Rex Ingram she is going to become a housewife and give up her movie career. Although she could be starred in pictures for years, Miss Terry declares that she is just old-fashioned enough to want to settle down for life in a home of her own.

Tom Santschi recently celebrated the anniversary of his fifteenth year in the movies. He began with the old Selig company, some of his early pictures being "The Crisis" and "The Garden of Allah." He was born in Kokomo, Ind., and now lives at 1523 Micheltorena street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Although Bill Hart "retired" almost a year ago he is now planning a comeback next February. He said he plans to make four pictures a year, at least half of which will not be Westerns. With the censors so busy in so many States cutting out revolver, holdup and shooting scenes it is somewhat difficult to put on the old Westerns with their thrills and fights.

When you see an actor talking to himself on the screen, this is accomplished by what is known as a double exposure. These can be made in three different ways, the split stage, the transparent exposure and the oblique dissolve. The first of these is the simplest. In the split stage double exposure one-half of the film in the camera is masked or covered with a brass disc while the other half is exposed with the actor to be "double-exposed" in position on the stage. When the necessary number of feet of film is exposed the actor reverses his position, assumes the role of the other character, the film is rewound back in the camera and the mask is shifted to cover the ex-

What They Are Doing In the Movie Studios

AFTER working steadily on "The Affairs of Anatol," "The Great Moment," "Under the Lash," and "Don't Tell Everything," Gloria Swanson is in New York for a vacation far from her strenuous duties in Hollywood. Miss Swanson plans to view the Broadway theatrical productions at night and rest in the coolness of her suite at the Ritz in the daytime.

Lila Lee plays the double role of a country girl, sweet and ingenuous, and of a city girl, up to the minute in fashion, in Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle's latest picture, "Freight Prepaid."

William de Mille has completed the cutting and titling of his latest special production for Paramount, "After the Show," by Rita Weiman. He is now at work preparing for his next picture, "Miss Lulu Bett."

Howard Higgin, former production manager of Cecil B. de Mille, who was recently made a Paramount director, is busily engaged in making ready for the start of his first picture. This will be a Wallace Reid starring picture and will have the title, "Rent Free." Elmer L. Rice prepared the continuity from an original story by Izola Forrester Page and Mann Page. Work will be started as soon as Wallace Reid finishes "Don't Tell Everything," Sam Wood's special production, in which Mr. Reid is starred with Gloria Swanson and Elliott Dexter.

Agnes Ayres says she can sympathize with the American soldiers who spent much of their time in the border training camps where sandstorms were more frequent than calls to sign the payroll. For the last week Miss Ayres has been in the midst of a big sand storm, stirred up by perfectly good airplane motors, which will be one of the feature scenes in the picturization of "The Sheik," E. M. Hull's novel, which George Melford is making for Paramount.

THAT the motion picture has taken first rank by a wide margin in Australian amusement circles is indicated by information received by the Paramount foreign department. The total attendance at motion pictures during the last year was 67,466,657, or more than 13 times the population of the country, while the revenues paid to the State in the form of taxes was almost half the entire sum collected from all amusement enterprises during the year, according to reports. The rapid strides made by the motion picture industry have far outclasses the revenues received by all other forms of amusement, such as the theater, racing, dancing and skating, concerts and miscellaneous attractions.

The Cocoanut Grove at the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles, provided the ready-built setting for a big cafe scene staged for "Exit the Vamp," which Frank Urson is directing and in which Ethel Clayton is starring. The hotel orchestra was retained, the waiters "waited" and the tables were all set. The company worked all night, light being provided by a motor generator

"Shavings" First New Play of the American's Season

Orpheum's Opening Bill Announced—Shubert Vaudeville May Open Here in November—Stock Companies Elsewhere.

THE first new drama to be seen at the American Theater this season will be Joseph C. Lincoln's Cape Cod play, "Shavings," the week of Sept. 18. The American, as has been announced, will open Sept. 11 with "Twin Beds," which has been seen here before.

Harry Beresford will appear in "Shavings," as he did in the original New York production in February, 1920. The chief role is a faithful, wholesome character of the kind seen before in rural comedy.

Dramatic attractions form the principal part of the season's plans at the American. Among those which it is planned to bring here are "The Gold Diggers," "Lightnin'," Henry Miller and Blanche Bates in "The Famous Mrs. Fair," Frank McGlynn in John Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln," Mrs. Fiske, Ruth Chatterton in Barrie's "Mary Rose," Otis Skinner in "Blood and Sand" by V. Blasco Ibanez, and Nance O'Neil in "The Passion Flower."

Other dramatic bookings are Francine Larrimore in "Nice People"; David Belasco's production of "The Wandering Jew"; Grant Mitchell in "The Champion"; the Theater Guild production, "Mr. Pim Passes By"; Frances Starr in a revival of "The Easiest Way"; "Ben Hur," "Welcome Stranger," with George Sidney, and "Little Old New York." It is possible that Maude Adams will be seen in a play not yet announced.

The musical attractions include a revival of "The Merry Widow," Francis Wilson and DeWolf Hopper in "Erminie," "The Broadway Whirl," Ziegfeld Follies, George White's "Scandals of 1921" with Ann Pennington, A. L. Erlanger's "Two Little Girls in Blue," Mitzi in "Lady Billy," "June Love," "Sally," and Fred Stone in "Tip-Top."

The old standby attractions—Robert B. Mantell in Shakspearean and classic plays, Thurston, Chauncey Olcott and Neil O'Brien Minstrels—have time allotted to them at the American.

Manager Stoltz said that several of the early fall productions in New York, such as Lynn Fontaine in "Dulcy," Helen Hayes in "The Wren," Margola Gilmore in "The Straw" and Barney Bernard in "Two Blocks Away," would in all probability visit the American near the end of the season. He said the Erlanger office, which has charge of the American's bookings, had sufficient attractions to round out a season of 35 or 40 weeks.

THE Orpheum Theater has announced its opening bill, for one week from tomorrow. Nat Nazarro, gymnast-comedian, and his company, including Buck and Bubbles, will head the bill. Another act is furnished by his brother, Cliff Nazarro, and Darling Girls. Others on the program are: Dolly Kay, songstress; Lyons and Yosco, with voices, harp and violin; "Summertime," a musical extravaganza; Signor Frisco, xylophonist; Bradley and Ardine, dancers, and the Flying Murdocks.

Shubert Vaudeville

SHUBERT vaudeville is to begin in several cities next month, but St. Louis, which is included in the plans of the Messrs. Shubert for the new circuit, will not see the new enterprise before November. At last accounts, negotiations were still under way for a theater here, preferably in the Grand avenue district.

The Shubert vaudeville organization was incorporated last January. Since that time, according to the official announcements, the promoters have "signed up many of the best known and most popular headliners in America and Europe, and when the houses are opened these acts will be formed into unit organizations. The majority of the acts have been signed for a season of fifty weeks."

The houses included in the circuit plans are: New York, the Imperial and the Forty-fourth street; Chicago, the Apollo; Philadelphia, the Chestnut Street Opera House, and later the Forrest Theater; Brooklyn, the Shubert-Crescent; Newark, the Rialto; Baltimore, the Academy of Music; Washington, the Shubert-Belasco; Pittsburg, the Shubert; Cleveland, the Euclid Avenue Opera House; Detroit, the Detroit Opera House; Cincinnati, the new Shubert Theater; Dayton, the Liberty; Louisville, the Strand; Springfield, Mass., the Capitol; and houses in Providence, St. Louis and Kansas City.

Why Not in St. Louis

THE stock company, abandoned in recent seasons in St. Louis, is succeeding elsewhere. The Bonstelle players will complete a 15 weeks' summer season in the Garrick Theater, Detroit, this week, this being their twelfth season. A sister company plays in Buffalo. The Maude Fealey Players are carrying on in Columbus, O. Chamberlain Brown, New York dramatic agent, says there are about 40 stock com-

'The Four Horsemen' Will Be Shown at Shubert-Jefferson

Rev. Ingram's production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" is announced as the opening attraction at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater, beginning on Sunday evening, Aug. 28 and continuing for the week, with two performances daily, matinee at 2:30 and evenings at 8:30. This will be the first showing here of the screen version of Vincente Blasco Ibanez's novel.

The picture adapted by June Mathes from the great novel is said to have intensified the dramatic force of the original story which brings home the terror and grandeur of the world war—and a great deal of the humor and light-hearted gaiety that kept bubbling up through the turbid stream of struggling humanity when the world was in arms.

The director was Rex Ingram. He aims to make us see above the struggle the awesome figures of the four horsemen, Conquest, War, Famine and Death, prophesied by St. John in the Book of the Apocalypse.

Le Baron Farce Pleases; "Sonya" Needs a Score; "Sonny" Proves Syrupy

Week's New York Openings Include Polish Drama With Operetta-Like Plot, and Comedy by George V. Hobart.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.

WILLIAM LE BARON, whose best-remembered past performances are that capital farce, "The Very Idea," and the adaptation of "A Marriage of Convenience," which last season served as the libretto of "Apple Blossoms," is the author of "Nobody's Money," in which the plausible Wallace Eddinger exercises all the prerogatives of a star except having his name printed in large type on the program.

At the Longacre Theater, the first half hour of the performance was a bit heavy and sultry. But once Mr. Le Baron had laid the foundation of his story, the humidity of his humor began to decrease, the barometer of merriment rose rapidly, and by the time the end was reached there was no doubt of the comfortable state of the audience's mind—which, after all, is about everything that can be reasonably demanded of a farce.

The formula of the new piece is the always dependable one of amiable mendacity, in which a collection of cheerful young miscreants march to triumphs by the exercise of nimble wit and bland mendacity, and live honestly ever after. It is another of those often-recurring little plays which prove how effective the Eleventh Commandment may be when it is faithfully followed.

A pair of successful young magazine writers create a fictitious third person, to whom they credit their literary products to which they do not wish to attach their own names. When they publish a dangerous libel on the Governor of the State and are about to be held to account, they are confronted with the necessity of finding a living substitute for the fictitious personage they have created.

Some Melodrama Here.

A plausible book agent, in adventurous partnership with a burglar, accepts this literary distinction which the authors thrust upon him. While trying at the Governor's house to repair the libel, he discovers through his partner, the burglar, that the Governor has made the victim of a "plant" by his political enemy, a powerful lumber trust.

The trust attempts to prove the crookedness of the Governor by means of a bundle of bribe money that has been placed surreptitiously in the official's safe. But when search is made for it no money is found, for the reason that the masquerading writer's partner, the burglar, has got there first. When the bank roll at last turns up, no one will claim it. It is "Nobody's Money," and with it as a backstop, the burglar and the book agent turn to honest ways.

The new farce was acted with the requisite speed and with due regard to its humorous possibilities. Mr. Eddinger was suave and amusing as the book agent, though his role did not have much freshness to commend it. A more amusing creation by far was his partner, the burglar, a reformed actor, played by Will Deeming, who expressed himself in quotations from the roles he had acted during the dark days of his career. There were, also, the grotesquely humorous Helen Lowell as a landlady, Frederick Raymond Jr., Robert Strange, Regina Wallace and Jean Roberts. These and the others played "Nobody's Money" as if they enjoyed it, which is one of the secrets of successful farcical acting.

"Sonya," From the Polish

A MUSICAL score by Franz Lehar or Oscar Straus or almost any other composer might have been of vast benefit to the new play at the Forty-eighth Street Theater whose author bore the formidable name Gabryela Zapolska. There were pauses in its exotic story when a plaintive love duet or a lilting waltz song or a mad mazurka seemed almost inevitable. The curtain after each act hesitated to fall, as if waiting for the chorus to come prancing forth. There was, indeed, almost every ingredient in "Sonya" that one expects to find in a romantic operatta with a Balkan locale. Even the title proclaimed its melodic needs.

But Eugene Thomas Wyckoff (said to be a pseudonym to hide the identity of the American adapter)

Impressions of Broadway Plays

Impressions of some current New York theatrical attractions have been written for the Post-Dispatch by a St. Louis woman of literary attainments, now in New York. Under the head, "Dogdays on Broadway," this woman, who signs herself "The Transient," writes:

"LILIOM," presented by the Theater Guild, is the most encouraging fact I have encountered on Broadway this summer. "Liliom," and that it continues to draw crowded houses.

The play is labeled "A Legend in Seven Scenes and a Prologue." It is by Franz Molnar. A footnote tells us that Liliom is the Hungarian for lily, a slang term for "a tough."

And a tough is what Liliom is. Joseph Schildkraut plays the tough. And I cannot say enough for the subtlety and convincingness of his acting. Watch Joseph Schildkraut. He is a great actor.

Eva Le Gallienne is the servant girl who loves Liliom while he lives and after he is dead. Her interpretation is flawless.

Helen Westley plays the proprietor of the merry-go-round with consummate art. Her costuming alone is an achievement.

Of Dudley Digges' performance it is difficult to write with moderation. He plays the crook who lures Liliom to death. His gestures, his sinister whistle, the nasal twang to his ill-omened words are beyond criticism; beyond criticism, the snapping of his fingers when he would attract Liliom's attention—Liliom, who is dead; beyond criticism his buzzard-like shrinking into the shadows when the inconceivable truth dawns upon him.

Career of a Tough.

We watch Liliom through scene after scene; he loses his job as barker for a merry-go-round, he takes up with Julie and gambles and drinks and beats her and plots with a crook to rob a cashier, and loses to the crook by cards the money he hasn't yet got by killing the cashier. We see him captured by the police. We behold him dead and at the bar of judgment—the tough still. We watch him swagger through the fiery portals. In the end he returns to earth to do one good deed, and we see him strike his child—the tough still. But we hear—mark the art of this—we hear Julie tell the child, "Some time someone can strike you, and it is like love."

The court scene in heaven is convincing. I have spoken with no one who felt otherwise. Perhaps this is the play's supremest compliment. It is not easy to present heaven on the stage!

One is impressed by the lack of words; the play carries almost by pantomime. The love scene between Liliom and Julie is the acme of inarticulateness. Liliom carries it by the intonation of a bar of whistling; Julie by a repeated gestured nudge.

The greatness of "Liliom" lies in its utter fidelity to truth. Nothing is sentimentalized, nothing exaggerated, nothing thrown out of focus. We see Liliom. We know that he is a tough, a gambler, a drunkard, a wastrel, a woman-beater. And we love him. It is as if we were God.

"Liliom" is to have an English presentation next winter. Drama in America has no need for shame!

Resourceful Larry.

A WELL-KNOWN reviewer remarked in a magazine article some time ago that Larry Semon, the Vitagraph comedian, if necessary could make a funny picture with no other assets than a broomstick and a tin can. It is sure that Larry possesses the faculty of taking instant advantage of whatever may offer itself in the way of a situation. On Vitagraph's Hollywood lot the past week, during the filming of "The Bell Hop," Larry decided to take two parts. The idea was not in his original script, but he decided to put it in, as one of the characters who had been assigned a part did not come up to Larry's specifications. There being no one else who seemed to fit in, Larry disappeared from the set and reappeared a half hour later in one of the funniest makeups ever seen on a comedy set. It was several minutes before some of his acquaintances recognized him.

An old fashioned torchlight parade is to be the chief item of the festivities, with members of the Lambs, the Green Room Club, and the Actors' Equity Association assembling at the Gaiety Theater with bands, colors and red fire to escort the "Lightnin'" players to some appropriate place for speeches and a "send-off."

When "Lightnin'" leaves New York it will have played an even three years at the Gaiety Theater, uninterrupted save by a brief hiatus when it was stopped by the actors' strike in 1919. The only longer run anywhere in the world was that of the English production of "Chu Chin Chow."

"Lightnin'" will have had 1291 performances in New York—a striking contrast to the records of an earlier day. Edwin Booth caused a sensation when he played 100 consecutive nights in "Hamlet," and "The Black Crook's" career of 476 performances was considered a record that would never be equaled. Other famous runs were those of "The Old Homestead," 372 performances; "The Fortune Hunter," 445; "Turn to the Right," 453; "Hazel Kirke," 487; "The Boomerang," 523; "The Music Master," 541; "Adonis," 604; "Peg o' My Heart," 605; "A Trip to Chinatown," 657, and "The Gold Diggers," 90 weeks, or approximately 720 performances. "A Trip to Chinatown" held the American record until March 17, 1920, when "Lightnin'" passed it. "The Gold Diggers" ran coincidently with "Lightnin'," so that its achievement was overshadowed by that of Frank Bacon's play.

"Chu Chin Chow" expired with its 2238th London performance, having had a continuous run from Aug. 31, 1916, to July 22, 1921. Oscar Asche almost cried as he made a farewell address to the audience. The pit and gallery lines began to form at 10 a. m. and the leaders waited 10 hours to be admitted. Asche is now at work on the production of "Mecca," which will appear under another name because the censor fears to hurt the feelings of the King's Mohammedan subjects.

The Sincerest Flattery

A PROFESSIONAL play reader, employed by a New York syndicate, reports that he has read this summer six imitations of "Lightnin'," five efforts modeled on "The First Year," two thinly disguised copies of "The Tavern," and three replicas of "Peg o' My Heart," one of them designed for a negro theater. In view of the prevalence of crook plays in recent months, he is expecting a fall diet of burglary and forgery.

H. K. Tootle's New Play

A NEW drama, "Cheated," by Harry King Tootle, former St. Louis poet and playwright, had its first production recently by a stock company in Wheeling, W. Va. Tootle was at one time a contributor to Reedy's Mirror. In his play, the chief situation is the conflict in a surgeon's mind between love and professional duty.

Minnie Seligman's Estate

MINNIE SELIGMAN, former star of two St. Louis stock companies, left an estate valued at $414,087.74, according to a recent appraisal. She died March 1, 1919, aged about 50. She was thrice married, her second husband being Robert Fulton Cutting Jr., member of a prominent New York family. The third husband, William Bramwell Downing, who survived her, will receive most of her personal property, valued at $384,629.24, as she left no will. The personal property includes coal, copper, chemical and asphalt company stocks.

Ziegfeld Against Bobbing

FOLLOWING the announcement that Marilynn Miller of the "Follies" had bobbed her hair, F. Ziegfeld Jr. telegraphed from Chicago, ordering that this notice be posted on the call boards of the New Amsterdam and Globe Theaters:

"The chorus singers are requested to refrain from bobbing their hair."

This request applies to the choruses of the "Follies" and "Sally."

"Refrain Girls" Now

ABUSE and promiscuous use of the term "chorus girl" have caused some of the young women of the chorus to seek a new name to designate their occupation. A committee of the chorus of a New York production has decided on the term "refrain girls" as being suitable. "Refrainer" is a possible shortening of this term.

DON'T SQUEEZE BLACKHEADS—DISSOLVE THEM

Squeezing and pinching out blackheads make the pores large and cause irritation—then, too, after they have become hard you cannot get all of them out. Blackheads are caused by accumulations of dust and dirt and secretions from the skin, and there is only one safe and sure way, and one that never fails to get rid of them—a simple way, too—that is to dissolve them. Just get from any drug store about two ounces of calonite powder—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off and you'll be surprised to see that every blackhead has disappeared, and the skin will be left soft and the pores in their natural condition. Anyone troubled with these unsightly blemishes should try this simple method.

ing for Vitagraph. The company has gone North to film some special exteriors described by Mr. Curwood in the book from which this picture is being adapted.

One Critic's Selection.

Analee Vernon, the Broadway critic, after viewing pre-release showings has picked the six best cinemas for September as follows:

Cecil B. de Mille's "The Affairs of Anatol."

"The Great Moment," a photoplay by Elinor Glyn with Gloria Swanson starring.

"At the End of the World," starring Betty Compson.

"The Golem," a European picture based on an old legend of the Ghetto.

"The Midnight Bell," a Charles Ray picture

Wallace Reid in "The Hell Diggers."

"Lucky Carson" is the title of the picture which Earle Williams will star in immediately after "Bring Him In." "Lucky Carson" is an adaptation of the widely read novel "Salvage," by Aquilla Kempster. His current production, "Bring Him In," is a rugged and dramatic tale of the Canadian Northwest mounted police and Williams appears in the scarlet coat of the famous guardians of the law north of 53.

"The Son of Wallingford," by George Randolph Chester, has undergone thorough titling and editing except for the very final touches, and will be seen on the screens of the country within the next few weeks. This picture, written, adapted and directed by the creator of the famed "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" characters, is the biggest production ever put out by the Vitagraph company, or perhaps any other, with one or two possible exceptions. It was a year in the making, required engineering feats which have helped to make film history, and thousands of actors and actresses appear in some of the scenes.

Pauline Frederick, starring in R-C Pictures, has what is probably the greatest collection of fans in existence at her home, Beverley Hills, near Los Angeles. They have come from all corners of the world and range from flimsy trifles of lace worth hundreds of dollars to equally valuable and costly samples of the carved ivory fans of the Orient. Some have jeweled sticks, others are of nacre and still others of precious woods. They range in size from tiny fans seemingly only toys to huge fans of ostrich feathers, with long handles, that were made to be swung by black slaves over the couch of an African Prince.

"Everyone owes it to himself to spend a part of each day exercising both mind and body," is a proverb of Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese star in R-C Pictures. He practices what he preaches, giving 20 minutes each morning before breakfast, to a series of setting-up exercises that bring into play every muscle of his wonderfully developed body. He uses no apparatus, but employs a system which he calls "muscle resistance."

Edith Storey, who is the star in "The Greater Profit" and "Beach of Dreams," R-C Pictures, says that nothing else that she has ever done has given her as great happiness as transporting convalescent soldiers to and from the theaters during the recent war. Miss Storey, it will be remembered, was one of the first of the American actresses to volunteer her services in the home section of the motor transportation organization.

The delicate beauty and charm of manner that captivated New York, London and Paris several years ago when she was in vaudeville, are making Kathleen Clifford one of the leading favorites on the screen. Her work opposite J. P. McGowan in the R-C picture, "Cold Steel," is being widely praised for its finished quality and its dramatic power.

William Probert Carleton, who off the stage is William Probert Standing, is a cousin of Wyndham Standing and a brother of Herbert Standing. He is a leading man in R-C pictures produced by Gasnier.

ODD FACTS ABOUT PICTURE PLAYERS AND FILMS

posed half of the film. Then as the actor portrays the other half of his dual role it is recorded on the unexposed half of the film. It is in this manner that scenes are made of the same person who is shown talking to himself. In making a scene of this kind the camera must not be moved even a fraction of an inch, and the actor must be very careful how he moves about the stage that he does not get out of focus. All his movements are regulated by the counting of the director so that they shall be in harmony with the movements of his other self on the other half of the film.

The late Olive Thomas' double has been found by the Selznick company in Diana Allen, who was born just a few years ago in Gotland, Sweden. Like Miss Thomas she was a Ziegfeld chorus beauty and like her also has brown hair and blue eyes.

Edwin Stevens has been the unusually busy screen actor. But Stevens' life has been an unusual one in many ways. He was born in California, educated in the University of California and spent his youthful post-college days in banking, mining and scouting. In 1881 he began his stage career, among other plays appearing in "The School for Scandal" and "The Devil." In his screen career he has been both a director and a player. His latest picture is "Slippy McGee."

Norma Talmadge began with the old Vitagraph company when she was 14 years old.

PLAYS OF THE WEEK IN NEW YORK THEATERS

preferred to take seriously this artificial romantic work of the Polish theater. Although he contrived a happy ending, for a story whose incidents seemed to lead in the other direction, he insisted upon transferring it to our vernacular as a romance that might actually have taken place.

Therefore much had to be accepted on faith, in the doings of the characters who breathed only the rarified air of the theater. They did—what Princes and courtiers of petty Balkan principalities have been doing on the stage since time immemorial. So familiar was the formula of Gabryela Zapolska's glimpse into the life of Eastern European royalty that the sophisticated found no difficulty in keeping several paces ahead of its unfolding.

There was the youthful Prince, shut up in his gloomy palace and ignorant of the pleasures of the outside world. There were the intriguing members of his court who were bent upon finding for him a mistress of their own selection, so that they might better spy on his thoughts and actions. There was also the aged King, with one foot in the grave, and there were plots and counterplots to arrange a loveless marriage for the youth who was soon to become his successor.

Foils Conspirators.

The mistress whom the conspirators provided for young Prince Alexander was a dancer in the Russian ballet. Her grace in the ballet was exceeded only by her purity and goodness. It was she who proposed to the Prince that she would only pretend to be his mistress, and would actually become his friend and companion. Out of this circumstance was spun the romance that needed three acts to bring it to a close. The Prince won Sonya, and an ancient edict was unearthed which made it possible for him to ascend his throne after having found a wife among the common people.

Most of the opening act was dull. Most of the episodes that came later moved slowly. There also was evidence of a lack of skill in patching the incidents together. The company found difficulty in making their characters ring true. But Violet Heming made Sonya alluring, and acted her love scenes with the Prince with a good deal of rapture. Her sullen resistance when she was attacked by a drunken courtier was also effectively done.

Otto Kruger made Prince Alexander a likable young fellow, wholly undistinguished. William H. Thompson, as the Prince's old uncle, was the most convincing character in the play, although Edward Emery did all that was possible with the role of a dissolute court intriguer. Other characters were hazy puppets.

Music would supply the missing excuse for "Sonya." As a bit of romantic drama to be taken seriously, it is about a quarter of a century out of date.

"Sonny," by G. V. Hobart

COMPLETE lack of pretentiousness, and disarming amiability, shield "Sonny" from some of the unkind comment it otherwise would invite. George V. Hobart, whose abiding faith in Hokum is almost sublime, is the author of this little play which, at the Cort Theater, seemed like a faint echo of his "Buddies" of a season or so ago. He must have written it to impress a very young generation of theater goers—young enough to be still attended by their nurses. Even the treacle which he spread thickly over it was not deemed sufficient. So Raymond Hubbell had to provide a few syrupy songs. Thus "Sonny" became a "melody play."

It was about a sad happening up at Pelham Manor that was a result of the war. Charlie kissed his blind mother good-bye and marched away to fight in Flanders, promising to come back. When he lay mortally wounded on the battlefield, he exchanged identification tags with his exact double, Joe, and made Joe promise to return in his place, so that the heart of the blind mother in Pelham Manor would not be broken.

After the war, Joe had difficulty getting his bearings back at the suburb by the sound. In this way arise the mistakes which Mr. Hobart intended as the humor of his play. Even the blind mother was not fooled very long. But she resolved to love Joe for Charlie's sake. As Emma Dunn acted the sorely afflicted mother, there need be no doubt that she reached her resolution lachrymosely. Tears are Miss Dunn's specialty.

The youthful, almost verdant spirit of Mr. Hobart's play may help it with youthful audiences. The venerable age of 25 will, however, be likely to find it pretty pallid stuff. It is also a complete compendium of all the time-tried wheezes that lure the laugh. In this last respect it is almost interesting.

Ernest Glendenning played both Charlie and Joe, and did his level best to be youthful. Mabel Withee was a nurse back from France who was always on hand to help Mr. Glendenning over the musical hurdles. There was also a barber shop quartet and a number of young folk whose careers as actors lie entirely before them.

Catholic School to Be Dedicated.

Dedication of the new St. Augustine's School and hall at Lismore and Hebert streets will take place at 3 p. m. next Sunday. Archbishop Glennon will have charge of the ceremonies and various Catholic societies will take part in the exercises. Mayor Kiel is expected to speak. A parade, starting at 2:30 p. m. at Fairground Park, will precede the dedication exercises. After the ceremonies a picnic will be held on the school grounds. The basement of the building is equipped with bowling alleys.

The Reliable Furn. Co.,
8th & Franklin Ave.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Gentlemen:

As suggested in your letter of July 20th, we are mailing under separate cover, photographs of the Nos. 1441 dresser, 6441 chifforette, 7441 bed and 6441 dressing table. No. 1541 series is exactly the same in mahogany finish.

The cars covered by our invoice of July 14th were shipped in error and we must assume the full responsibility for the mistake, but we sincerely believe that with the proper reduction you will be able to dispose of the goods quickly and make a nice profit on them.

The shipment was billed to you at a discount of 20% from list and on July 16th we offered you an extra 20% discount, which we hoped would meet with your acceptance, as at this price the goods would be laid down in your store at an extremely low figure. Inasmuch as you are not entirely satisfied with the shipment at 40% off, we will authorize you to remit on the basis of 50% discount instead of 20%, and we believe the goods will be attractive to you at 50% off. We will sustain quite a loss at this discount, but since we were responsible for shipping in violation of your instructions are willing to make this concession to enable you to take in the goods and dispose of them quickly.

The invoice and bill of lading are herewith returned. The proper credit memorandum will be rendered on receipt of advice that our proposal is satisfactory.

Very truly yours,
SHOWERS BROTHERS COMPANY

60,000 FORMER TEACHERS TO RETURN TO SCHOOL ROOMS

Prediction Made That There No Longer Will Be Shortage of Educators.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON—Reports to the effect as many as 60,000 former school teachers, most of whom gave up their calling for the purpose of participating in war work of some character, are now ready to resume their old duties is taken to mean the little red schoolhouses, as well as the city schools, will not longer suffer from a shortage of instructors.

This return to school teaching has been aided to a great extent by the action of the executive departments and bureaus and commissions in Washington in dismissing thousands of war workers. A surprising percentage of those who came to Washington for work of a clerical character during the war were teachers.

This renewed interest in the public schools, which means a new vigor and devotion to their work on the part of the teachers, is certain, in the opinion of school executives, Federal, State and local, to result in good for the cause of education. And, in the same way, it is believed, backing for the Federal Department of Education also will be given impetus.

INDIAN POTTERY PLOWED UP

By the Associated Press.

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. — Several pieces of Indian pottery are on exhibition here. The pottery was found on the E. R. Shugart farm, about 12 miles below this city, on the Ouachita River. According to employes on the farm, the land was plowed this spring, and the overflow came and washed away considerable surface soil, exposing the tops of the pottery and other earthenware articles. It was said that several hundred pieces of pottery were found.

"DeLuxe" The Bedspring LUXURIOUS

Your Nervous System

controls your health. Your spine controls your nerves. And the kind of a bedspring you sleep on controls the position of your spine. Spinal distortion is responsible for many small as well as great ills.

So be careful in choosing your bedspring. Many people are suffering from poor health because the ordinary woven wire, national or coil spring on which they sleep distorts their spine and exerts pressure on delicate nerve centers.

Avoid such health disturbances and enjoy perfect, dreamless, restful sleep on a Rome De Luxe Bedspring. This spring is scientifically designed to mold itself to the anatomy, supporting all parts gently but firmly. The spine remains straight and the muscles are completely relaxed. The Rome De Luxe Bedspring can't sag. A light and heavy person may lie side by side in perfect comfort, each on his own level.

Examine the Rome De Luxe Bedspring at your dealer's. The more carefully you compare the Rome De Luxe with any spring at any price, the more certainly you will recognize its superior luxurious comfort. It is always finished in Rome Gray enamel, and on the side rail appears the Rome Quality Trade Mark, which identifies all Rome products. Look for it—it is your guarantee. The DeLuxe is interchangeable—fits either wood or metal beds.

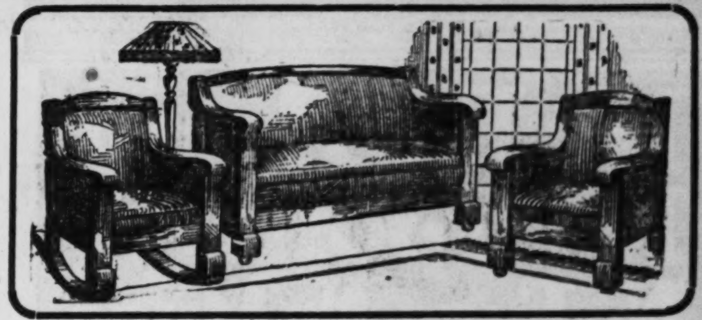
The Overstuffed Living-Room Suite

Beyond question the most luxurious and handsome appearing Suite that has ever been offered to you. Its graceful lines, its elegant appearance, will win your instant admiration—constructed to give long, satisfactory service. This remarkable Suite is full spring edge and all Marshall loose cushion spring construction.

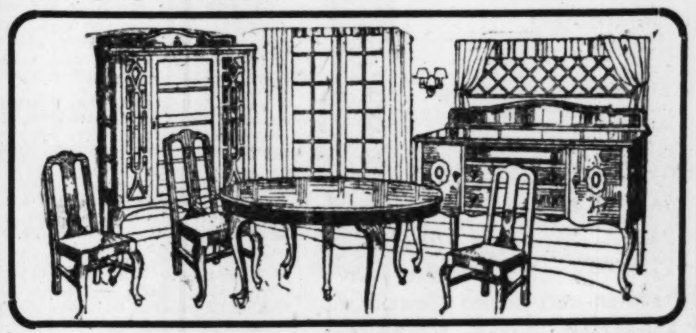
Choice Any Three Rooms Here Pictured for $398

Choice of any three rooms shown here—kitchen, bedroom and living room, or kitchen, bedroom, davenette or overstuffed suite, or kitchen, dining-room and living room. Illustrations and description fail to do full justice to the elegance of this wonderful outfit, so we suggest an inspection.



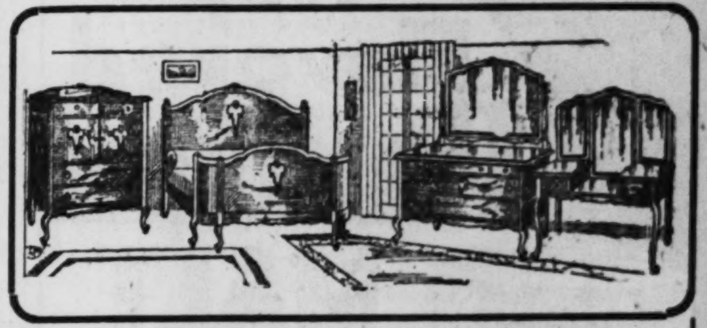
The Handsome Davenette Suite

A Davenette Suite answers a twofold purpose—that of a living and a bedroom, as this Suite includes a davenette that converts into a full-size, roomy and extremely comfortable bed. Suite is sturdily constructed of genuine oak or rich mahogany finish, finely upholstered, and consists of davenette, armchair, arm rocker and library table.



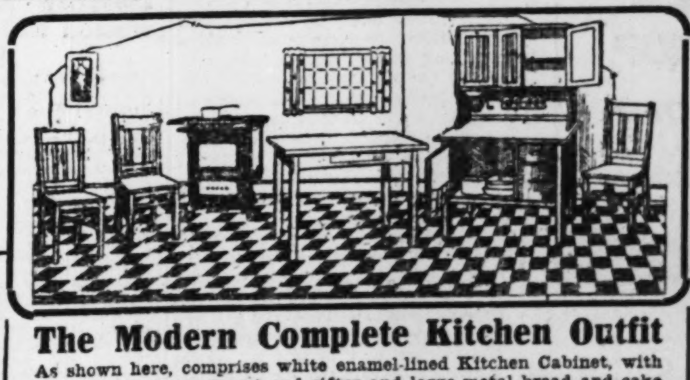
The Queen Anne Dining-Room Suite

Handsome Dining-Room Suite in Queen Anne Period design, a style that is in the height of popular favor. This Suite is superbly finished in rich walnut, and comprises large buffet, six-foot round extension table (or large oblong table can be substituted if you desire) and six full leather seat, high cathedral-back chairs.



The Elegant Queen Anne Bedroom Suite

This wonderful Suite is indeed a tribute to the furniture craftsmen; just as illustrated—magnificent Queen Anne Bedroom Suite that is finely constructed in American walnut or genuine mahogany. This exquisite Suite consists of a full-size bow-end bed, large dresser and chifforette which has three large enclosed and two open trunk drawers, as well as two small drawer compartments.



The Modern Complete Kitchen Outfit

As shown here, comprises white enamel-lined Kitchen Cabinet, with metal flour compartment and sifter and large metal bread and cake box with large compartment for pots, pans and linen drawer—a gas range—a finely constructed kitchen table and three kitchen chairs—also high-grade floorcovering in beautiful patterns.

The Big Response Proves That the Public Knows and Appreciates EXTRAORDINARY Value!

BAR COMMISSION PLANS A UNIFIED SYSTEM OF COURTS

Report of Special Committee, Made Yesterday, to Be Sent to Judges and Attorneys Throughout State.

A plan for a unified court system for Missouri, designed to relieve court congestion and lessen the law's delays, is outlined in the report made public yesterday by a special committee of the State Bar Association, as a part of the proposed new State Constitution.

John M. Atkinson of St. Louis is chairman of the special committee, and other members are former Judge Henry Lamm of Sedalia, A. A. Whitsett of Harrisonville and James M. Johnson of Kansas City. The committee's report will be sent to the members of the State bench and bar, with requests for criticisms and suggestions.

One of the most important changes proposed is the merging of the St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield Courts of Appeals into the Supreme Court. Another is the abolition of the present three-member County Court, now existing in every Missouri county, the "judges" of which are usually farmers, and the creation of a County Court with one Judge, who must be "learned in the law." Another Judge may be added when the population exceeds 150,000, but Jackson County is the only county in the State now meeting this requirement. It is provided that the Legislature may enact laws creating Boards of County Commissioners, to transact county business which the present so-called County Courts handle.

To Clear the Dockets.

It is provided that, when the Circuit Court of any judicial district is behind in its work another Circuit Judge may be designated temporarily to help out in that circuit. Circuit Judges, it is also provided, may be drafted to sit as Judges of the Supreme Court, until that court shall catch up with its docket.

The new system, as set forth in the proposed article on judiciary in the new Constitution, is in outline as follows:

The judicial power of the State shall be vested in the General Court of Judicature, which shall have three departments, the Supreme Court department, the Circuit Court department and the County Court department. The Supreme Court shall consist of a chief justice, who shall be head of the General Court of Judicature, and 18 associate justices, and the court shall sit in six divisions, at least one of these to be a criminal division. (There are now six associate justices, six commissioners and two divisions of the court.)

To dispose of cases pending in the Supreme Court Jan. 1, 1923, not more than 12 Circuit Judges may be designated to serve as Supreme Court Judges for not more than two years. Not more than one-half of the Circuit Judges so designated shall be of the same political party. The Governor may appoint special Judges to serve temporarily in the circuits from which the Circuit Judges are taken for Supreme Court duty.

The sessions of the Supreme Court in banc—not more than 9 Associate Justices and the Chief tice to sit on any case—and the sessions of Divisions 1, 2 and 3 of the court shall be held in Jefferson City; the sessions of Division 4 in St. Louis, Division 5 in Kansas City and Division 6 in Springfield, these locations continuing "until otherwise provided by law."

When the arrangement goes into effect, Jan. 1, 1923, the Judges of the three Courts of Appeals shall become Judges of the Supreme Court, and at the election of November, 1922, a Chief Justice and two additional Justices shall be elected for terms of 12 years; and the Judges subsequently elected shall serve for 12-year terms. (Present term, 10 years).

Six Judicial Districts.

The State shall be divided into six judicial districts, each with a presiding Judge, for the purposes of the Circuit Court's work. The Chief Justice shall have power to assign Circuit Judges temporarily to other circuits than their own. Every case submitted to a Circuit Judge shall be decided at the term at which it is submitted, or within 60 days thereafter.

The County Courts shall have concurred jurisdiction with the Circuit Court in matters of juvenile care and domestic relations. The County Court shall appoint justices of the peace, to serve under its supervision and direction. Local municipal courts shall also be under the County Court's supervision.

A Judicial Council, consisting of the Chief Justice, two associate justices, the presiding judges of the Circuit Court districts and two County Court judges, shall have power to prescribe, alter and amend the rules of pleading, practice and procedure.

Until otherwise provided by law, the salary of the Chief Justice shall be $15,000; that of the associate justices $12,000 each; Circuit Judges $8000, and judges of the County Court $5000.

Other provisions relate to procedure, and to clerical offices in connection with the courts. A clerk of the General Court of Judicature shall be nominated by the Chief Justice and confirmed by the Judicial Council.

Safety for Your PRESCRIPTION

Did you ever STOP TO THINK what MIGHT happen if you inadvertently replaced the WRONG LID on your prescription box? Accidents of this kind are impossible when your prescription is filled at the Judge & Dolph Stores—the Hinged Boxes prevent it.

Mother Why Don't You Take Nuxated Iron

And Be Strong and Well and Have Nice Rosy Cheeks Instead of Being Nervous and Irritable All The Time and Looking So Haggard and Old?—The Doctor Gave Some to Susie Smith's Mother and She Was Worse Off Than You are and Now She Looks Just Fine.

NUXATED IRON WILL INCREASE THE STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE OF WEAK, NERVOUS, CAREWORN, HAGGARD LOOKING WOMEN IN TWO WEEEKS' TIME IN MANY INSTANCES.

THE CHILD'S APPEAL

"There can be no Beautiful, Healthy Rosy Cheeked women without Iron."
F. KING, M. D.

"There can be no healthy, beautiful, rosy cheeked women without iron," says Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author. "I have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more organic iron—nuxated iron—for their nervous, rundown, weak, haggard-looking women patients. Pallor means anaemia. The skin of the anaemic woman is pale, the flesh flabby. The muscles lack tone, brain fags and the memory fails, and often they become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. When the iron goes from the blood of women, the roses go from their cheeks.

"In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degerminated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods, and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the waste pipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked are responsible for another grave iron loss.

"Therefore, you should supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron, just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt.

"I have used Nuxated Iron widely in my own practice in most severe aggravated conditions with unfailing results. I have induced many other physicians to give it a trial, all of whom have given me most surprising reports in regard to its great power as a health and strength builder."

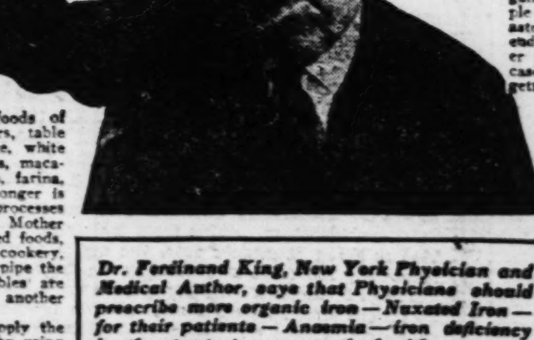
Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York City, said: "I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But in the case of Nuxated Iron I feel I would be remiss in my duty not to mention it. I have taken it myself and given it to my patients with most surprising and satisfactory results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance will find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy."

If people would only take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak or run-down, instead of dosing themselves with habit-forming drugs, stimulants and alcoholic beverages there are probably thousands who might readily build up their red blood corpuscles, increase their physical energy and get themselves into a condition to ward off the millions of disease germs that are almost continually around us.

It is surprising how many people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form, and this, after they had in some cases been going on for months without getting benefit from anything. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate, or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. The iron demanded by Mother Nature for the red coloring matter in the blood of her children, is alas! not that kind of iron. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless.

Many an athlete and prize-fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance which comes from having plenty of iron in the blood; while many another has gone down in inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.

You can tell the women with plenty of iron in their blood-beautiful healthy rosy cheeked women full of Life, Vim and Vitality



Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author, says that Physicians should prescribe more organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for their patients—Anaemia—iron deficiency is the greatest curse to the health, strength, vitality and beauty of the modern American Women—Sounds warning against use of metallic iron, which may injure the teeth, corrode the stomach, and in many cases do more harm than good; advises use of only Nuxated Iron.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.

I believe eczema can be cured to stay. I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and NOT merely patched up to return again. Remember, I make this statement after handling nearly a half-million cases of eczema and devoting 12 years of my life to its treatment. I don't care what all you have used nor how many doctors have told you that you could not be cured—all I ask is just a chance to prove my claims. If you write me TODAY I will send you a FREE TRIAL of mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will surely convince you as it has me. If you are disgusted and discouraged, I dare you to give me a chance to prove my claims. By writing me today I believe you will enjoy more real comfort than you really thought this world held for you. Just try it, and I feel sure you will agree with me.

Golden Transparent

THERE IS NO TIME like that of youth for the formation of habits. And it should be the parents' place to see that their children's habits are good habits.

CLEANLINESS is one of the best habits to have a child form. Cleanliness is the basis of right living, of self-respect, of health—and of beauty and happiness.

THERE IS NO HALF WAY to personal cleanliness. One is either clean, or one is not. The grown-up whose skin is only touched with water, or the skin pores clogged with the undissolved impurities often contained in poorly made soaps that are artificially colored in order to conceal impure, cheap material used.

JAP ROSE, more than any other soap, helps form the good habit of absolute cleanliness in children, as well as grown-ups, because it is so easy and pleasant to use—it bubbles so quickly and rinses so completely in any kind of water, all dirt and sediment vanishing. Its pure oils and c. p. glycerine not only cleanse every skin pore and strand of hair perfectly, but soothe, heal and invigorate, leaving the skin soft and glowing, and the hair fluffy and lovely.

RESTFULNESS MOTIF OF HAWTHORNE PAINTINGS

Exhibition of 25 Canvases Characterized by Wistful Sentiment—Youth a Favorite Theme.

The 25 paintings by Charles W. Hawthorne now on exhibition at the City Art Museum make a very different impression upon the observer than did the recent Swiss and Roerich exhibitions. Gallery 31, where these paintings have been installed, now has an atmosphere of restfulness produced by the quiet and rather somber tones of the canvases and the sentiment and wistfulness of Hawthorne's figures. Harmonious color and a certain decorative effect characterize the paintings.

Hawthorne is one of America's younger contemporary painters. He was a favorite pupil of William M. Chase and studied Frans Hals with him in Holland. He painted fish with Chase at Shinnecock. Later Hawthorne moved to Cape Cod and there painted the fisher-folk in their own atmosphere. When he was 36 years old he went to study in Italy. His stay there had a marked influence upon his work. He became interested in the old masters, especially in Giargione and Titian. Italy changed the surfaces of his pictures and also brought out a poetic insight and tenderness in his work. His canvases have a certain decorative convention and comparative flatness in modeling. He became interested in how the Venetian masters had obtained the rich golden quality of their pictures, and some of his paintings have an appearance of mellow glaze.

Interested in Madonna Paintings.

This quality is apparent in the "Adoration" which is owned by the City Art Museum. For many years Hawthorne has been interested in painting Madonna pictures and the "Adoration" is one of his best and most characteristic paintings of this type, in fact, it is the outstanding picture in the exhibition. The artist has treated the Madonna as a simple young mother without halo or divine expression which are so prevalent in the usual Madonna picture. The mother looks out of the picture with a rather blank stare as though she were preoccupied with her own thoughts and did not see anyone around her. Other examples of the mother and child motif are "Mother and Child" and "Madonna." In the "Madonna" we have an illustration of Hawthorne's painting of flesh. The nude pink body of the baby is in contrast with the mother's gown and the rather somber background of the picture.

In the large canvas, "The Two Fishermen," the artist has achieved some very good color harmonies in the various shades of blues and greens. The green glass demijohn with its high lights, and the shiny bodies of the dead fish, with the various reflected colors, are well painted. The two fishermen themselves are just such types as might be found in any fishing village in New England. The head of the fisherman on the right is so similar to the head of the kneeling figure at the Madonna's left in the "Adoration" that one wonders if the artist did not use the same model for both pictures.

Portrait of English Artist.

One of the very interesting pictures, because of its difference in technique, is the portrait of "Sir William Blake Richmond," the prominent English artist, who is notable for his mural decorations and glass mosaics in St. Paul's Cathedral in London and also in the cathedral at Chester. This picture is a tone study in soft browns, grays and blacks and has a sublety of handing which is very different from Hawthorne's usual style as illustrated in other paintings in the exhibition. There is a Whistlerian note in the tone quality and the general arrangement.

"The First Voyage" is a characteristic piece of painting. Almost exactly in the center of the canvas, squarely facing the observer, is a young fisher lad who is going on his first voyage. His oilskin coat is over his arm and his fisherman's hat is on the table in front of him. He is ready to start, but has paused a moment while his mother sews a button on his coat. The figures are unconscious of any outside influence and seem to be enveloped in an atmosphere of abstraction. The boy is looking straight out of the picture with a fixed gaze which sees nothing. This painting, in tone and technique, is just the opposite of the portrait of "Sir William Richmond," and is interesting because it is the only picture in the exhibition which tells

PILES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE By Dr. Henrich's Method TO STAY CURED

No Cutting. No Pain. No Chloroform. No Hospital. No Danger. No Loss of Time. Consultation and Examination Free—Tell Your Friends.

RECTAL SURGERY

Can Piles be cut out so they will not reoccur? Yes, but God pity the poor deluded sufferer who has it done.

Most physicians and practically all surgeons recommend surgery to remove all Piles, and many of them say it is the only way they can be removed.

Some doctors are honest in this belief, not knowing any better.

Others know no other way to get rid of the Pile Tumors, and, there being a nice fee at stake, cut them anyway, regardless of consequences to the patient thus operated upon.

A Surgical Operation for Piles does one of two things: It is either palliative or ruinous. If the surgeon merely removes the tops of the Tumors, as is usually done, the operation will only give temporary relief, and in a short time the patient will have to have another operation. As the surgeons never guarantee cures, the patient will, in a short time, have another hospital bill and surgeon's fee to pay.

But the worst result is where the surgeon cuts deep enough so the Pile Tumors cannot re-form. In order to do this and render the patient immune to Piles, the diseased Hemorrhoidal Veins that cause the Piles have to be cut away and to do this it is necessary to destroy the lining of the rectum clear down to the muscular tissue. When this is done the rectum contracts, scar tissue forms, and that binds down the small ends of the sympathetic nerves that center there, and the patient never sees a well day afterwards.

If you want your Piles cut out, I will NOT do it for you, as I do not need your money bad enough to take the chances of ruining you for life for the sake of it.

Call this week or Write today. Why wait?

Bleeding and Protruding Piles Cured by Dr. Henrich's Mild Medical Method. No Surgical Operation.

East St. Louis, Ill., June 23, 1919.
W. P. Henrich, Ph. G., M. D.
Dear Doctor:

I want to let you know that I am feeling fine now after suffering twelve years from Bleeding and Protruding Piles.

I did not have to go to any hospital, nor take chloroform, neither did you use a knife or scissors to cure me for life.

I advise every sufferer from Piles or any other Rectal Disease to take your wonderful treatment at once; they will never regret it.

Respectfully,
GEORGE HEIM, 1916 Cleveland Av.

Two Essential Points to Look for in the Heater you buy

1—Greatest heating capacity with lowest fuel consumption.
2—A constant supply of clean, fresh, fully moistened air in every room.

These two essential points—and many other new and exclusive features—are guaranteed to you in the

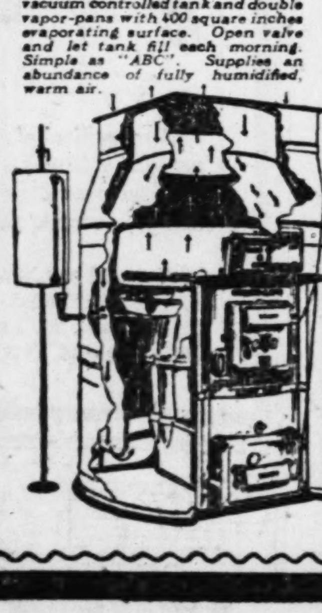
Bridge & Beach

AIR HEATER AND HUMIDIFIER

(PIPE AND PIPELESS)

Double fluted, corrugated fire chamber gives 25% greater heating surface than any other furnace of the same size. The corrugated walls, if stretched out like ordinary furnaces, would have 25% greater circumference.

Humidifier consists of 12-gallon vacuum controlled tank and double vapor-pans with 400 square inches evaporating surface. Open valve and let tank fill each morning. Simple as "ABC". Supplies an abundance of fully humidified, warm air.



The double fluted, corrugated Fire Chamber and Combustion Dome give 25% more heating surface—greater radiation with less fuel consumption.

The Humidifier has 12-gallon daily capacity with 400 square inches of evaporating surface. Ordinary heating systems supply less than two gallons of moisture to the air in the same time.

If you are at all interested in a new heating plant you should not delay sending for our illustrated booklet which describes in detail the new Bridge & Beach Air Heater and Humidifier—its "Superior" construction which means long, dependable service—its corrugated Fire Box which means 25% greater heating surface—more heat from less fuel—and its many other new and exclusive features which establish a new standard of perfection in the field of modern heaters for the home.

Made by the Makers of Superior Stoves and Ranges—in the business for 84 years. Let us send you information that will help you with your heating problems. Write for booklet today and ask for the name and address of our nearest authorized dealer.

GET RID OF YOUR FAT

Thousands of others have gotten rid of theirs WITHOUT DIETING OR EXERCISING often at the rate of over a pound a day and WITHOUT PAYMENT until reduction has taken place.

I am a licensed practicing physician and personally select the treatment for each individual case, thus enabling me to choose remedies that will produce not only a loss of weight harmlessly, but which will also relieve you of all the troublesome symptoms of overstoutness such as shortness of breath, palpitation, indigestion, rheumatism, gout, asthma, kidney trouble and various other afflictions which often accompany overstoutness.

My treatment will relieve that depressed, tired, sleepy feeling, giving you renewed energy and vigor, a result of the loss of your superfluous fat.

You are not required to change in the slightest from your regular mode of living. There is no dieting or exercising. It is simple, easy and pleasant to take.

If you are overstout do not postpone but sit down right now and send for my FREE TRIAL TREATMENT and my plan whereby I am to be PAID ONLY AFTER REDUCTION HAS TAKEN PLACE if you so desire.

How to Beautify a Summer Soiled Face

It's really a simple matter to renovate a face soiled by sun, winds or dirt. Ordinary mercolized wax, used like cold cream, will transform the worst old complexion into one of snowy whiteness and velvety softness. It literally peels off the outer veil of surface skin, but so gently, gradually, there's no discomfort. The wornout skin comes off, not in patches, but evenly, in tiny particles, leaving no evidence of the treatment. The younger, healthier under-skin forming the new complexion is one of captivating loveliness. One ounce of mercolized wax, to be had at any drug store, is enough to remove any tanned, reddened, pimpled, freckled or blotchy skin. Apply before retiring, washing it off mornings.

Many skins wrinkle easily with every wind that blows, with heat, worry, etc. An excellent wrinkle remover, because it tightens the skin and strengthens relaxed muscles, is a wash lotion made as follows: Powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in witch hazel, one-half pint. This gives immediate results.

RESTFULNESS MOTIF OF THE HAWTHORNE PAINTINGS AT MUSEUM

a story. The quality of abstraction which is noticeable in many of Hawthorne's figures is ascribed by some critics to the influence which a portrait by Titian called "Young Englishman of the Pitti Palace" had upon his work. It is the mood of absorbed reverie in Titian's picture which has so interesed Hawthorne.

Youth a Favorite Theme.

Youth appeals to Hawthorne most keenly, and in such pictures as "The Girl in White," "Wild Roses," "Girl With Mayflowers" and "Girl With Flowers" the artist has expressed a certain wistful sentiment characteristic of his figures of young maidenhood. In these paintings also is illustrated his charming way of suggesting flowers. Even though the flowers are merely accessories, one feels as though the artist has caught the delicacy of their spirit, and with a few well-placed brush strokes, has set them down on canvas for us.

Not only does Hawthorne show a technical excellence in painting flowers, but his representation of fabrics, copper, brass and pottery is equally good. In the "Girl With Canary" the texture of the brass cage is very well represented. The yellow of the bird and gold of the girl's hair form a color harmony with the brass of the cage. The color scheme in "The Yellow Kimono" is also pleasing. The overalls of "The Workman" are beautifully painted. In this picture the artist shows us a stalwart young man with determined features. There is a realism and frankness in the portrayal of the laborer which contrasts with the tender sentiment displayed in "The Family." The young Italian mother and father are the type of people Hawthorne would see in Provincetown. He shows a fondness for painting dark mothers with their babies in their arms. There is a kind of mysticism and self-contained mood about them which is very different from the artist's manner when painting such themes as "The First Voyage" or "The Two Fishermen."

Hawthorne's pictures will remain upon exhibition at the City Art Museum in Gallery 31 until Sept. 14, after which, until Oct. 25, the sixteenth annual Exhibition of Paintings by American Artists will be held.

COTTON PICKERS PLENTIFUL

Texas Has Ample Supply Without Importing Foreign Labor.

By the Associated Press.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex.—South Texas now has an ample supply of cotton pickers to handle this season's crops, without having to import foreign labor, according to Roy Miller, secretary of the Rural Land Owners' Association. With the beginning of the cotton season Miller inserted advertisements in the larger daily newspapers of the State and several thousand applications were received from over Texas.

The cotton crop in South Texas this year will be slightly less than last year, according to Miller. Cotton acreage in many instances was reduced, but there is also considerable new ground under cultivation this year. Very little damage has been done by boll weevil and in many places cotton will make a bale to the acre, he said.

A New Summer Wonderland
—the One Trip in a Thousand
By An Easterner

WHAT I needed, and what you need, is more than merely a vacation.

The great need is for complete change in a land that's new to you. New with self-obliterating interest, new diversion, new environment.

Nights Under Blankets
—a thousand things to do by day

This "new" summerland is Southern California, only a few hours away from you. I've spent July, August and September there and slept under blankets every night. Balmy days and cool nights are the invariable summer rule. Hundreds of thousands of regular vacationists know this.

A Myriad Interests

And Southern California is a land of myriad interests.

Four thousand miles of paved motor highways take you to a thousand strange and interesting places. One road runs along the tops of mountains 6000 feet high—for more than 70 miles with stupendous views on either side.

Great seashore resorts, where mountains meet the sea, are there to charm you.

World famous ocean fishing grounds, mountain lakes and trout streams offer their attractions.

So do some of the world's finest golf courses.

There are mountain peaks to climb. A famous desert and rich orange groves both lie within a stone's throw of a great city.

In fact a world lies within a province here—unequalled for variety of attraction. And all within a circle with a radius of 200 miles, cobwebbed with the world's best motor roads!

I spend my summers in Southern California because it's always new to me and there I get the real change that makes me more efficient all year 'round.

You'll be renewed there as never before. You'll always remember it, never regret it, and you'll go there many summers in the future. Go this year. It's one trip in a thousand.

A Memorable Trip

The railroad trip itself is memorable—through the canyons, mountains and great plains. Every inch is teeming with our early history. This great vacation starts when you step on the train.

Go Now

The thing to do is, go now—go this summer. Men, women, children—all need a change like this. Decide now. You can arrange it if you will. You'll say it's the best trip of your life.

It costs less to live in Southern California. So a trip there need not be expensive. Southern California is near our National Government Parks that the Government is now encouraging tourists to visit.

Temperature

The average mean temperature in Southern California for the past 44 years (U. S. Weather Bureau records) is as follows:
June, 66—July, 70—August, 71—September, 69.
The same records show that a great city in the center of this section has on the average only one day in June, two days in July, three days in August and three in September when the thermometer touches or exceeds 90 degrees.
The air is usually dry, so higher temperatures are comfortable here that would be uncomfortable in the East where humidity emphasizes heat.
Southern California averages 309 days of sunshine. Summer is the rainless season so you can plan on perfect weather for your fun.

WILLYS-KNIGHT
Sleeve-Valve Motor Improves With Use

The World's Most Convincing Tribute to Quality

RAPIDLY, quietly, the Willys-Knight motor car with the vertical sleeve-valve motor, has slipped into foremost favor in 50,000 homes.

Among its most powerful friends are the political and financial rulers of the world. Their tribute to its quality is paid in spite of its low price.

They buy it because its sleeve-valve motor never causes them to wait for valve-grinding or other repairs—and because a hundred thousand miles finds it at the peak of its power.

No car of its quality approaches its price. No car of its performance approaches its economy.

EW CAPITAL NOW VAILABLE FOR BIG UILDING PROJECTS

ection of Structures, Held in Abeyance Because of Adverse Financial Conditions, to Be Resumed.

LANS ARE COMPLETED FOR BIXBY SITE HOTEL

ht-Story Apartment, Started on Plot Adjoining Missouri Theater, to Take Form at an Early Date.

By Berry Moore.

ccording to real estate men, cap- now is available for the execu- of several extensive building jects, which have been held in yance, owing to adverse financial economic conditions, while ap- ations for loans for many minor rovements are being favorably idered.

he most notable of these projects mplate an eight-story hotel ture at the northeast corner of s highway and Lindell boule- d, and a 12-story kitchenette rtment building at the southeast er of Grand and Lucas avenues. two buildings will entail a total lay for construction alone of ap- imately $4,000,000.

Preston J. Bradshaw yesterday an- nced that plans had been per- d for construction of the hotel jected for the corner of King's way and Lindell, which is em- aced in what is known as the Bix- block. The cost of the building, ich is to be erected for Chase Ul- n, is placed at $2,500,000, exclu- e of the ground. Work in this in- ance is awaiting only possession of e site, which is occupied by the room residence of W. K. Bixby, mer owner of the block, which s recently purchased by Ulman r $900,000.

Bixby Seeks Home.

Bradshaw left last night to see W. Bixby, who is at his summer home Lake George and whom he will t to give possession of the premises that construction may begin not r than Oct. 1. The project in- es the demolition of the Bixby dence.

Bixby has been looking for a se that will meet his require- nts. His library and art collec- , which are of national repute, ke his requirements as to a home mewhat exacting. Real estate ts tried to interest him in No. Westmoreland place, the home of late J. C. Van Blarcom, which s purchased by J. C. Moon for ,000.

The hotel building will be eight ries high, and will have 500 guest ms, each with bath. Besides oth- attractive features, there will be of garden, banquet and dancing , and a swimming pool.

Construction is now progressing on eight-story fireproof apartment ldings on the north side of Lin- boulevard, in the Bixby block, east of the site chosen for the el. These buildings, which will a total of 39 suites, of 8 and rooms, are also being erected Chase Ulman from plans by adshaw. Their cost is estimated $900,000, exclusive of the ground.

Adjoins Missouri Theater.

It was stated yesterday that finan- l arrangements had been made resumption of construction on large apartment building start- at the southeast corner of Grand Lucas avenues by the Famous yers Missouri Corporation, which cted the Missouri Theater build- . Construction of the apartment lding, which has been carried to mezzanine floor, was suspended November for lack of capital. The apartment building will con- 12 stories, divided into 200 or apartments of the kitchenette —two-rooms, three-room effi- cy—and will cost $1,500,000. It form part of the structure of Missouri Theater, which was cted before the apartment build- was definitely projected.

Construction is being started on eral handsome homes in Compton ghts, including one for Richard ckler of the Hemmelmann- ckler Real Estate Co. Frank J. k, president of the Roettger- k Real Estate Co., also has s for erecting a home. Twenty- lots in this addition were re- ly sold at auction, the majority the purchasers having building .

Anderson-Stocke-Buermann l Estate Co. is completing sev- handsome apartment buildings University drive and on Kings- y boulevard, in Ames place, and a number in North Park View addition. All these apartments, which are unusually attractive, are being rapidly leased.

The Holbrook-Blackwelder Co. is having plans made for 20 bungalows to be erected on a site for which negotiations are now pending, according to J. J. O'Brien, who is promoting the improvement.

Conditions Improved.

Trading in realty during the week was of larger volume, reflecting improved conditions, according to Walter Jones of the Walter Jones Realty Co.

The chief transaction was the purchase by Paul Brown, stock and bond broker and vice president of the Mercantile Trust Co., of the fee to the 12-story Title Guaranty Building and site, at the southwest corner of Seventh and Chestnut streets, owned by the Delaney Trust Co. The price paid was $350,000. The negotiations were conducted by Isaac T. Cook. Brown had previously purchased, through Cook and Cornet & Zeibig, the building which occupied the site under a 99-year lease.

Brown recently purchased, through C. H. McMillan, vice president of the Mercantile Trust Co., the group of buildings at Sixteenth street and Washington avenue and Locust street, occupied by the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., for a price said to be in excess of $1,500,000.

Purchases of apartment buildings for investment purposes are a sustaining force of the real estate market, according to Willard Shelp, vice president of the Dyas-Shelp Real Estate Co., whose sales of buildings of this type are setting a new record.

D. D. Israel is still negotiating for the southwest corner of Seventeenth and Chestnut streets, 19x73 feet. According to Chauncey P. Heath, who is acting for Israel, $1000 a front foot is asked for this small holding, which forms the key to this quarter of the block, so far as any large improvement is concerned.

Property in Demand.

Israel recently purchased through the Heath company seven houses on the south side of Chestnut street, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets, which with the Princess Hotel Building and site, at the southeast corner of Eighteenth and Chestnut, which he already owned, gave him ownership of this entire half-block, with the exception of the southwest corner of Seventeenth and Chestnut.

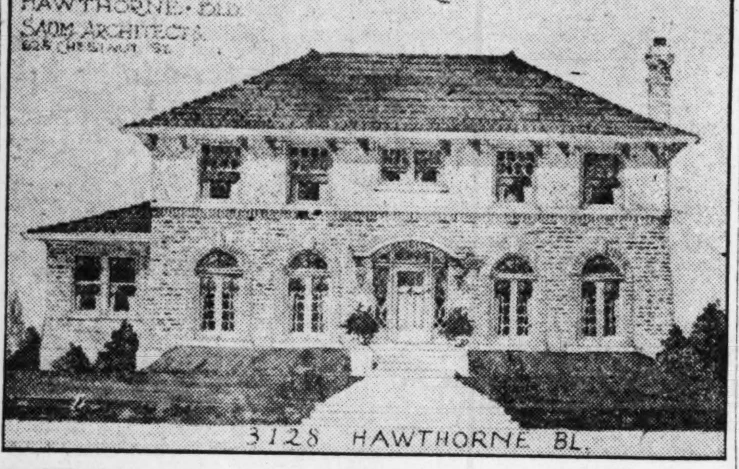
The widening of Market street, which is now virtually assured, is expected to have a wholesome effect on this part of the city, in anticipation of which many purchases of real estate in this area are in contemplation.

According to Joseph Darst, ground on Washington avenue, between Jefferson and Grand avenues, is now commanding from $200 to $250 a foot, whereas before the street was widened prices ranged from $75 to $80 a foot, showing the beneficial effects of projects of this character. The cost incident to widening Washington, including reconstruction of the street and sidewalks, was slighly in excess of $30 a foot. Darst's figures would indicate that ground in this section of the thoroughfare has more than doubled in value as a result of this improvement.

Theodore Hemmelmann, president of the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co., who has been soaring over Germany and France in airplanes, reached New York yesterday, and is expected at his office here tomorrow.

F. A. Banister is at the Atlantic seashore. Paul and John Grether are on a Western trip by way of Yellowstone Park. George Heffernan has returned from Lake Michigan. Lucas Berfeld, of the George F. Bergfeld Real Estate So., is fishing at Mackinac. J. M. Levi is spending his vacation in Canada. Earl Hewson of the Hewson compaly is with the St. Louis contingent at Yellowstone.

Home Selected by Realty Man



RESIDENCE for MR. RICHARD SPACKLER
HAWTHORNE BLD.
SAUM ARCHITECTS
625 CHESTNUT ST.
3128 HAWTHORNE BL.

RICHARD C. SPACKLER, vice president of the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co., is erecting a home of most attractive design on the south side of Hawthorne boulevard, about 150 feet east of Compton avenue, in Compton Heights. It is being constructed of variegated mat brick and will be set off with a red tile roof.

The first floor will have a wide central stair hall opening into a living hall, 18x30, with large carved stone fireplace on one side and into a dining room with breakfast room at side and kitchen and pantry at rear.

The second floor will contain one large bedroom and bath, and two smaller bedrooms with bath. The main rooms and hall will be finished in paneled wainscoting, while the walls will be canvased and decorated. There will be a garage in the rear for two machines.

The plans were drawn by Saum architects, under whose supervision the house is being constructed.

SAFE DEPOSIT OFFICER FOR LIBERTY CENTRAL IS NAMED

J. L. Johnston, president of the Liberty Central Trust Co. has announced the appointment of John J. Scherrer manager of the purchasing department, to be safe deposit officer in charge of the safe deposit vault now nearing completion. Scherrer has been connected with several St. Louis banks for more than 25 years. He was connected with the National Stock Yards National Bank prior to January, 1920, when he joined the old Liberty Bank which, through its consolidation with the Central National Bank, is now known as the Liberty Central Trust Co. Scherrer was president of the St. Louis chapter of the American Institute of Banking in 1907, and now is a "fellow" of that institute. The newly organized department will be in the basement of the new building on Broadway, south of Olive street, and will be ready for business in October.

LACLEDE AVENUE PROPERTY IS SOLD BY KORTE-RUST CO.

The Korte-Rust Realty Co. reports the following sales: Business property at the northeast corner of Spring and Laclede avenue, improved with four seven-room houses and a store, for a client to Ernest H. Nelson; 1907 East Warne avenue, brick cottage for H. H. Schlueter to Bernard Hespen; 3131 South Nebraska avenue, brick cottage, for Henry J. Scheu to William Lang; 700 feet in Shady Side Heights, Webster Groves, improved with a house of eight rooms, and a frame bungalow of four rooms, to Peter M. McGoldrick who will improve the vacant; 5628 Etzel avenue, flat and garage, for E. De Flandre, represented by R. H. Stephenson, to Henry T. Hospen; 1013 East Park place, cottage, for Michael B. Dwyer to Peter Pekarek; five lots in Reuther Heights, front 150 by 142.6 feet on east side of Dewey avenue, for M. Squire to Joseph Huster; 1918 Semple avenue, seven-room house to Leo Pallardy from Robert M. Reilly.

SUNSET WAY IMPROVEMENTS ARE IN AN ADVANCED STAGE

The demand for lots in Sunset Way increases as the improvements go forward in this subdivision. Streets will be finished within a few days while the construction of the permanent sewers, plans for which are drawn by the City Engineer, will soon be started. Sidewalks are completed and several bungalows are almost ready for occupancy.

The property is reached by the Cherokee car line to Gravois and Loughborough avenues, only 46 minutes from downtown.

RAPID INCREASE IN VALUES OF REAL ESTATE SHOWN

Many Tracts in St. Louis Have Gained 1000 Per Cent in the Last 35 Years.

POPULATION A BIG FACTOR IN ADVANCE

Corner of Locust and Sixth Sold for $40,000 About 35 Years Ago; Ground Now Valued at $1,000,000.

BY FRANK OBEAR,
Pres. Frank Obear & Son Realty Co.

It is a saying that "Real estate is the basis of all security," and it may be added that established on a firm foundation real estate values grow in larger proportion and are surer than almost any other security.

There is another saying that "Population makes value." Taking then these two statements and applying them to real estate in St. Louis, their truth is demonstrated: —Thirty-five years ago the southwest corner of Locust and Sixth streets was sold for $40,000; today this same lot is valued at more than $1,000,000 exclusive of improvements, an increase of 2400 per cent, or about 70 per cent a year. The northwest corner of Olive and Seventh streets was sold about the same time for $68,000. This property today is valued at $760,000, an increase of 1000 per cent, or 30 per cent a year. The northwest corner of Olive and Ninth streets was sold for $80,000 and is now worth $1,200,000, an increase of 1400 per cent, or 40 per cent a year.

The same rate of increase is shown on Washington avenue. The southwest corner of Sixth street was sold for $1000 a foot. The corner today is said to be worth $15,000 a foot, an increase of 1400 per cent, or 40 per cent a year. Property west of Twelfth street sold for $200 a foot; it is now worth $2000 a foot, an increase of 1000 per cent or an average of 30 per cent a year.

Grand avenue and Olive street corners sold for $125 a foot. They are now valued at $5000 per foot, an increase of 4000 per cent, or an average of more than 100 per cent a year. Southwest corner of Grand and Washington sold for $100 a foot; it is now said to be worth $2000, an increase of 1900 per cent, or an average increase of 58 per cent per annum. Southwest corner Grand and Delmar, which was sold for $160 a foor, now is valued at $1500, an increase of 1400 per cent, or an average of 40 per cent a year.

The growth of the city to the old city limits was slow and for almost 10 years very few houses were built west of this line, but the movement soon began, and the values increased as the building advanced, and the second section from Grand to Taylor commenced to show better values. The southwest corner of Vandeventer and Olive increased from $20 a foot to $1000, an increase of about 30 per cent a pear.

The old Olive Street road was straightened and the advances came rapidly along Olive and Delmar avenues, around Taylor, showing advances from $5 a foot to its present value of $500 per foot, or an average of 30 per cent a year.

The southwest corner of King's highway and Delmar valued at that time at $20 per foot, is now considered by some owners to be worth $3000 a foot, making an increase of about 3000 per cent or an average increase of 90 per cent a year.

Dan Bell offered the southwest corner of Delmar and Union at $1000 per acre, ($5 per foot) with no buyers. The corner is now worth $500 per foot, a growth of 1000 per cent or 30 per cent a year.

The southwest corner of Delmar and DeBaliviere avenues, which was sold for $2000 an acre, now is valued at $1500 a foot, or about as much a foot as an acre formerly sold for.

Delmar and Hamilton corner sold for $12 a foot and is now valued at $1000 a foot, a growth of 1000 per cent or 30 per cent per year.

Skinker Road and Delmar southwest corner, sold at $500 per acre and is now valued at $250 a foot. Further west on Delmar ground sold at $300 a acre, and has resold at $240 a foot.

While these evidences of enhancement in values are not general all over the city, it will be found that many localities have had enormous increases such as the railroad valley from Seventh street to Grand avenue. South Grand avenue—Wellston, this district has experienced enormous growth, ground having advanced from $10 a foot in some instances to $1000 a foot.

When it is considered that these values represent unearned increment, it is not hard to see that the single tax theory has some good foundations.

The population of St. Louis in 1885 was about 250,000. Values of the property mentioned at that time would increase each year in proportion to population, so that if the population increased 500,000 since 1885 or during the past 35 years, the annual average increase would have been approximately 15,000 persons a year. Then if the annual average increase in values was 30 per cent a year, every 1000 persons added to population would be worth 2 per cent a year to the property values in this district. Figuring, then, from this basis, there is no doubt of a great future for St. Louis real estate, as large cities grow faster than small ones, and the territory adjacent to St. Louis, including East St. Louis and the western suburban towns in St. Louis County, have really added largely to the city's population, and contributed to the enhancement of its realty values.

While there are many other factors in the growth of a city like St. Louis, such as manufacturing, transportation, capital, labor and location, population counts most, the others all being contributory.

Considering the past growth of St. Louis real estate, there can be little doubt in the mind of the investor that St. Louis offers some of the best realty investments in the world.

Labor Cost Halts Erection of Big Plant, Sangster Says

Industrial Commissioner of Chamber of Commerce Gives Reason for Failure of Cable Company to Build Million Dollar Factory and Give Work to Many.

The industrial division of the Chamber of Commerce. R. D. Sangster, Commissioner, announces that the Standard Underground Cable Co. of Pittsburg, Pa., a $10,000,000 corporation, which recently purchased approximately 600,000 feet of ground in the northwest industrial district between King's highway, Slevin, Geraldine and Brown avenues, has awarded the contract for the complete designing, drawing of plans and specifications, and the construction of the buildings of its new St. Louis plant. The site was purchased through the Mercantile Trust Co.

"Contracts," Sangster said, "will be let immediately for the grading of the site which is served by the Terminal Railroad, and for the installation of spur tracks. It is not expected that construction of the buildings will start until the building mechanics recede from the present high scale of labor effective in St. Louis of $1.25 an hour, which was practically the highest peak reached during war conditions. St. Louis is virtually the only city in the United States in which labor commands that wage.

"The demand for the products of this company, owing to the general business depression throughout the United States and the high cost of money, can be supplied from their present factories which are running on a normal basis at Pittsburg, Perth Amboy, N. J., Hamilton, Canada; Glen Willard, Pa., and Oakland, Cal., so that unless there is some adjustment of the wage scale in the very near future the building of this plant will be postponed until 1923.

Half Million Payroll.

"The estimated annual payroll of this company operating under normal conditions will be more than one-half million dollars. It is, therefore, a question of whether or not the building mechanics in St. Louis are willing to accept a rate in line with other cities in the country, ranging from 85 cents to $1 an hour, in order to have this building project proceed at once, so that the plant may be put in operation next spring, and thereby give employment to a large number of men and women, or whether they wish to cause the postponement of this program until late in 1923. If the building is started at once the working people of St. Louis will be benefited by the amount of the annual payroll of over one-half million dollars from the time the plant is put in active operation. It is estimated that the labor item for building mechanics and the construction of the buildings alone will amount to more than $150,000.

"The Standard Underground Cable Co., which is one of the oldest in its line of business, will have the necessary units in the new plant for the manufacture of electric wires and cables, which means the rolling and drawing of copper wire into all sizes and forms, and the manufacture of weatherproof, rubber covered wire, magnet wire and lead-covered cables for aerial and underground construction in all voltages up to 33,000 volts. It will be one of the most complete cable and wire factories in the world."

The building will be the largest and most modern one-story factory building in St. Louis. It will be approximately 320x520 feet, covering more than 150,000 square feet of area for the manufacturing departments. Added to this are the areas of the basements and a two-story office building to face King's highway, containing the executive and business offices on the first floor and large cafeteria for employes, which can be quickly converted into an auditorium or dance hall.

Will Cost $1,000,000.

The plans for the company call for the most modern factory type, having large areas of steel sash in the side walls and monitor type roofs to produce ample vtntilation and a constant flood of daylight at all times. To put the new plant into operation, including cost of building site, buildings, machinery and complete installation of equipment will probably involve an expenditure of more than $1,000,000.

"The Chamber of Commerce," Sangster said, "has been active in efforts to bring new industries to St. Louis. The general public should know the facts regarding the labor situation in St. Louis, which is handicapping the attraction of new industries, as well as causing those who have already decided to come to defer building operations on account of the high labor and material conditions existing here."

St. Louis' relative building labor rates have been compiled by the National Association of Builders' Exchange, as of July 1, 1921, as follows:

	Carpenters.	Cement Finishers.	Bricklayers.	Structural Iron Workers.
St. Louis	$1.25	$1.25	$1.25	$1.25
Cleveland	1.04	1.04	1.04	1.04
Detroit	.80	.70	1.00	....
Indianapolis ..	.92½	.90	1.15	1.15
Memphis	.60 to .80	.60 to .80	1.12½	.75 to 1.00
Boston	.90	.90	.90	.90
Philadelphia ..	.90	.80	1.00	....
Los Angeles (per day)	7.00 to 8.00	8.00	10.00	8.00

Chicago is excepted in the comparison because rates are being arbitrated there at this time.

HOME OF E. G. LEWIS IN UNIVERSITY CITY SOLD

Property Is Purchased by Mrs. Montague Punch; Consideraation Not Made Public.

The former home of E. G. Lewis, 2 Yale avenue, University City, has been purchased by Mrs. Marguerite Punch, wife of Montague Punch, an attorney, to be occupied by them in the early future.

The transaction was effected by the Associated Realty Co., of which J. W. Mackelden is president, for Mr. Lewis, in whose name the title to the property was held. The price paid is withheld. The original cost of the house and auxiliary buildings and grounds, which is beautifully embellished, ranged between $75,000 and $100,000, according to real estate men.

The house is of brick and has 28 rooms. It is finished throughout on a sumptuous scale. The ground comprises six and one-half acres and has a frontage on Delmar boulevard of 538 feet and on Yale avenue of 539 feet. A large lake which serves as a swimming pool, forms an attractive feature of the premises.

The house was one of the first erected in University Heights, which was laid out and developed by Lewis. The Lewises now live in California.

The Punches have disposed of their home at 6015 West Cabanne place to Prof. W. F. Gephart, who will occupy it as a home. The house has 12 rooms and occupies a lot 100x127 feet. The consideration was not disclosed.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our loving mother, Margaret Walsh, who departed this life Aug. 18, 1916. Sadly missed by her DAUGHTERS AND SON.

In loving memory of Celia M. Ely (nee Schnyder), who departed this life Aug. 18, 1914. Sadly missed by HUSBAND, PARENTS AND BROTHERS.

In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Mrs. May Johnson (nee Curtis), who departed this life Aug. 21, 1915. May her soul rest in peace. Sadly missed by PARENTS, SISTER AND BROTHER.

In loving memory of my wife and our dear mother, Marie Hoker, who departed this life Aug. 24, 1919.
Sadly missed by,
HUSBAND AND DAUGHTERS.

In loving memory of dear mother, Mary Goebel, who departed this life two years ago, Aug. 19, 1919. Today recalls sad memory of mother gone to rest and those who think of her today are those who love her best. Sadly missed by those who loved her. Son, ANDREW GOEBEL.

In sad but sweetest remembrance of our little daughter, Grace M. Burke, whose short but sweet young life was sacrificed Aug. 29, 1919, at the age of 6 years.
Sadly missed by—
MOTHER, FATHER, SISTERS, BROTHERS AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

In loving memory of Eugenia Bohler, who died Aug. 24, 1919:
Sleep peacefully, dear mother,
In your lonely grave;
The one who loves you dearly
Will often linger around
The spot where you are laid.
Sadly missed by DAUGHTER.

In loving memory of my dear husband, Oscar E. Molz, who departed this life one year ago, Aug. 24, 1920:
You are gone but not forgotten,
Nor, dear Oscar, shall you ever be,
As long as life and memory last,
I shall always remember thee.
Sadly missed by WIFE.

In loving memory of Walter M. Leonard, who departed this life four years ago, Aug. 18, 1917:
You are gone but not forgotten;
Nor, dear Walter, shall you ever be,
As long as life and memory last,
Father, we shall always remember thee.
Sadly missed by—
WIFE FREDA LEONARD, AND SONS, GEORGE AND WILLIAM.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

JOHN P. M.—Apply to some barrel or wagon wheel manufacturing concerns for such hoops as you desire.

HILLSBORO.—The fare from Granite City, Ill., to the Broadway Station, on the McKinley line, is 10 cents.

MRS. M. H. A.—A secondhand book store is probably the only place you could dispose of the book you mentioned.

J. B. B.—The longest river in the world is the Missouri-Mississippi River, which is 4200 miles in length from the source of the Missouri River in the Rocky Mountains, Mont., to the mouth of the Missouri-Mississippi at the Gulf of Mexico.

C. D. R.—A good road to Springfield, Mo., from St. Louis is: The Clayton road to Gray Summit, and then straight through to Rolla, from there south through Raymondville, Mountain Grove and west to Springfield.

H. E. D. A.—We do not find anybody by the name mentioned living in that vicinity at the time specified. Perhaps the name is misspelled, and if you will consult a city directory of the year in which the family resided in St. Louis, you may be able to locate them.

A DAILY READER.—The value of your old coins are as follows: 1878, 25c to 30c; 1853, 25c to 30c; 1874, 10c to 15c; 1871, 50c to 55c; 1853, 10c to 15c; 1853, ½ dime to 10c. The 5-cent pieces dated 1883, with or without the word "cent," have no premium.

A SUBSCRIBER.—The nationality of the people who are ruling Russia is Russian. Trotsky, one of the present leaders, was born in Russia of Jewish parents. The relief measures have not been advanced enough to know the exact value of the amount of foodstuff sent by this country to Russia.

A. B.—The first steam carriage from which grew the present automobile, was proposed by Sir Isaac Newton in 1680. In 1790 Nathan Read patented and constructed a model, but it was not until 1769 that Nichola Joseph Cougnot built the first one which really would go. It is still preserved in a museum in Paris.

ILLINOIS.—We are advised that varnish applied on the case of a piano does not affect the tone quality, but care must be taken not to get any on the sounding board. If the instrument which you contemplate varnishing is a very valuable one we would advise your sending it to a piano house in order to have it refinished.

ELIZA W.—The following is a recipe for sour milk griddle cakes: 2½ cups flour; ½ teaspoon salt; 2 cups sour milk; 1¼ teaspoons soda; 1 egg. Mix and sift the flour, salt and soda, add the sour milk and egg well beaten. Drop the batter by spoonfuls on a greased hot griddle and cook on one side. When it is puffed and full of bubbles, cooked on the edges, turn and cook on the other side. Serve with butter, sugar or syrup. Sweet milk griddle cakes are made as follows: 3 cups flour; 1½ tablespoons baking powder; 1 teaspoon salt; ¼ cup sugar; 2 cups milk; 1 egg; 2 tablespoons melted butter. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, beat the egg, add the milk and pour slowly on the first mixture. Beat thoroughly, add the butter, and cook the same as sour milk griddle cakes. The cakes should be cooked as soon as possible, or more baking powder will be required.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.

ANXIOUS.—Consult with Judge Holtkamp of the Probate Court, regarding the affair.

A. T.—The authorities of the correspondence school can probably force you to pay the amount due them if you signed the contract.

S. A. G.—You will have to sue your former husband for the property or its value. See a Justice of the Peace regarding the matter.

MYRTLE A.—You might try writing the Postmaster at Mecklenberg, Germany, and ask him to turn your letters over to some lawyer.

SUNDAY READER.—The other woman and child cannot claim a share in your husband's estate unless you die first, neither can she claim anything during his lifetime.

Q.—The filing of a petition in a proper court would stop the maturity of the note. You cannot collect it where there was no consideration unless it has gotten into the hands of innocent holders for value before maturity.

CONSTANT READER.—All tenants have equal rights in property used in common and you have a right to insist upon your share of them if the boys who live in the lower flat annoy you. Keeping of dogs should be regulated by landlords.

WORRIED TENANT.—A notice to vacate is not legal if it has the wrong house number on it. The landlord would not have to give his reasons in court for giving you the notice. The Rent Relief League is still in existence with A. W. Henry as president.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

P.-D. READER.—The institution for the deaf has classes on stammering. It is located at 818 South King's highway.

X. Y. Z.—We do not advise or give advice on the use of hair dyes.

WORRIED.—The administration of 606 is overworked. The remedy has its place and is valuable, but is by no means all that is needed. Stick to the doctor who wants to treat you with drugs.

MRS. K. K.—The boy should be physically examined for defects. He should be under the care of a physician as according to the circumstances related, he is no doubt delicate and in need of intelligent advice.

A. B. C.—A breast pump should be used to empty the excess milk, and a snug bandage should be worn over the breasts. After the milk secretion is stopped the size of the breast will diminish and the contrast will disappear.

MRS. F. G.—The pills are composed of 1 part of iron sulphate and 2 parts of potassium carbonate. To this combination is added other drugs such as arsenic. It is an iron tonic pill. The length of time they should be taken would depend on the benefit experienced.

EYES.—The color of the eyes of children cannot, by any means, be said to be transmitted from the parents when both have the same colored eyes, though it is usual for the children to have eyes the same color as their parents. Characteristics of the grandparents or even the great-grandparents can be seen in the children according to statistics in the color of eyes as well as other characteristics.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Walter Scherer, who departed this life two years ago, Aug. 23, 1919. You are gone, but not forgotten, nor dear Walter, shall you ever be as long as life and memory last. Son, we shall always remember thee. Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER AND SISTERS AND ALL THOSE WHO LOVED HIM. (c)

In memory of my beloved wife and our dear mother, Mrs. Emma Trojahn, who departed this life Aug. 21, 1920.
When evening shadows are falling
And we are sitting all alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing
If mother could only come home.
Beloved mother, true and kind,
No friend like you on earth I'll find.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of Daisy Hellman, who departed this life Aug. 20, 1919:
We saw you suffer and heard you sigh;
Could do nothing but sit and cry.
We saw you sinking, hour by hour,
Yet we did all within our power;
But now you calmly sleep the past
While our sorrow for you will always last.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, BROTHER AND SISTERS.

In memory of my beloved wife, Florence Angert Hartog, who departed this life Aug. 20, 1920.
Today recalls sad memories
Of the loved one gone to rest;
And those who think of her today
Are those who love her best.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our darling daughter, Loretta Hensen (nee Keene), who departed this life, April 7, 1919:
It's hard to think it's for the best
Your young life's gone and your're at rest.
We are always thinking of the day,
We shall be with you, there to stay.
Sad our hearts, but sweet our memory,
As we think of your birthday,
Which is today.
Sadly missed by
DAUGHTER, FATHER, MOTHER AND SISTERS.
A requiem mass will be offered at St. Edward's Church, Tuesday, August 23, 1921, 6:30 a. m. Mass in honor of her birthday.

In loving memory of my dear wife and mother, mother-in-law and grandmother, Wilhelmina Christ, who passed away suddenly one year ago, Aug. 26, 1920:
Sad and sudden was the call
For our dear mother, loved by all;
We little thought that on that day
She would be called so far away.
Requiem mass will be said Friday, Aug. 26, at St. Anthony's Church, at 8 a. m.
Sadly missed by
JOHN CHRIST AND FAMILY. (c)

In memory of our dear papa, John Howard, 4033 Cote Brilliante avenue, who died Aug. 19, one year ago:
He bid no one a last farewell,
He said good-by to none;
His loving heart had ceased to beat
Before we knew he was gone.
His cheery smile and kindly ways
Are pleasant to recall;
He had a kind word for each one
And died beloved by all.
Sadly missed by his children—
MRS. ROSE FARRELL, MAMIE HOWARD, JOHN HOWARD AND JOSEPH LICHTENSTEIN AND NELLIE LICHTENSTEIN.

FINAL USED CAR SALE!

GILLHAM MOTOR CORP.

CUTS PRICES TO THE BONE

Every Car Must Be Sold by September 1st at Unheard-of Reductions

GOING OUT OF BUSINESS

Every car on hand ruthlessly cut and sacrificed, as they must all be sold by Sept. 1st. On that date this corporation will discontinue its present merchandising franchise on automobiles. This institution is long and favorably known as merchandisers of high quality motor cars.

In order to dispose of all cars on hand, the price has been cut to the bone.

This is without a doubt the greatest opportunity ever presented the used car buying people of St. Louis.

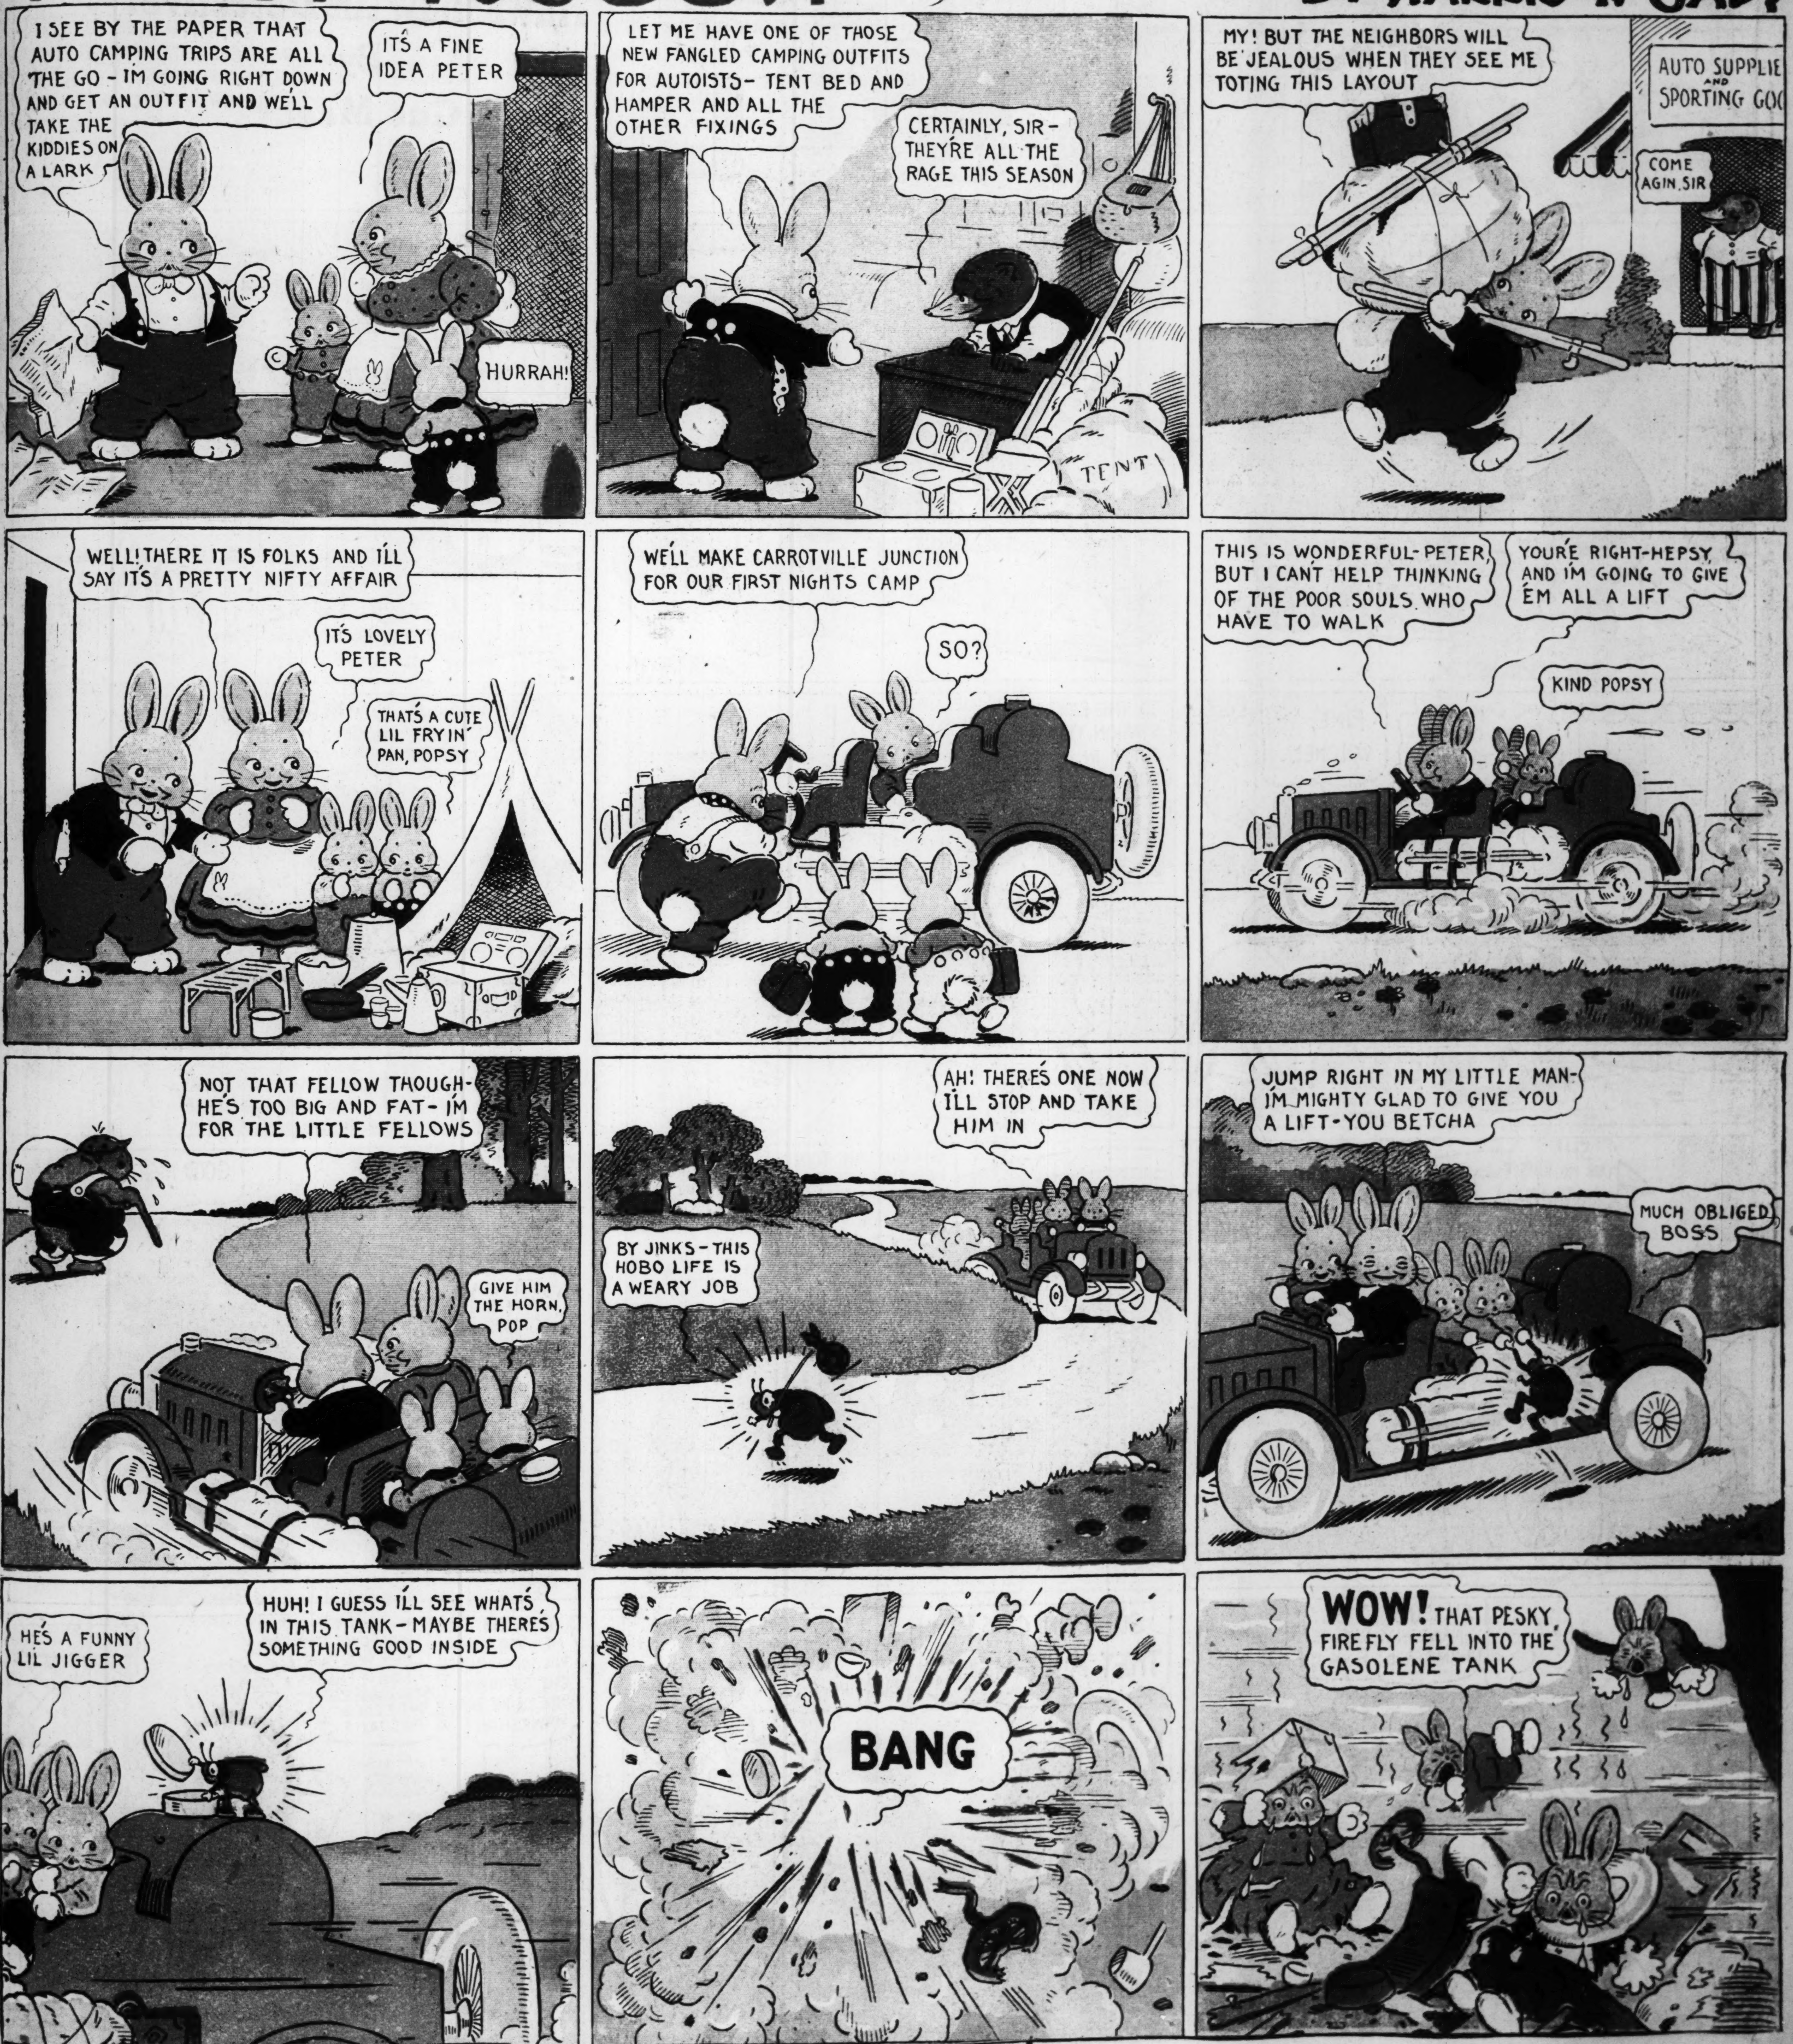
By HARRISON CADY



I SEE BY THE PAPER THAT AUTO CAMPING TRIPS ARE ALL THE GO - IM GOING RIGHT DOWN AND GET AN OUTFIT AND WE'LL TAKE THE KIDDIES ON A LARK
IT'S A FINE IDEA PETER
HURRAH!
LET ME HAVE ONE OF THOSE NEW FANGLED CAMPING OUTFITS FOR AUTOISTS - TENT BED AND HAMPER AND ALL THE OTHER FIXINGS
CERTAINLY, SIR - THEY'RE ALL THE RAGE THIS SEASON
TENT
MY! BUT THE NEIGHBORS WILL BE JEALOUS WHEN THEY SEE ME TOTING THIS LAYOUT
AUTO SUPPLIE AND SPORTING GOO
COME AGIN, SIR
WELL! THERE IT IS FOLKS AND I'LL SAY IT'S A PRETTY NIFTY AFFAIR
IT'S LOVELY PETER
THAT'S A CUTE LIL FRYIN' PAN, POPSY
WE'LL MAKE CARROTVILLE JUNCTION FOR OUR FIRST NIGHTS CAMP
SO?
THIS IS WONDERFUL - PETER, BUT I CAN'T HELP THINKING OF THE POOR SOULS WHO HAVE TO WALK
YOU'RE RIGHT - HEPSY, AND I'M GOING TO GIVE 'EM ALL A LIFT KIND POPSY
NOT THAT FELLOW THOUGH - HE'S TOO BIG AND FAT - I'M FOR THE LITTLE FELLOWS
GIVE HIM THE HORN, POP
AH! THERE'S ONE NOW I'LL STOP AND TAKE HIM IN
BY JINKS - THIS HOBO LIFE IS A WEARY JOB
JUMP RIGHT IN MY LITTLE MAN - I'M MIGHTY GLAD TO GIVE YOU A LIFT - YOU BETCHA
MUCH OBLIGED, BOSS.
HE'S A FUNNY LIL JIGGER
HUH! I GUESS I'LL SEE WHAT'S IN THIS TANK - MAYBE THERE'S SOMETHING GOOD INSIDE
BANG
WOW! THAT PESKY FIREFLY FELL INTO THE GASOLENE TANK

One of the Newest of Filmdom's Pretty Stars

In an effort to break up the old system of featuring stars, new faces are appearing on the screens. Most recently, picture show fans have beheld Marguerite De La Motte, a portrait of whom appears above.

The Dead Hand With a Will in It That Haunts a Girl With $2,000,000

A grandmother's vindictive hate of another woman caused her to insert a proviso that the granddaughter should lose all her fortune if she married either of the other woman's sons, neither of whom, by the way, she has ever met—Now a man the grandmother never dreamed of wins her :-:

ARE women more vindictive than men? Is feminine spite more apt to reach a bony arm and long-taloned hand from the grave to smite a lifetime foe, or is masculine hatred more enduring and more persistent in its effort for requital?

The question is often suggested by the wills dying men and women leave behind them, in which the foe is struck over the shoulders of the surviving loved ones, to whom, in a measure, is transferred the task of carrying on the feud. It has been suggested anew by the report from England of the engagement of Miss Dorothea Ballard Smith, daughter of the late Ballard Smith, a former editor of the New York World and of Kate Butterfield Smith, who in turn was the daughter of Frederick and Caroline Falconer Butterfield. Frederick Butterfield was a successful New York merchant and acquired a fortune of a million dollars, which he formed into a trust fund for the use of his widow during her life and to go to their daughter, Mrs. Smith, on her death. Mrs. Butterfield died in 1912, and at that time had a fortune of nearly a million of her own to dispose of. She left the great bulk of it to her granddaughter, Dorothea Ballard Smith, who, therefore gets approximately $2,000,000 in all, but with this proviso:

"Should my granddaughter, Dorothea, ever marry any son of Eleanor Phelps McKeague, now the widow of Henry Sedley, my said granddaughter shall thereby forfeit and lose all estate and interest of every description under this will and on such marriage I give all funds and property theretofore held in trust for her in equal shares, to and among corporations and persons named in the sixteenth paragraph of this will."

After executing that will she was still worried over her granddaughter's marriage—the granddaughter was a girl of about 14 when the will was made—and made a codicil providing that the granddaughter should marry, or make any other important decision only with the consent of four of the five trustees she named for the carrying out of her will. Though this codicil was revoked later, it reveals impressively what a temper Mrs. Butterfield was in.

That she could not get her mind at rest as to the peacefulness of Dorothea's life, after she came into possession of her fortune, was indicated by another paragraph in her will, which, after setting forth her regret that she could not make the trust fund established by her deceased husband, perpetual, so it would descend from mother to daughter or son without ever being disrupted or divided, read:

"The absolute ownership of so large a sum will impose on my granddaughter business responsibilities which few women are able to meet and will expose her to the risk of loss and to the advice of designing or incompetent persons. I am therefore strongly of the opinion that it will promote her personal happiness as well as the social and financial welfare of herself and her children, if, on becoming possessed of the fund passing under her grandfather's will, she will settle the same in the hands of competent trustees for her during her life, and the fund shall be kept intact for her descendants."

As an inducement to the young woman to meet her wishes in this regard, she established a trust fund of $200,000, the income of which was to go to her if she acceded to her grandmother's wishes.

Mrs. Butterfield was 81 years old when she died, and 75 when the will was made. The document shows two outstanding thoughts in her mind: the desire that the family fortune should be kept intact for a long line of Butterfields, and "that no son of Eleanor Phelps McKeague" should ever share any part of it. Because Mrs. Sedley (Eleaner Phelps McKeague) had two sons at the time of Mrs. Butterfield's death, Henry McDonald Sedley and Parke Godwin Sedley, the impression seemed to take root that it was against these two young men the old woman's ire had been roused. Yet she specifically forbids Eleanor to ever marry any son of Mrs. Sedley, making it plain that it was against the mother the rancor existed, and it was to be visited on the sons, presumably because there was no available way in which Mrs. Butterfield could get the revenge for which she obviously so keenly yearned against Mrs. Sedley—her one-time bosom friend.

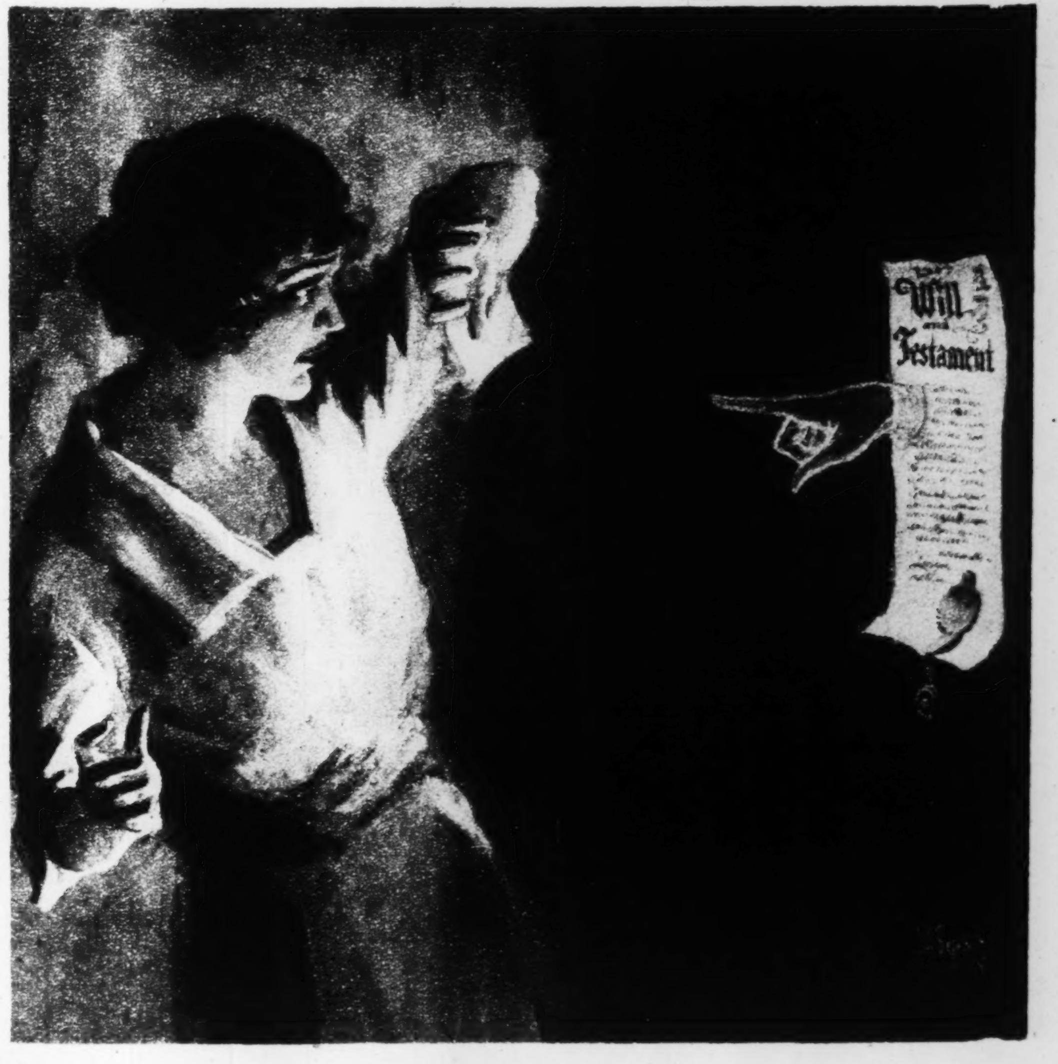
In this connection it is interesting to note the statement of one of the trustees that the contingency Mrs. Butterfield feared was never likely to arise, since Miss Smith never met either of the young men.

What it was that came up between the two women to rupture the friendship and supplant in its stead such a bitter hatred none of the family would ever tell. That it was a long-continued feeling was made plain by Mrs. Ballard Smith, who visited this country at the time of her mother's funeral. She declared that she had not the slightest idea of the cause of her mother's feeling against Mrs. Sedley, but that her mother had told her five years before of that provision in her will. She had protested, but said she found her mother to be obdurate, and her requests for an explanation only brought the response that she "had good reasons." Mrs. Smith laid it all to a crochet of an aged woman's fancy, but Mrs. Butterfield was too precise in outlining her wishes, and they were too logical, as expressed in her will, for anyone to fancy there was anything wrong with her mind. She was good and mad at Mrs. Sedley, and intended to remain so for all of her life, and after that to make a gesture of hatred from her grave, and she did it.

One can fancy hearing a reader, especially if he happens to be a man, say: "Isn't that just like a woman?" Yet the fact remains that more wills regulating the lives of descendants are made by men than by women. Most men, in making such provisions, generally seem worried that their widows will marry again and some "designing or incompetent persons" will come into the enjoyment of the property for which the deceased struggled and saved. But there are other demonstrations of that same feeling. For Mrs. Butterfield's husband, Fred, in his will, after providing that his estate, after the death of his daughter, Mrs. Ballard Smith, should pass to his legal heirs, tacked on:

"Except those children of my late niece, Jane Wright Butterfield, afterward married to Charles Cousin de Montauban, now known as Compte de Palikao."

And carrying on that little feud, Mrs. Butterfield expressly stipulated that these persons should not be permitted to share in her estate. Just why this particular niece came under the avuncular ire does not appear, for the family has not been inclined to air its troubles, and the trustees under the wills have been discretion itself. Lucius Beers, the Butterfield attorney, and one of the trustees under Mrs. Butterfield's will, won't give even the most casual information about the estate or its administration. But if, as seems likely, Niece Jane got in the family bad book for marrying the titled Frenchman, how would grandfather and grandmother like it, were they living to-day, to be told their heiress, who, by the way, is now 28, was going to marry the Duke Bourbon Delmonte?



Fingerprints Can Be Forged

ONE of these days at some sensational trial when the police have introduced photographs of fingerprints to prove that the prisoner was the murderer or the bank robber, the lawyer for the accused is going to ask the police witnesses how they know the fingerprints shown are genuine; the witnesses are going to laugh at the idea that their genuineness can be called in question, and then the defense is going to put a man on the stand to show how easy it is to forge a fingerprint.

The man who has discovered how is Milton Carlson of Los Angeles, perhaps the best known handwriting expert on the Pacific coast, the man who, in the McNamara case, turned the tables on one of the eminent lawyers by forging a page of writing which resembled so closely that of the lawyer himself that the latter based a whole cross-examination on it without even suspecting that it was not the genuine document.

How he forges a fingerprint Mr. Carlson refuses to tell, for, he says, it would put dishonest persons in possession of a method of throwing suspicion on the innocent. But he will show you forged fingerprints and let you compare them through a magnifying glass with the original genuine ones. The first time he did this was a few years ago, when he took from the Literary Digest a photograph of a fingerprint, reproduced it in blood upon a dagger and mailed it to the editor of a Los Angeles newspaper.

Suppose the cashier of a bank went home and left his assistant to lock up the safe; suppose he returned secretly, opened the safe, robbed it, carefully wiped from it all traces of his own fingerprints and then, by Mr. Carlson's process, impressed upon it the fingerprints of the assistant cashier—might not the latter be at least accused of the crime, that is, if no one knew how easy it is to make such a forgery?

Mr. Carlson says it is very easy. He showed the writer fingerprints he had placed upon poker chips (these in tobacco juice), upon polished steel (these in grease, blood and sweat), upon glass, wood and other substances, and assured him that no human hand had ever touched any of them. He says even experts cannot always tell them from the genuine with certainty.

The Strange Fates That Befell Dr. Stone and His First Wife

The recent death of head of Purdue University by a fall of nearly a mile into an abyss when climbing an unscaled Canadian peak recalls the weird disappearance of the first Mrs. Stone who wrote to him that she was going to India to become a Yoga Priestess and was never heard of again—Later, he married girl who had been reared in his home by the first wife :: :: :: ::

Dr. Stone met death in 5000-foot fall into mountain abyss.

The first Mrs. Stone disappeared entirely in a veil of Oriental mystery.

ONE does not usually associate sinister tragedy with the quiet routine of a college professor's life. More than most careers, it seems sheltered and removed from the grimmer kinds of human woe. But here is the story of a tragic exception to the rule.

Twice, catastrophes very much out of the ordinary, disasters which occur more often in novels than in real life, overtook Winthrop E. Stone of Lafayette, Ind., who was born in a small New Hampshire town, went to an agricultural school and spent his life as a college teacher and executive. At the time of his death he was president of Purdue University.

The second of the two great calamities which burst into his life ended it. Following a misstep and a fatal plunge into a chasm of Mount Eanon, in the Canadian Rockies, a search of several weeks was necessary even to find Dr. Stone's body.

The first Mrs. Stone.

Just recently a party of professional guides, Indians and visiting climbers, who had been exploring the lower portions of bleak, forbidding Mount Eanon, located the body at the bottom of a crevasse, tightly wedged in between the rocks and partly covered with ice, snow and debris which had settled upon him.

With great exertions and at considerable risk to themselves, they managed to raise all that was left of Dr. Stone to a point where it could be placed upon a stretcher, and then started on a toilsome march back to the outposts of civilization.

The swift and terrible death which came to this man was the more poignant because Mrs. Stone was there, his only companion, and herself narrowly escaped death. For eight days after her husband's fatal plunge down a tall cliff of Mount Eanon, she lay upon projecting ledge of rock, foodless, injured and terror-stricken. Expert mountain climber that she was, Mrs. Stone could not have climbed up unaided from the place where she lay, and to which a rescue party was guided by the faint sound of her occasional calls for help.

Stone's former wife was the occasion of the first great tragedy which assailed him, some 14 years ago, and a description of which seems like a piece of lurid fiction. The second wife, whom he married seven years ago, powerless to aid him, witnessed the final stroke of Fate.

This president of Purdue University, which has some 3000 students and 225 instructors and professors, not only occupied a position of large responsibility in his professional work, but was a leader in civic affairs and the church. His exacting duties during nine or 10 months of the year made him eager for the kind of vacation which restores bodily strength and vitality. He became an enthusiastic mountain climber, and was an active member of the Alpine Club of Canada and the American Alpine Club. The present Mrs. Stone shared his liking for the hazardous sport, became almost as proficient as he, and was the first American woman to scale dangerous Mount Assiniboine, near Mount Eanon.

Dr. Stone and Mrs. Stone were in a camp of mountain climbers near Mount Assiniboine, in the Province of Alberta. On July 15 they struck out alone toward Mount Eanon, the ascent of which they had been planning for several years to attempt. It was understood at the camp that they had gone out just to reconnoiter the best route for the proposed climb, although Dr. Stone told people at the camp that if he and Mrs. Stone did not return within four days he wanted a searching party to start out.

The pair carried four days' provisions with them, the weather was favorable and they saw what looked like a feasible route to the top of Mount Eanon, which ranked as one of the unscaled peaks of the Canadian Rockies. So on the next day, July 16, they decided to make the attempt by themselves. Because of their long experience in climbing, the attempt to reach the top without guides or more elaborate preparations was not as foolhardy as it may seem at first. The fact is that they appear to have succeeded.

The second Mrs. Stone, who survives him.

Dr. Winthrop E. Stone.

Late reports are that the searching party found proofs Dr. Stone had reached the summit before his plunge. Mrs. Stone was a little way below him (they had not roped themselves together), when, without a word of warning or alarm, she saw him fall, whirling over her into the abyss below, his body bounding from cliff to cliff in its descent for a distance of fully 5000 feet. She attempted to descend after him, but, half-crazed with fear and grief, after she had gone down about 3000 feet she became marooned on a small ledge and could go neither forward nor back.

It was many days before Mrs. Stone could tell of the awful experience and still longer before she could be moved to the camp of the Alpine Club, from which the expedition had started. During all that eight days she had no food, but about noon of every day a tiny stream of melted snow trickled down within reaching distance, and in this way she was able to quench her thirst. She never gave up the fight for life. At intervals every day she would call for help, as loudly as her ebbing strength would permit, even when she felt in her heart that there was no human being in all that vast desolation, that huge silence, to hear her.

She had to be carried back to the camp and carefully nursed.

Dr. Stone, who was 59 years old, was born at Chesterfield, N. H. He was educated at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, being graduated in 1882. He obtained a degree from Boston University in 1886. To complete his education for a career as professor of Stealing a Million Dollars!

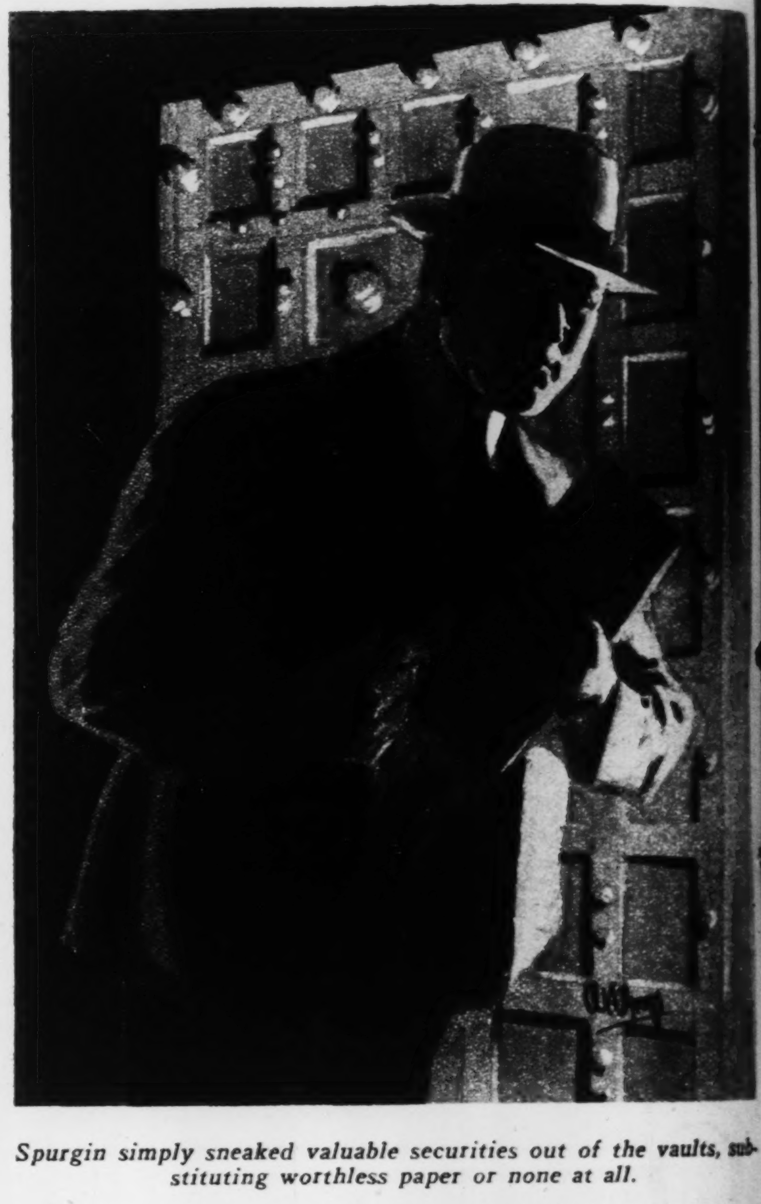
How two men, living not far from each other, looted corporate institutions that trusted them, of almost incredible sums, one to spend his in an orgy of dissipation and the other to put his into various philanthropies for the upbuilding of his home town—Now one is a fugitive on foreign soil while other languishes in jail, because none of those helped will furnish $25,000 bail -o- -o- -o- -o- -o-



Spurgin simply sneaked valuable securities out of the vaults, substituting worthless paper or none at all.

"STEAL a million dollars!" you exclaim. "It can't be done! The fellows who have millions aren't going to leave them lying around to be stolen."

Yet that is exactly what they do—sometimes—leave their money lying around so that the first clever thief that happens along can pick it up and walk off with it. This statement needs no better proof than is afforded by two cases now in the public eye, in each of which a man is charged with stealing more than $1,000,000. And the facts in both instances show that it was comparatively easy and simple.

For business, with all its checks and counter checks, its audits and balances, cannot eliminate the human element, and wherever there is a man—at least so the pessimists tell us—there is a potential thief. Wherever there is a man there are ambitions to gratify and tastes to indulge, which usually take money. And when a man wants money badly enough he may take it, regardless of whether it belongs to him. At any rate, that is what happened in these instances.

It was a curious contrast in desires—the desires that apparently led these men astray. One man was a churchgoer, the superintendent of a Sunday school; the other was a night owl, a patron of the all-night cafes. Each had his own tastes to gratify, and each—so it appears—stole more than a million to gratify them. Yet they were as far apart as the poles, for "Cy" Thomson of Austin, Minn., put his million into cattle, hogs and chickens, into model barns and tenant houses, into playgrounds for children and dance halls for the community; while Warren Spurgin of Chicago strewed his along the blazing trail that leads from one roadhouse to another. He bought furs and diamonds, automobiles and clothing, for women—women other than his wife and daughter.

One was a philanthropist—with stolen money; the other was a spender. One was a creator of good and beautiful and useful things; the other was a waster, a consumer who produced nothing. One loved his family and was beloved to idolatry; the other was a rake. And each, the accountants say, stole a million and over.

Retribution has followed both, although perhaps not in the proportion that poetic justice and the sentimental observer would demand. For Thomson, the philanthropist, the friend of little children and animals, is in a barred cell, while Spurgin, the roué, is a fugitive, although, at the time this is written he is reported in custody in Mexico.

Thomson is completely "broke," having turned his entire assets over to the employer whom he defrauded; Spurgin is believed to have a suit case full of money, and is said to be accompanied by a woman.

Thomson's wife and small son are without money or resources; Spurgin's wife and daughter have life insurance policies on him totaling $75,000, in addition to other resources. Destiny does not always play the cards in the way that seems to us most fitting and just. Aside from that, however, the facts in both instances certainly seem to bear out the contention of some cynics that the so-called "hard-headed business man" may himself be the most gullible and susceptible of individuals, and stands, with his purse in his hand, like a child with a stick of candy, waiting for somebody to come along and take it away from him. One is reminded of the scornful declaration recently made by a famous essayist that "it takes no more real sagacity and acumen to carry on the everyday hawking and haggling of the world than it takes to operate a taxicab or fry a pan of fish."

The facts in the Spurgin case are these: Warren C. Spurgin started in business as a clerk in the county bank at Panora, Ia. Shortly after his marriage to a town girl and the birth of their daughter Vivian, he eloped with a married woman of the place, and went to Florida. The brothers of his wife followed him, and, notwithstanding that Spurgin is 6 feet 3, and had been a college football star, they took him home meekly to his wife and baby. The woman with whom he had gone away never returned to her family and is said to have gone adrift.

In addition to helping himself to his neighbor's wife, Spurgin had also helped himself to $3000 of the bank's money. This was repaid by his brothers-in-law. They forgave him his trespasses, and assisted him to get started in busines, to enable him to support his family and his crippled mother.

As the years went by, and Spurgin's great frame took on flesh, and his black hair showed streaks of gray, it appeared that one fling had been enough to do him the rest of his life. His daughter grew into a winsome young woman, and was sought by the town beaux.

Warren C. Spurgin.

But Spurgin outgrew Panora. Four years ago he sold his home for $6000 and moved to Chicago. Immediately he launched upon a career strangely composed of fantastic business deals by day and delirious rampages along the white way by night. In both aspects of his life he was successful. He bought a small interest in the Michigan Avenue Trust Co. and actively interested himself in its affairs. He speculated in leather, and made several "killings." He invested in mining properties, and organized a discount company. He acquired more stock in the bank, and before his associates were aware of his purpose, he had got control and was elected president.

As for his nocturnal triumphs—there was an "Ethel," blonde; a red-haired "Florence," a "Billie," a "Bessie," and many others whose names were never heard or have been forgotten by the habitues of the midnight restaurants where Spurgin appeared nearly every evening with a new companion. Here he was the incandescent center of a lively coterie, some of whom, like himself, spent money, and still others of whom were willing to eat and drink what was brought. When Spurgin's massive figure filled the front door, head waiters were apt to forget their dignity, and all "good fellows" in the place realized that the night's entertainment was about to commence.

He made no secret of his mode of life. He told his wife bluntly that he proposed to do as he liked, and pointed out to her that there was little she could do about it.

They became estranged, but continued living in the same house, maintaining outward appearances for the sake of the daughter, Vivian, who had by now announced her engagement to Howard Byler, a student at the University of Chicago.

Abreast of Spurgin's passage down the primrose path of the 24-hour cafes was his progress toward wealth. But his luck did not hold. He organized a company and purchased control of the Eurades Mining Co., at Ouray, Colo. Something like $150,000 was sunk there, and Spurgin's enterprise earned him the title of the "Angel of Ouray," but only one shipment of ore ever came out, and now the angry miners are demanding back pay, which is not forthcoming.

He borrowed $450,000 early this summer, and flung it into a leather speculation. Other of his enterprises went wrong, for, as the market gamblers will tell, one "bad break" is always followed by others; misfortunes travel in herds. One financial calamity after another piled upon the broad but bending shoulders of the giant. In the face of these circumstances, it is believed, he resolved to loot the bank. Perhaps the peculations at first were made in the hope of recouping; perhaps it was all a part of a systematic plan to get everything possible and then abscond.

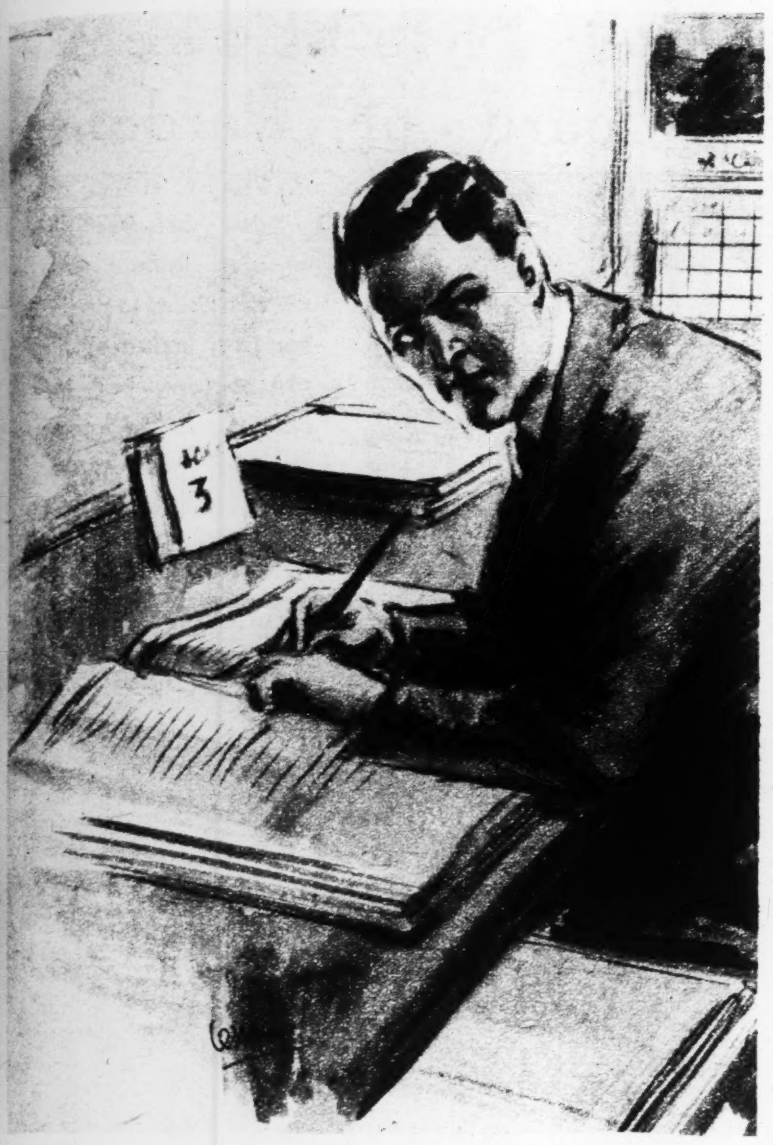
On June 25 the cashier of the bank communicated to one of the directors a suspicion that everything was not right.

The director went to Spurgin with a demand that the books be audited. Spurgin refused, and the director resigned forthwith. Grave conversations ensued between other directors, and rumors of a conference, at which a formal demand for an audit would be made, passed through the bank.

In this situation Spurgin appeared unexpectedly at his home, turned over to his wife an insurance policy on his life for $50,000 another to his daughter, for $25,000, gave them each $450 for immediate expenses, and told them he probably would never see either of them again. Up to the time this is written, he hasn't.

News of his disappearance was not long in getting to the other officials of the bank. On the morning of July 21 it was closed, and a few days later thousands of anxious depositors, many of them poor people with small savings, heard the appalling report that the shortage amounted to $1,000,000.

The method which he is alleged to have employed



Thomson's method was to record bank deposits which he never made in filching the bank's assets was amazingly simple; in fact, it was hardly a method at all. In the vaults were many valuable securities, to which Spurgin, as president, had unhampered access. No systematic or frequent check seems to have been made on their safety.

These were simply taken out and pawned, or posted as collateral for loans. In some instances securities of little value were substituted; in others their places were left vacant.

Not alone did the bank suffer. The names of eight Panora farmers whom Spurgin had known from his childhood, were forged to mortgages totaling $160,000. The farmers themselves have repudiated the mortgages.

One of their number, 90 years sold, said, when told that his name was signed to such a mortgage: "I never bought a thing on credit in my life. I never got anything from Spurgin, and haven't seen him since he left here."

Years of neglect and unfaithfulness had prepared Mrs. Spurgin for her husband's escapade. Her chief regret is the stigma it brought upon their daughter. The daughter herself, however, seemed to enjoy the whole proceeding as an adventure. The blow apparently fell heaviest upon Spurgin's aged and crippled mother, still living at Panora.

"If he has done wrong I hope he will come back and take his punishment like a man," she told a reporter, with tears streaming down her face. "I am praying for him night and day. We've never had a thief in our family. If I hear from him I will advise him to come back and do what is right."

And now we come to the vastly differing case of Ransome J. Thomson, known throughout Minnesota as "Cy" Thomson, once the benefactor and patron saint of Austin and Leroy, but now a prisoner in Austin Jail.

A recital of Spurgin's career excites little sympathy. Spurgin was fortune's favorite many times before he finally lost. He left little behind him save an army of cheated and defrauded people, a bitter wife and a heartbroken mother.

Literally the opposite is true of "Cy" Thomson. When announcement was made that the R. J. Hormel Packing Co. of Austin, Minn., of which Thomson was comptroller, was short in its accounts, and that Thomson had admitted taking the money, Austin laughed and shook its head indulgently. "Just another one of Cy's publicity stunts," they said. "Cy certainly will go the limit to get his name in the papers."

There was absolutely no arguing with Austin, or its sister town, Leroy, on this question. "Cy Thomson a crook?" they snorted. "Say, tell it to the marines! Don't you think we know him? A crook, huh?" said one Austin man to a reporter. "Well, just to show you what I think of your story you tell Cy that if he needs any money he can have my bank account, and if that isn't enough, I'll see if I can raise some on my property. Young fellow, Cy is putting something over on you. Get next to yourself. We know Cy." And he chuckled. "He sure is hell for notoriety."

No even Thomson's employers, confronted on their books with a deficit, the proportions of which were hourly growing, could shake off the confidence with which Thomson had inspired them. They were dazed, and Jay Hormel, the vice president, after Thomson had admitted defaulting, said: "We are perfectly sure that Mr. Thomson will make this right. We have every confidence in him. We regard him as a business genius."

Cy's own attitude supported this feeling. "I've been a fool, boys," he told reporters, "but I'll square this thing, all right. I've turned over all my property to the company, except my home. I offered it, too, but the law doesn't permit them to take it, under those circumstances. Watch me. I'll come through this with colors flying."

To a man, Austin and Leroy vouched for this. Convinced now that their idol and benefactor had made a tragic error, skepticism quickly turned to sympathy. Numerous offers of aid came from his friends, among whom were numbered virtually every man, woman and child in the two communities. They wanted to help him out of this hole. "It's a mistake of the head—not the heart," they said of the man who had given them a $30,000 public dance hall, a great swimming pool and their children one of the finest playgrounds in America.

But as the accountants continued their methodical task of checking up the books, the Hormels grew grimmer and less communicative. The amount, it was said, was larger than had been estimated. It probably would reach $430,000. Still, Thomson's assets should cover the shortage. Austin and Leroy grew silent and anxious. The Hormel concern, doing a business of $30,000,000 a year, was reported to be in difficult straits due to the embezzlement. This put another color on the situation. The plant was tho largest in Austin and furnised employment to a large percentage of the people who lived there. A conference of bankers was called in Chicago to discuss the situation.

Then the blow fell. It was in the form of an announcement, given out at the conference. The bankers had received the report of the auditors, it was stated.

The amount of the deficit was $1,187,000.

It was believed that enough money could be raised to prevent the closing of the plant.

Austin was stunned. Buf immediately things began to happen. The president of the local butchers' union issued a statement demanding the prosecution of R. J. Thomson as an embezzler, setting forth that he had, "by his admitted conscienceless thefts, endangered the employment, and consequently the livelihood, of a large number of innocent working people." George Hormel, president of the company, replied with the grim rejoinder that "It may be depended upon that Thomson will be prosecuted to the bitter end. If the company is saved from being wrecked, it will not be for the reason that he has not done his best to wreck it."

And, on July 18, the Sheriff of Mower County placed his hand on the shoulder of the fallen idol and said: "Cy, you'll have to come with me." Thomson was pale and haggard, but spoke quietly. "You'll let me pack a change of clothes and my razor, won't you, Nick?" he asked. The Sheriff assented. They went into the house.

Mrs. Thomson blanched when she saw the Sheriff. "I've got to go on a little trip, mother," said her husband. "Put a few clothes in my bag." White-lipped, she complied. Ten-year-old Gerald also sensed the significance of the scene.

"Oh, daddy, why did you do it?" he cried, throwing his arms around his father's neck.

"Sh-h, sonny, I'll be back in a little while," said Thomson. But the boy was not placated. "Why did you do it? Oh, why did you do it, daddy?" he sobbed, again and again, until his mother returned and quieted him in her arms, as the Sheriff and Thomson got into the former's automobile for the ride to the county jail.

The immediate question, for Thomson, was to get bail. It was $25,000—a small enough sum to the man who had paid that much for one blooded bull. But circumstances alter all things, and particularly the standing of a man under the charge of theft. From the jail Thomson called up five men. Of each he asked if he would pledge $5000 for the bond. In each case the response was the same. Thomson turned away from the telephone, beaten.

"You'll have to lock me up, Nick," he said, simply.

And there, at the time this is written, he remains, awaiting trial on charges of embezzlement and fraud, on indictments voted by a grand jury of men who formerly looked up to him on all things affecting the welfare of the county.

Only 36 years ago Thomson was born on a farm near Leroy. He was a hustling boy. After leaving school he entered the employ of the Hormel company, at Austin, and speedily made good. He was pleasant, polite and "on his toes." Company officials liked his "up and coming" spirit, illustrated when he got their permission to set up a little concession in the plant, where, as a supplement to his wages of $12 a week, he sold chocolate bars and confections to other employes. With this money he bought a small farm near his old home at Leroy, and put some blooded chickens on it. Promotions in the Hormel company came rapidly to him. With his genius for organization, he was assigned the duty of reorganizing the entire plant. He did it in a way that delighted his employers.

"He was a positive genius," said George Hormel later. "His efficient methods saved us thousands. I never saw anybody like him."

His salary was increased, and he added 50 acres to his Leroy farm, and bought more pedigreed poultry. He acquired another farm—said he had fallen heir to it. He laid out beautiful parks on it. He erected a public dancing pavilion, at a cost of $30,000. On the farm he built a dormitory for housing his employes. The building was sumptuously furnished and lighted. Hardly a farm laborer in Minnesota but envied Thomson's "hands," and wanted to be one of them, and live in this "hired man's heaven," with its billiard room, its library and its dance floor. Thomson established a modern fire department and organized a band of 35 pieces.

R. J. "Cy" Thomson.

Most people did not know that his salary was only $5000 a year, and those who did know it smiled and said Cy must have gotten hold of a good thing somewhere. There was, it appears, no suspicion whatever when he bought another farm near Austin, put a $300,000 herd of Holstein cattle and a $20,000 herd of Duroc hogs on it. The barns were steam heated. The cattle were cleaned daily with a vacuum cleaner. He bought a Holstein bull for $25,000, and a half interest in another animal valued at the same figure. He bought the finest white leghorn cock in the world, Edward of Oakdale, valued at $10,000. His white leghorn brood is said to be unequaled on the planet.

Under his magic touch a score of apartment houses went up in Austin—little Austin—with its 7000 inhabitants. For himself, he erected a $30,000 mansion there. Acres of the finest groves were crammed with playground devices for the children of the town by this incredible Santa Claus.

As for Leroy, that village simply moved and had its being in an ecstatic purple mist that radiated from the person of Cy Thomson and his apparently bottomless purse. To speak ill of Cy Thomson in Leroy would have been equal to announcing an intention to burn the town and put the inhabitants to the sword. Thomson was not a person, to Leroy—he was a religion.

- How Would You Solve This Case - Which Puzzles Nebraska's Board of Pardons?

A BOARD OF PARDONS AND PAROLES sat in executive session in the Warden's office of the Nebraska State Penitentiary.

On the secretary's desk was a mass of letters, affidavits and court records. Before the board stood a young man, upstanding in figure and possessed of a straight, firm mouth, sturdy jaw and intelligent eyes. He was, in the language of the prison, what is known as a "lifer."

Five years ago, in 1916, a jury of his peers had convicted R. G. Lukens, a young salesman of photographs, of being an accessory to murder and the trial Judge had sentenced him to serve the remainder of his days behind the bars of Nebraska's State Penitentiary.

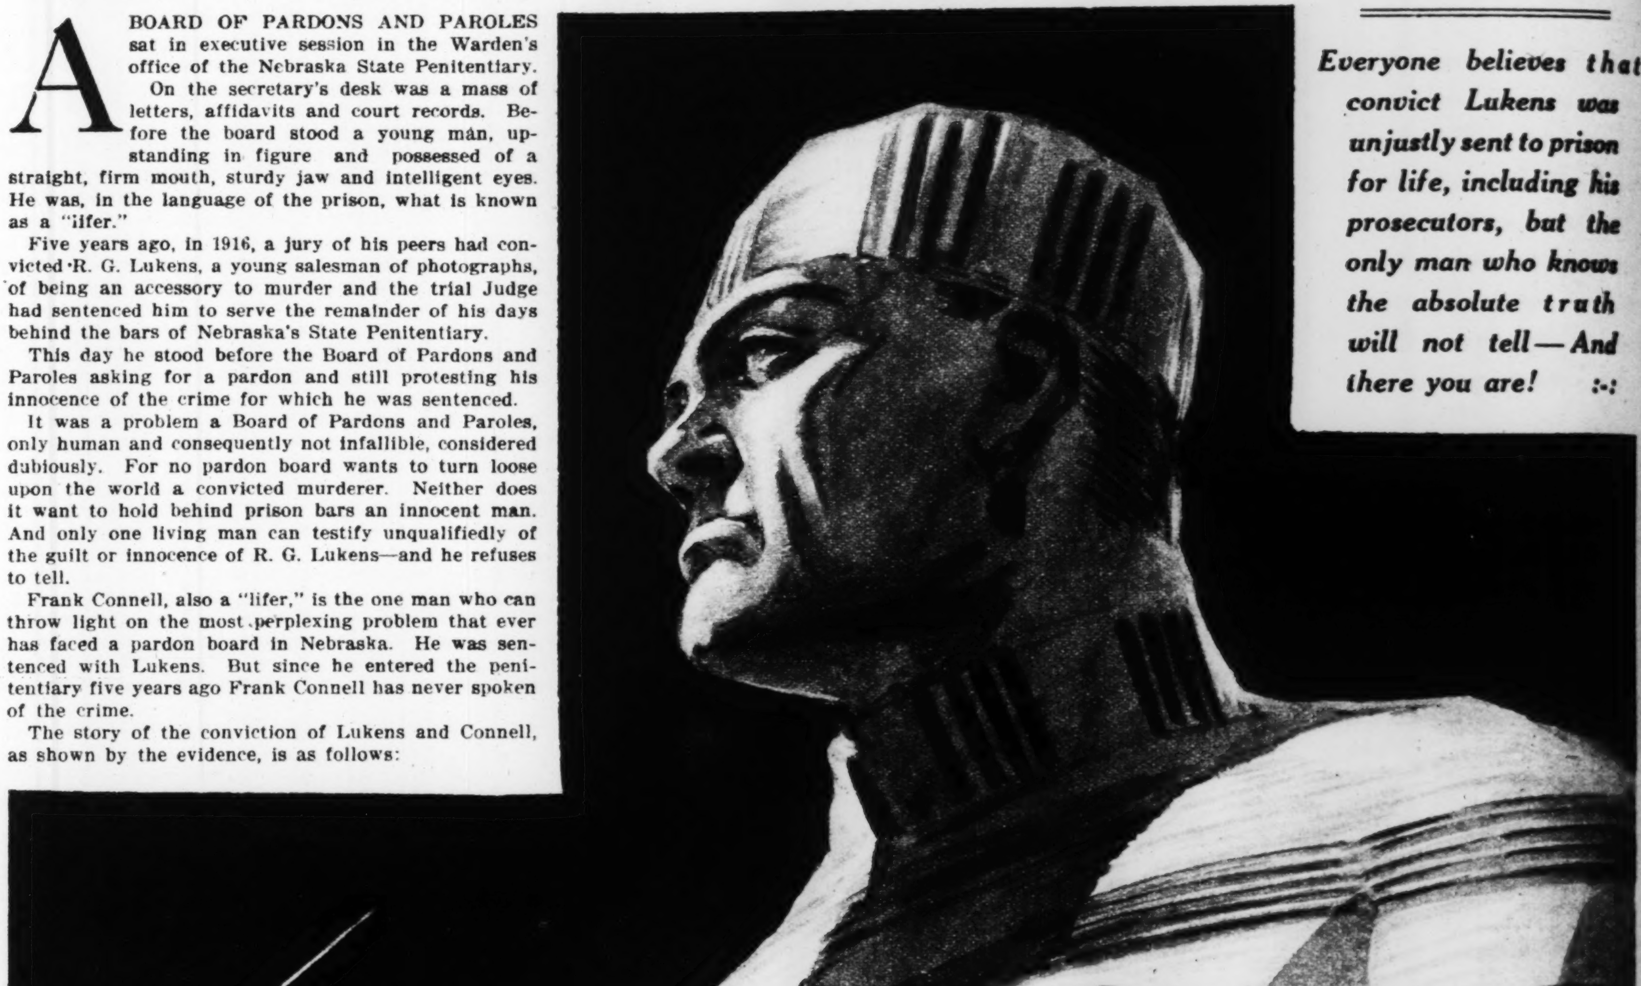
This day he stood before the Board of Pardons and Paroles asking for a pardon and still protesting his innocence of the crime for which he was sentenced.

It was a problem a Board of Pardons and Paroles, only human and consequently not infallible, considered dubiously. For no pardon board wants to turn loose upon the world a convicted murderer. Neither does it want to hold behind prison bars an innocent man. And only one living man can testify unqualifiedly of the guilt or innocence of R. G. Lukens—and he refuses to tell.

Frank Connell, also a "lifer," is the one man who can throw light on the most perplexing problem that ever has faced a pardon board in Nebraska. He was sentenced with Lukens. But since he entered the penitentiary five years ago Frank Connell has never spoken of the crime.

The story of the conviction of Lukens and Connell, as shown by the evidence, is as follows:

Everyone believes that convict Lukens was unjustly sent to prison for life, including his prosecutors, but the only man who knows the absolute truth will not tell—And there you are! :-:



R. G. Lukens.

In 1916 Lukens was traveling in Western Nebraska as salesman for a photographer. Connell sold novelties, or at least he so told Lukens when they chanced to meet on the road. The meeting subsequently resulted in a business partnership and they took up their travels together.

One warm evening they arrived in Chappell, Neb. To save expenses they decided to sleep in their automobile. In the morning they ate breakfast together in Chappell, then took the automobile and drove to Sunol, Neb.

There Lukens left Connell to go into a saloon and get a drink. He remained there long enough to consume several drinks.

But Connell had other business in mind. He walked into the only bank in the little sandhill town, held up the banker, took $1500 and fled into a cornfield.

The banker aroused the town. Lukens, hearing the news of the robbery while still in the saloon, joined the volunteer posse. But because he was a stranger in town and unacquainted with other members of the posse Lukens went in his own automobile alone.

Farmers saw him stop his car at the edge of the cornfield and enter it. A few moments later they saw him emerge from the cornfield with Connell at his side. Then they saw the two get into the automobile and start back down the road toward Sunol.

But at a cross-roads an armed posse stopped them. Lukens leaped from the machine, while Connell backed the car, turned it and fled.

In the chase that followed Paul Vacik and Ira Paul were killed. Connell was wounded and captured after he drove the car into a creek.

Lukens' story is that he went into the cornfield to search for the robber. He came upon Connell, he says, and, much to his surprise, was held up at the point of a revolver and ordered to drive his business associate away.

When he was tried the trial Judge offered to give him a lighter sentence if he would plead guilty to being an accessory to the robbery. But Lukens refused.

"I am guilty of nothing," he persisted.

But the circumstantial evidence against him was strong. He admitted he was Connell's partner. He had driven into town with him. And he had driven the car in which Connell attempted to escape and had leaped from it only upon the appearance of an armed posse. There seemed little question of his guilt.

He was sentenced to life.

But after the gates of the State Penitentiary had closed behind him a new sentiment formed. It followed reports of Lukens' exemplary conduct in prison.

No sooner had he been assigned to a cell than he asked permission to take a course in a correspondence school.

"Why?" asked the puzzled Warden. "You're in for life."

"I am innocent of this crime," was the prisoner's reply. "For that reason I know that some day I will be released. I want to be ready. I never took the trouble to study as I should have when I was a free man. I will never have a better opportunity."

At first the Warden was suspicious. But he consented to the lifer's request. Later his observations showed that Lukens was in earnest and that his industry was no trick or fraud.

In a very short time Lukens mastered a course in bookkeeping and accounting. Then he took up salesmanship and advertising. Now he is studying law.

But it was in advertising that Lukens made his mark. He admits it was his favorite study. He picked up its fundamental principles quickly and easily and in a short time had become an expert.

And today, confined to a cell in state's prison and wearing the coarse, dull prison uniform of the convict, he is the advertising manager of a large Lincoln furniture store at a salary of $250 a month. He handles all of the store's advertising. He writes the copy and buys the space. He has full authority.

When Lukens leaves the prison walls behind him he will have his choice of half a dozen positions. But he will remain with the furniture company, he says.

When Lukens appeared before the Board of Pardons so did Clayton Radcliffe, the County Attorney who prosecuted him.

"My conscience has hurt me ever since Lukens was committed to prison," he told the board. "He is serving life for a crime about which I doubt if he knew anything.

J. L. McIntosh, an attorney who aided in the prosecution, also paid his own expenses to Lincoln to volunteer the admission that there had been no direct evidence against Lukens and that very possibly he was entirely innocent.

"But nobody knows for a certainty," said the chairman of the Pardon Board.

The board nodded assent. (Continued on page 14.)

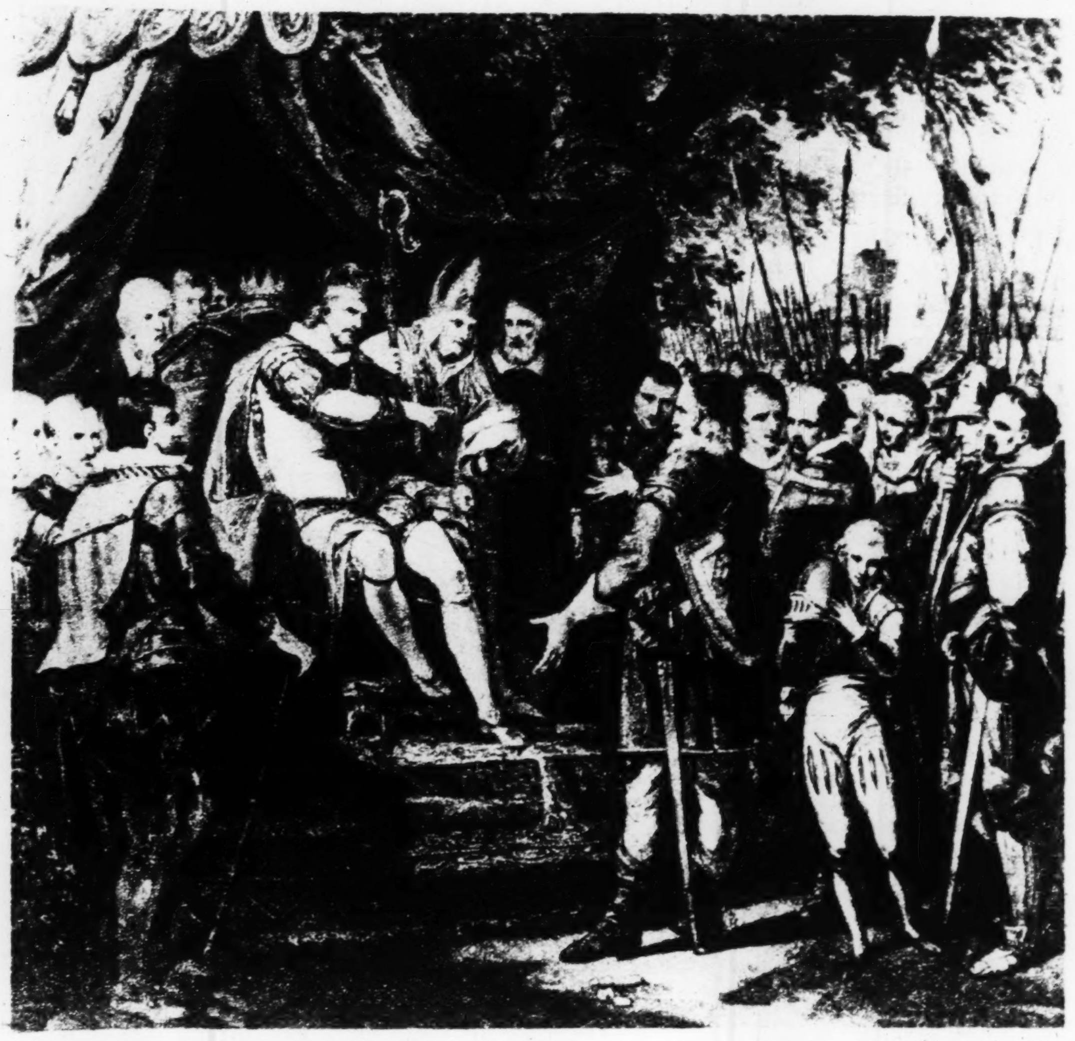
The Cradle of English Liberty on the Auction Block

Inclusion of famous Runnymede on list of crown lands to be sold has raised storm of protest in England — At that ancient meadow King John, brother and hated successor of Richard Coeur de Lion, consented to drastic limitations of the Royal power — Something about spot where Magna Carta was presented by stubborn Barons to their monarch—and signed :: ::



A great moment in history of English liberty. When the rebellious Barons presented Magna Carta to King John for his signature, at Runnymede, as the scene is depicted in old painting.

AN OUTCRY, loud and wrathful, rises in England from people in all ranks of society. The chorus of indignation comes partly from school children, partly from adults, and reverberations are heard even in the House of Lords.

It is just such a general and bitter expression of outraged feelings as would be evoked in this country if thrifty officials of municipality or state should propose selling Bunker Hill for factory sites, or wrecking Faneuil Hall to make room for a new hotel, or cutting up Gettysburg battlefield into building lots.

The storm broke when it became known that the British Government, in great stress for funds to meet its obligations, had included on the list of crown lands to be sold the historic field of Runnymede, where the Barons in 1215 compelled unwilling King John to sign Magna Carta, or the Great Charter. The cradle of English constitutional liberties for sale!

The Government not only proposed auctioning off to the highest bidder the ground whereon that tremendous scene was enacted, but in the callous departmental phraseology listed it as a "lot." The long meadow where the avaricious, cruel and cowardly brother of Richard the Lion-Hearted had to bow to the will of his stubborn Barons, and which extends along the Thames River today in all its quiet beauty, had descended to the level of a "lot."

Runnymede (or Runnimede, for both spellings are used) is in one of the most interesting portions of the storied County of Surrey. Lying 20 miles west of London, the ancient towers of Windsor Castle are only three miles away and a splendid view of them is to be had from the top of Cooper's Hill, at the base of which lies Runnymede. To the beauty of this hill there is a glowing allusion in Pope's poetry.

Between Runnymede and Windsor proper lie the villages of Old Windsor and Datchet, both of them along the "winding shore" of the Thames, which doubtless gave the name of Windsor to the castle. At Old Windsor the Saxon Kings kept court; there Harold II and his brother Tostig once exchanged ungentle blows.

William the Conqueror liked the place and went there frequently because of its nearness to the Thames and to Windsor Forest, where he might fish and hunt as much as he liked. It is a mellow, pretty place, with scattered dwellings and many fine country houses nearby.

The village of Datchet, old and somewhat rustic, but with modern villas about it, will be remembered as long as "Sir John Falstaff" and his humiliating experience with the "Merry Wives of Windsor." It was the "muddy ditch at Datchet mead" whither he was "carried in a basket, like a barrow of butcher's offal, to be thrown in the Thames," and would have been "drowned but that the shore was shelvy and shallow."

A little further up the stream are spots where Izaak Walton and Sir Henry Wotton often went fishing, a region thereby rendered interesting to anglers. And then one comes to the famous halls of Eton College and of Windsor Castle itself.

So Runnymede lies in the heart of a country dear to lovers of the past. The long meadow, green and smooth, is appropriately enough a fresh and open place, "with great overarching sky and water lilies bedecking the stream," according to a recent description. A few horses graze contentedly there, and a well-worn towpath follows the shore, because railroads and motor trucks have not yet taken all the traffic away from the Thames.

Magna Carta, or Charter Island, and Picnic Island divide the river as it flows past Runnymede, and in the past boating parties with baskets of lunch frequently received permission to visit them and spend the day there.

Tradition says it was upon Charter Island and not Runnymede field that King John granted Magna Carta. The actual spot where the ceremony occurred has long been a matter of dispute. The Charter itself indicates Runnymede by name, but the term may easily have been meant to include the island now called Charter Island.

In 1834 a gothic temple was erected on the island by Simon Harcourt, with an inscription stating that the Great Charter was signed there, as tradition has declared for hundreds of years. He did this upon the theory that the Barons probably were encamped in Runnymede field, on one bank of the Thames, and that King John approached from the other bank, which is in the direction of Windsor Castle, and that the meetings were held on the island.

Lord Lincolnshire, one of the six or seven peers remaining who are descendants of the Runnymede Barons, spoke these bitter sentences recently in the House of Lords:

"Your ancestors, my Lords, on this historic field saved the liberties of England. Now we are face to face with the fact that this field, which has played so famous a part in history, has been put up for sale and will be knocked down under the hammer by the direction or under the jurisdiction of Lord Lee, one of the last of the Lloyd Georgian Barons."

The Lord Lee to whom he referred was Lord Lee of Fareham, First Lord of the Admiralty, whose wife is the former Miss Ruth Moon of New York City. He was made a Baron in 1918. He gave to the nation his place in Buckinghamshire, Chequers Court, for the Prime Minister's country residence.

The causes which led to the granting of Magna Carta may be summed up briefly in the growing discontent with unbridled exercise of royal authority; the increasing insularity of the Barons, who had ceased to be the holders of estates in Normandy; the fact that an unpopular monarch, King John, had followed the popular Richard Coeur de Lion; and, perhaps most important of all, the unprecedented kingly demands for money.

The heavy taxes necessary to carry on King John's fight for the recovery of Normandy were not followed by victories, which might have made them more palatable, but on July 27, 1214, he met with a crushing defeat at the hands of the King of France, and had to recognize that his hopes of getting back Normandy were at an end. The Barons had declined to assist him in this matter, which he attempted to carry through with mercenary troops.

The events leading up to the meeting at Runnymede were further complicated by the quarrel between King John and Pope Innocent III, regarding the appointment of a new Archbishop to the see of Canterbury. This dispute was settled in May, 1213, and Stephen Langton, the papal nominee, became the new prelate, landed in England and absolved the King in the following July. In Langton the Barons found an able and powerful ally.

In May of 1214 King John had ordered another assessment for the expenses of his campaign. It was at an unprecedented rate. The Northern Barons refused to pay, and their position was strengthened a little later by John's defeat at Bouvines. In November he had a meeting with some of the nobles, but they still refused to pay. More than that, they threatened to withdraw their allegiance

The Odd Story of a Painting Engla Once

Popular subscription of $75,000 made up to purchase Millais' canvas which was once denounced as irreverent and repulsive because of its realism — A similar reception was accorded 40 years later to German artist's religious themes, which are now regarded as among the most outstanding works of the century—How the pendulum of public sentiment swings back :: :: :: ::

NOTHING under the sun is so fickle as the public's taste. That this is true of its standards in art, no less than in more material things, was strikingly illustrated recently when the people of Great Britain, by popular subscription, purchased Millais' famous painting, "Christ in the House of His Parents," sometimes called, "The Carpenter Shop."

A tremendous agitation occurred when it appeared that Australia, through an offer of $75,000, was about to acquire the picture, which for many years has hung in a London gallery, the subject of reverent admiration. Not only those especially interested in art, but the public generally, were alarmed at the possibility of seeing this masterpiece leave their shores.

Yet it was just 71 years ago that the London Times, organ of popular feeling, said of the canvas: "That morbid infatuation which sacrifices truth, beauty and genuine feeling to mere eccentricity deserves no quarter at the hands of the public;" and, says a historian of the time, "the public in general revolted against what it held to be fantastic in conception, outrageous in realization and repulsive as a whole."

Sentiment changed in the slow years that followed, yet the change was not marked enough to obtain a welcome 40 years later for the works of Fritz von Uhde, a German artist who undertook to treat religious subjects as if they were characters of the age in which he lived. He also heard the charge—"sacrilegious"—from many quarters, hurled at the paintings which are now acclaimed as among the greatest German masterpieces of all time.

John Everett Millais—afterward to be knighted Sir John, as a tribute from the nation which had so abused him—was a member, in fact, a leader, of the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood, a school of artists including, among others, Holman Hunt and Dante Rossetti, who formed it as a protest against the debased generalization and looseness of the period. They carried their artistic principle into their mode of living, and neither smoked, drank nor swore—at a time when all bohemianism was saturated with tobacco, spirits and quaint oaths. They declared that all their enthusiasm was directed to things artistic and pure.

Millais' own radicalism, however, was strangely qualified by a remarkable gift of common sense and realism—but perhaps it is not so strange, after all, when one considers that to be realistic, to see things as they were, was, in that age, accounted the essence of revolution and departure—a strange paradox, but a true one.

As an example of this, it is related that once, during a time of popular agitation on a public question, he indignantly exclaimed: "You see the utter hopelessness of establishing anything, even for the good of the nation, when there are insolent disturbers abroad!" To which his friend, Holman Hunt, quietly observed that Christ himself had been an agitator.

"Yes, and he got stoned, too!" retorted Millais, warmly. "And quite right, too, from the point of view of the people who saw nothing of his divinity, but only his agitation. I'll have to confess that's all I'd have seen if I'd been there; I'm afraid I'd have thrown stones, too."

Undoubtedly it was this substantial conservatism which enabled him to weather, without faltering, the storms of vituperation which swept himself and his associates.

These were to burst upon him soon after his affiliation with the new creed. His first production under these auspices was his "Lorenzo and Isabella," followed by several portraits of his friends. The astounded public received these blunt works first with astonishment—coming from the brush of a man whose remarkable precocity had promised much—and then with ridicule. They were called "the prime joke of the generation" by dullards who could not see, in the bald truthfulness of the canvases, the vast ability and the noble novelty of the work.

But this ridicule turned to opprobrium and venom when the "Christ in the House of His Parents" followed. Few could see that a carpenter's shop, even with its halo of traditional sanctity, should actually look like a carpenter's shop, or that in the homely realism of the painting there his experienced eye the results of the tremendous study and ability which had gone into them. Replying to a critic who charged that the drapery in one of Millais' paintings was handled in faulty fashion, Ruskin replied that, on the contrary, it was the finest and truest treatment of drapery in the academy. His learning was too much for the critics. There was justice in the contemptuous appraisal of them which he wrote to his father:

"When I read these reviews, I was so disgusted by their sheer, broad-faced, sheepish, swinish stupidity, that I began to feel, as I wrote in the morning, that I was rather an ass myself to string pearls for them. In speaking of art, I shall never be modest any more."

This was the turning point. Although the critics sneered at Ruskin's "assumption of a power to bind or loose," to make or break, he did, in fact, wield a tremendous power—and one phase of his power was that of bringing forward buyers for the pictures. He took up the points of the critics one by one, and with his enormous learning and power of analysis, destroyed them bit by bit. And the crowd, as ready to crown as to crucify, began to waver and then to praise. Millais lived to see his work generally appreciated and to hear himself called "a true successor to Gainsborough and Reynolds." At his death, in 1896, a commentator wrote: "Now not England only, but all the wide world of art, mourns her greatest painter of the century, the most universally beloved man, who, through his genius, has ever made his way into the heart and affections of a nation."

But, no less true than the fact of the public's capacity for misjudgment, is the fact that it never learns its lesson. Only a few years before Millais' death, and at a time when the critics of the world were heaping praise upon the work they had once so bitterly condemned, there arose in Bavaria a painter, Fritz von Uhde, whose principles, in general, were those which had inspired the Pre-Raphaelites.

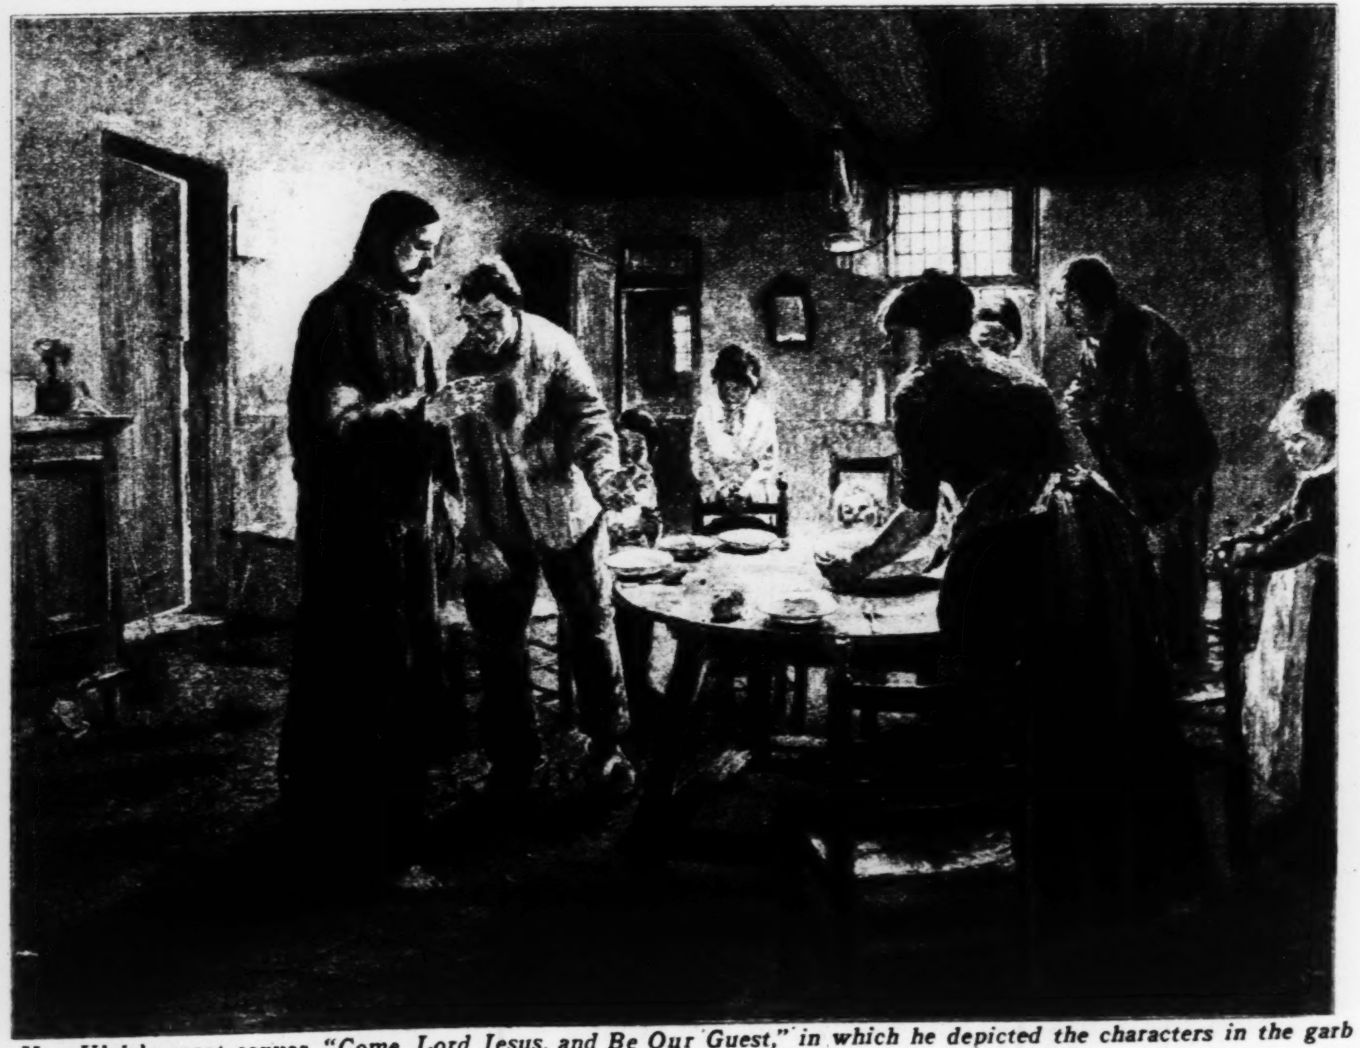
There is a Bavarian custom of saying grace before each meal with the formula: "Komm, Herr Jesu, sei unser Gast" (Come, Lord Jesus, and be our guest"). Von Uhde took this household phrase as a theme for a painting. It depicted the peasant family, about to sit down at the table, and, as the customary blessing is asked, the figure of Christ appears in response.

All the characters were pictured in conventional nineteenth century clothing, not excepting the figure of Christ. Von Uhde, himself intensely religious, conceived the purpose of bringing home to his audience the fact that Christ is not a legendary figure of antiquity, but a living presence in the home of every peasant.

The painting was roundly denounced as sacrilegious, and the artist as a churlish and irreverent fellow. A similar greeting was accorded his "Holy Night," showing the Virgin Mary, in peasant clothing, leaning against a fence and looking longingly, as for shelter, towards a cottage nearby.

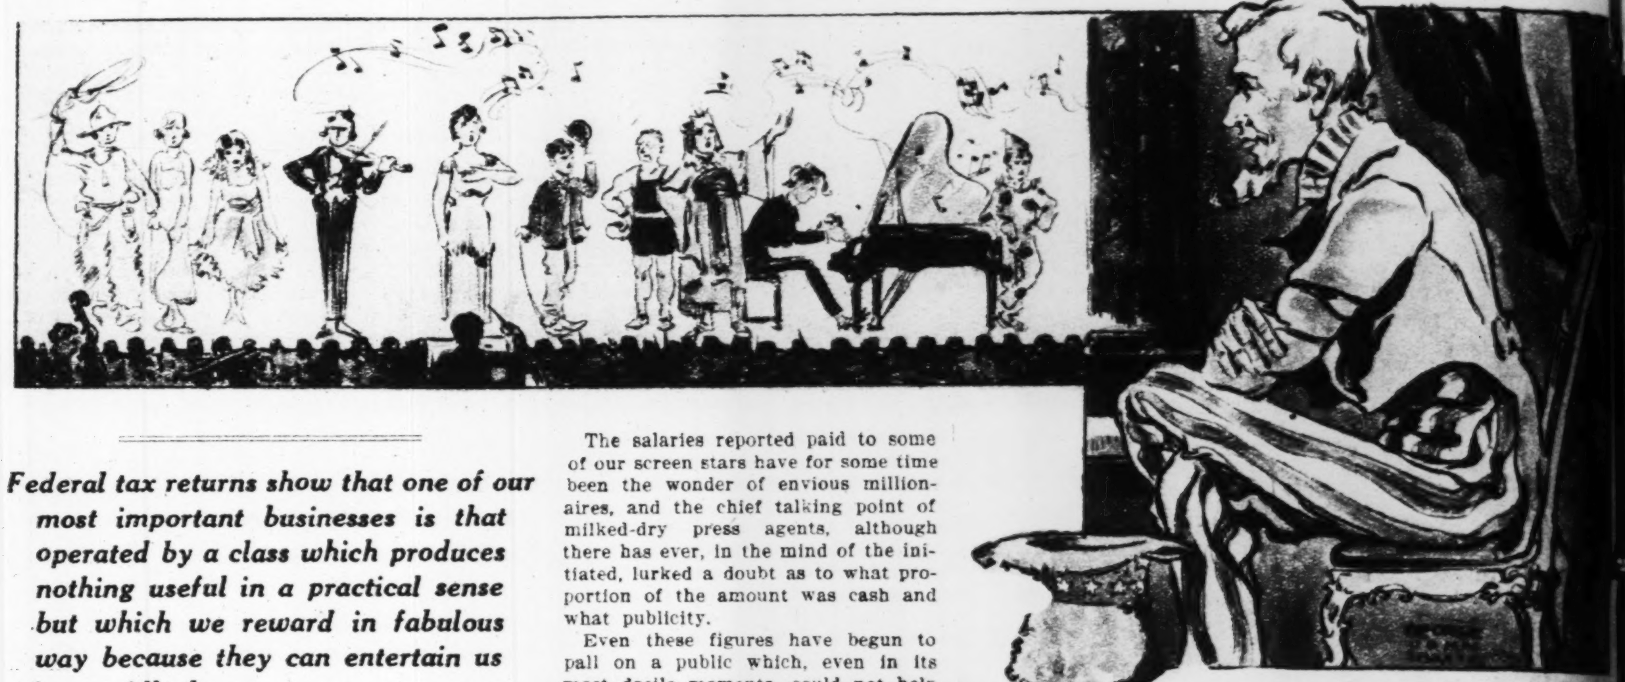
But again the pendulum was to swing. Von Uhde, like his predecessor, Millais, lived to hear himself acclaimed the greatest German painter of the century, and to see his canvases, from their places on the walls of the greatest galleries in the empire, excite alike the admiration and the veneration of his critics.

For the public, never learning or profiting by its mistakes, is ever ready to forget its own injustices, and to forgive those who have suffered from them.



Von Uhde's great canvas, "Come, Lord Jesus, and Be Our Guest," in which he depicted the characters in the garb of Bavarian peasants, was severely censured for its "irreverence."

Over a Billion a Year Just to Be Amused!



Federal tax returns show that one of our most important businesses is that operated by a class which produces nothing useful in a practical sense but which we reward in fabulous way because they can entertain us in our idle hours :: :: ::

"LET the show go on! Give us our money's worth! Bring on the bob-tailed lion from Abyssinia and the bucking broncho from Dead Man's Ranch!" clamored Bill Nye's typical American circus crowd 25 years ago. Today the crowd is far larger and less exacting.

"Amuse us," it cries. "Give us our fun—and bring the bill around later. It's worth whatever it costs!"

Since the strolling minstrel framed his lay for the edification of the Lord of the castle, receiving, in return, a trencher of cold venison, a mug of ale and a place on the stone flags in the corner for the night, the business of furnishing entertainment has never reached such gigantic proportions as it now enjoys in this country. It really has become one of the most important in the land.

Not even the glorious ancients, with their Olympic games and their Coliseum sports, approached, in attendance and money paid in, the present magnitude of our divertisements. Discussion of the fact is stimulated by the recent death of Caruso, and accompanying stories of the fabulous sums earned by him.

The great tenor last year paid about $165,000 in incomes taxes. Those versed in income tax matters say that this, normally, would indicate an income—in this country—of about $350,000 for the year, though some estimates, by his close friends, have put it as high as $500,000.

Consider, however, that this required not only possession of an unparalleled natural gift, but a life of study under great masters, a constant guard over that priceless voice, and the enormous strain and exertion of the singing itself. For this—$350,000 to $500,000 in a year. Contrast the case of Mr. William Harrison Dempsey of Salt Lake City and M. Georges Carpentier of Lens, France, who recently received a total of $500,000 for less than 11 minutes of actual performance at Jersey City.

In the latter instance, we probably have the most pronounced example of the tendency to which reference was made in the opening paragraphs of this account. Some 90,000 persons paid a total of $1,623,380 to witness a spectacle which lasted, from the signal which brought the pugilists from their corners, to the count of 10, 13 minutes and 16 seconds, during 10 minutes and 16 seconds of which the main performers were in action proper.

Of this amount, the more distinguished of the entertainers, that is to say, Mr. Dempsey, received $300,000, and the lesser attraction, M. Carpentier, got $200,000. The remainder, deducting expenses, went to Mr. "Tex" Rickard, undoubtedly as a reward for his faith in the American capacity for being amused in the herd at a stiff price per head.

Certainly it is pointed out that neither of these gentlemen can appear again in the public practice of their art for a considerable length of time; M. Carpentier finding it necessary to spend a few months recovering from a fracture of the right metacarpal, while Mr. Dempsey faces a period of idleness due, perhaps, to an aversion on the part of the male population to permanent disfigurement or the offices of the Coroner.

The government at Washington, however, looks upon the fact that they met even once as a fortunate circumstance because it not only profited by the usual 10 per cent tax that it extracts from all amusement admissions, but also realized a handsome sum from the large purses allotted to the combatants under the income tax, exacted before the purses were distributed.

The salaries reported paid to some of our screen stars have for some time been the wonder of envious millionaires, and the chief talking point of milked-dry press agents, although there has ever, in the mind of the initiated, lurked a doubt as to what proportion of the amount was cash and what publicity.

Even these figures have begun to pall on a public which, even in its most docile moments, could not help sometimes marveling at the 30-cent brand of acting put out by (reputed) $1,000,000 stars. As now recalled, the last public announcement of the financial reward paid to Charlie Chaplin for his possession of unusually large and awkward feet and an astounding vacuity of facial expression, was $600,000 a year. Some time previous to that it had been said that Gladys Smith had arrived at the annual mark of $1,000,000. Miss Smith, now Mrs. Fairbanks, entertains, it will be recalled, under the name of Mary Pickford.

These, of course, are but a few of the major examples of inordinate sums paid for scattering and infrequent exhibitions to gratify the current passion for diversion. Individually the amounts are trifling when compared with the sum total expended for purposes whose sole element is that of amusement. The aggregate amount paid by the American people to that class of persons whose sole function in life is to amuse, who produce nothing useful, and who perform no service whatever regarded as essential to the peace and prosperity of the state, passes human imagination. Only a vague wonder at its vastness may be induced by an examination of the toll which the Government levies upon it in the shape of amusement taxes.

In the three years up to June 30, 1921, the end of the Government's last fiscal year, the tax of 1 cent on each 10 cents (or part thereof) of admission fees to theatrical performances, movies, concerts, cabarets, baseball games, prize fights and other entertainments brought to the Treasury, in round figures, $217,000,000.

This was exclusive of the special tax on theaters, museums, circuses, etc., paid by the proprietors, which amounted in the same period to $4,800,000.

Proprietors of bowling alleys, billiard and pool tables contributed an additional $6,210,000.

Shooting galleries and riding academies turned in about $100,000.

The above items foot up to a total of $227,210,000.

In addition, a substantial portion of the tax on the dues of clubs (athletic, social and sporting), which amounted in the three years to about $15,500,000; of the tax on automobiles for hire, $4,000,000, and of the tax on yachts, pleasure boats, power boats, etc., $1,500,000, must be figured in as part of the price paid by the American people to Uncle Sam for their amusements.

There are yet to be added the excise taxes on sporting goods (which in the fiscal year 1921 yielded over $4,000,000), on hunting knives, liveries and livery boots, hunting garments, motion picture films leased (amounting in the fiscal year 1921 to about $5,800,000) and other appurtenances of amusements and sports.

Stopping at this point, the total tax bill on account of pleasure, indoors and out, ran in the three years well over a quarter of a billion dollars. This leaves out of consideration the private outdoor amusement enterprise of many a family—the motor car. Just how much of the more than $300,000,000 paid into the Treasury in the last three years of taxes on automobiles, motor cycles and accessories should be charged to the amusement account is, of course, purely speculative. Fifty million dollars looks like a conservative guess. Add that to the total of $250,000,000 previously arrived at and you have a total tax of certainly not less than $300,000,000.

In other words, at a conservative estimate, the tax on sports and amusements in the United States has averaged about $100,000,000 a year for the last three years.

The largest single item in this bill is the tax on admissions to theaters, the movies, baseball games, etc. The sheets turned in to the Internal Revenue Bureau by collectors over the country do not subdivide the item into receipts from movies, baseball, etc., but show only the total. This has grown from year to year.

For the 12 months ended June 30, 1919, the admissions tax yields $50,919,608. The revenue increased the next year to $76,720,555.

For the first 11 months of the fiscal year ended June 30, 1921 (exact figures for the month of June not yet being available) the yield was $82,363,318, or substantially more than for either of the full years preceding.

Assuming that the yield for June was the same as that for May, the total for the year was more than $89,000,000.

The increase in the total yield from the admissions tax since 1919, and similar increases in other lines of the sports category, indicate a steady growth in the business of providing public entertainment. If the figures for the last fiscal year only were taken, it would be seen that total taxes on account of sports and amusements are now running far ahead of the $100,000,000 which has been estimated as the three-year average. The total probably is not less than $125,000,000 yearly, indicating that America is paying fully a billion and a quarter dollars for its entertainment.

They would have named the town "Cy" in a minute if they had thought it would please him. He gave a poultry show on his farm there last year, and 60,000 persons, including most of the ablebodied in Mower County, were present.

On the recent Fourth of July the people of Austin and Leroy joined in a three-day celebration at his Oakdale farm, near Austin, and it was estimated that more than 50,000 attended. A public swimming pool—Thomson's latest gift—was thrown open. He recited some of the changes he proposed, and the crowd went wild. Was there ever such a man as Cy? they asked.

And now you have before you the state of affairs that existed when, like a blast from heaven, came the announcement that the Hormel company was short in its accounts and that "Cy" Thomson, the public benefactor extraordinary of two towns, had admitted guilt.

How had he done it? As in Spurgin's case, it was ridiculously simple. The Hormel company had accounts in many banks. Thomson was the only man who knew at all times what the amount of these deposits were. He merely appropriated the company's funds, and made, on the company's books, entries showing that he had deposited the money to account.

As a result, while the books, properly crediting the amounts received, showed that the company had hundreds of thousand on deposit, there actually was only a few thousands. And it might have gone on endlessly had it not been that one of the Hormels happened to have occasion to look up a $5000 check that had been received. When he inquired at the bank where the books showed it to have been deposited, he found that it had never gone there. The disclosure followed.

Which shows that business, after all, can protect itself only up to a certain point. And that point is the place where it has to start trusting somebody. And you never can tell.

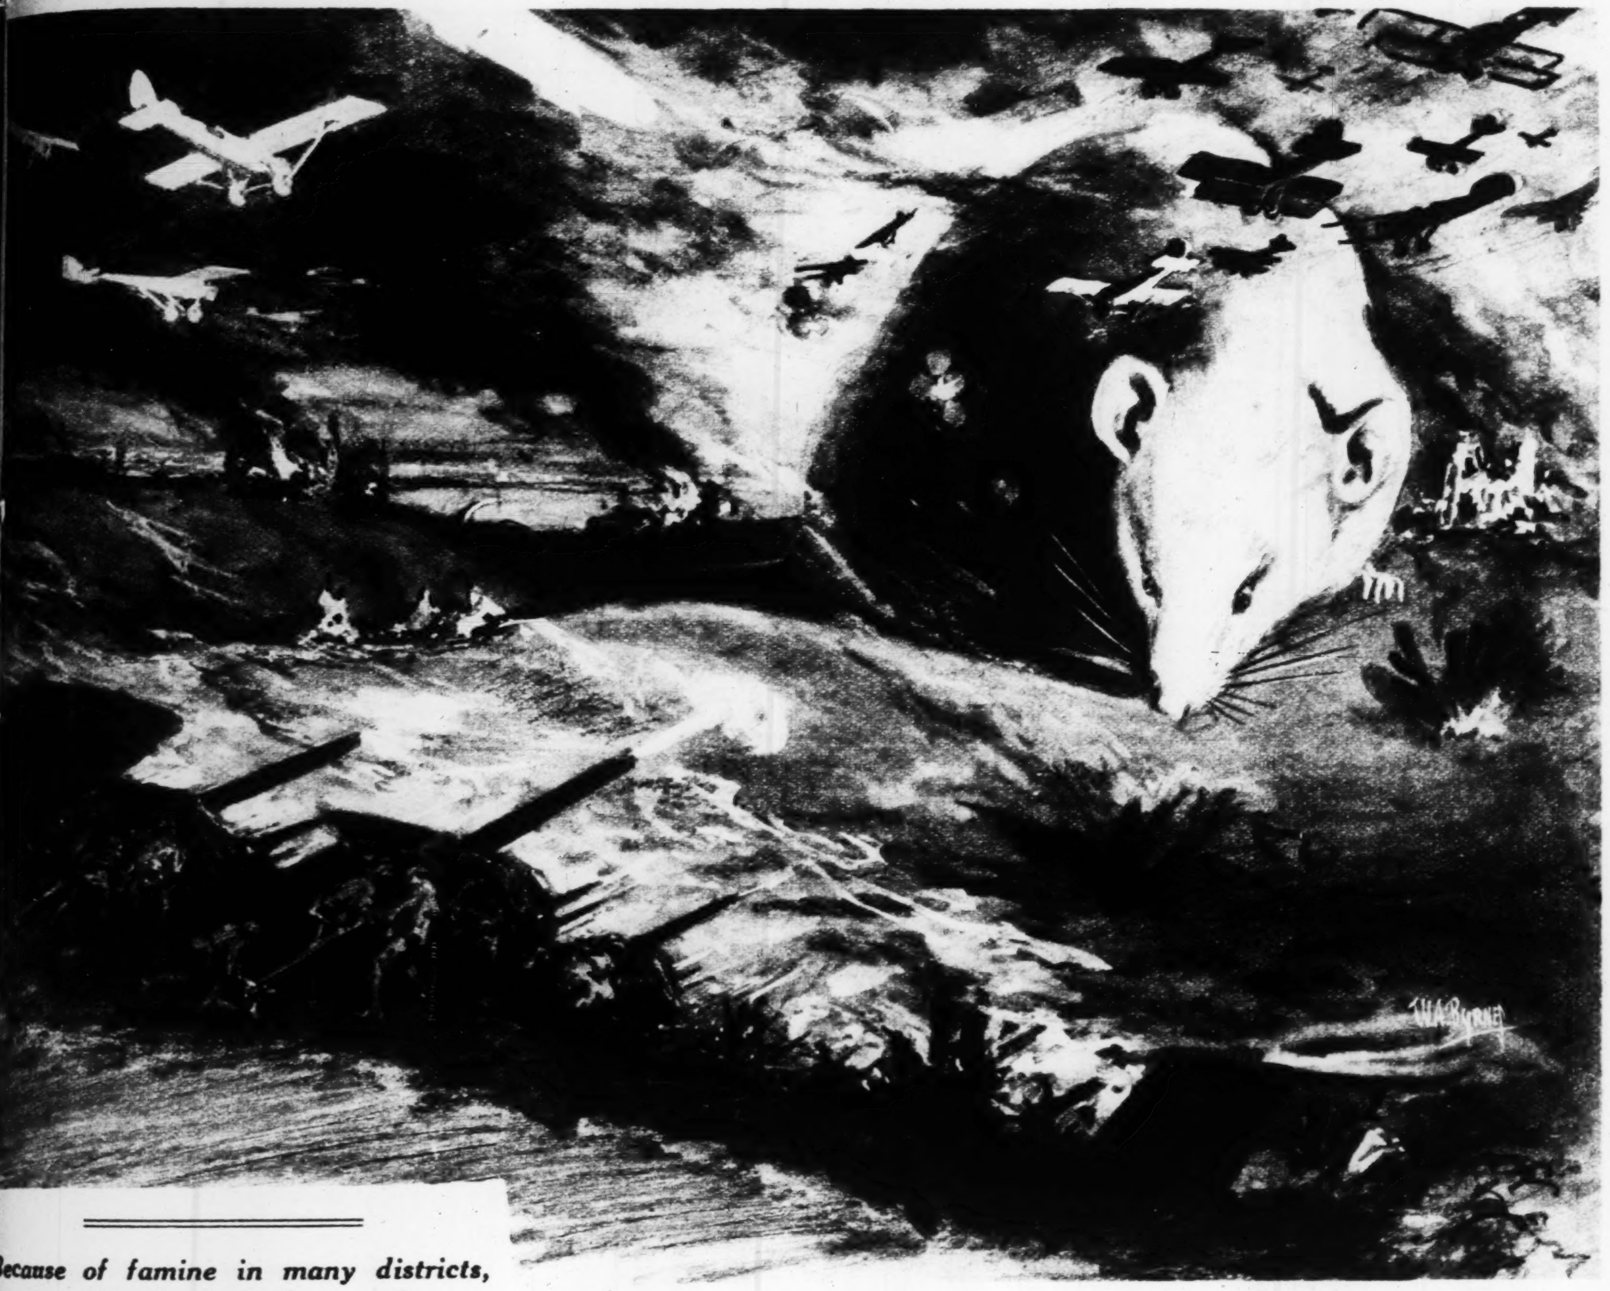
Europe Getting Ready for Another War This Time Against the Rat



Because of famine in many districts, great migrations of these rodents are threatened, and nations will protect themselves against invaders from regions where plague, cholera, typhus and other diseases are raging — Something about the enormous toll which the animal takes in food stuffs, property destruction and even human life—Means which are being used to exterminate him

EUROPE'S present menace is the rat. Small among the other mammals, furtive and in his life habits a sneaking parasite, the rat just now is an object of careful study by the Governments of several nations. War, a war to the death, is to be declared upon him.

Always and everywhere a pest, conditions in Europe now are making him a real menace there. With famine prevailing in several large areas of Europe, and with what appears to be a serious outbreak of plague and cholera in Russia, besides typhus and other diseases still afflicting other regions, the possibility of rat migrations in Europe is one to be dreaded.

So various European countries are arming themselves for yet another war, this time against the rat.

How to exterminate him (a difficult task), or at least to check his increase and prevent the threatened migrations, is a big, vexatious problem. And it affects everybody, to an extent which few other problems do.

In Parliament recently a question was asked as to what steps the Government was taking to exclude an impending migration of rats from the continent. British health authorities are determined to keep their little isle as free as possible from such visitors.

Officials of France, also, are making plans to save their war-torn land from the fresh miseries of an invasion by rodents. Last year, Paris waged a merciless war against them.

In our own country, the discovery of bubonic plague cases in several Southern ports last year caused energetic rat campaigns to be carried on there, the Federal, state and municipal authorities co-operating, and afterwards similar work was done in large Eastern cities. The United States Public Health Service feels a deep interest in the matter, and has prepared valuable instructions on anti-rat warfare.

At the Wistar Institute, Philadelphia, where the rat and his ways have been studied for years, they are building a $30,000 addition in the form of a wing, which will be a "home" for rats. There the rat will receive more than the courtesies usually extended to prisoners of war. Facilities for exercise will include ladders for climbing, modified trapezes, a running space, treadmill cages and gnawing apparatus.

There will also be a hospital for ailing rats, with specialists and nurses ready to attend them, and even an isolation ward. Dr. Milton H. Greenman, director, says that, contrary to general belief, the rat really prefers sunlight and good air, and only lives a "slum" life in holes and dark places and eats garbage because of necessity. Hence the new "home" will have plenty of air and sunlight. It is hoped that this intensive study of the rat will produce results of far-reaching benefit to mankind.

The rat lives by theft, and it is the theft of grain and other food used by man and his domestic animals. When the food supply in a locality fails, the rat moves to another one. He is much more of a traveler than people generally suppose, not only aboard ship (which might be called an involuntary kind of voyaging), but even in cities, where the food supply is all too plentiful, as shown during the rat-killing campaigns of Federal and municipal officials in several American cities.

Rats which had been caught, marked and then released, were found within a few days several miles from the point of release. Even with plenty of food, this animal likes to move about.

The rat's record for destruction of food materials is bad enough, in a world where so many millions of people in China, Russia and Central Europe must go hungry, and some day this animal is certain of being attended to very thoroughly, on economic grounds alone. But it is mainly his deadly work as a disease carrier which is causing him to engage the attention of governmental officials just now.

Once regarded as a filthy animal which nevertheless had his uses as a scavenger, enlightened countries today would gladly exterminate him. That he spreads the plague, by means of fleas which get the disease from plague-stricken rats and then transmit it to human beings, has been proven beyond any doubt.

The carrying of cholera has not been proven on the rat, some experts expressing the opinion that a rat having that disease probably would die before he had a chance to spread it among people. But he has been suspected of transmitting still other diseases.

Dr. S. B. Grubbs, surgeon in the United States Public Health Service, in a recent address before a medical society, declared that while rat leprosy, infective jaundice and rat-bite fever might be largely of academic interest, bubonic plague was an everyday danger.

Bubonic pleague, Dr. Grubbs reminded his hearers, is not entirely a Europeon nor an Asiatic problem, but has come to the Western Hemisphere several times in recent years. It appeared in San Francisco in 1900, and at two places in Mexico in 1902. Ten years later it reached Porto Rico, probably from the Canary Islands, and shortly afterwards appeared in Havana and New Orleans.

Last year cases of the plague were found in several ports of the United States, including Pensacola, Fla., and Galveston and Beaumont, Tex.

The news reports of last year also told of more seri-

The Avenger

By
CHARLES WESLEY SANDER

THE man at work on the ship's side looked down; the man who had just come around the corner of the building looked up. The meeting had taken place.

The man on the dock was aware of this the moment he looked into the other's eyes; the man at work on the boat had no more fear of this stranger than he had of any other stranger who came upon him suddenly. Therefore he went back to his work with no more trepidation than he had displayed a hundred times at similar meetings.

Murray, the man on the dock, could have laughed. It was too absurd, the way things happened. Here he had traveled far and near, seeking his man, and he had failed. Now he had come upon him in this obscure lake port, tinkering at the side of a battered old freighter.

He was sure he was not mistaken. This man tallied exactly with the description Dixon had given the day after the sinking of the Fairhaven—the day after the night the Fairhaven had stood out to sea with no lights showing and had not come back. This man had the same stoop to his shoulders, the same long arms, the same rat-colored hair, the same dry mustache, the same furtive blue eyes. The furtiveness was marked, as Dixon had said it was marked. The man had flashed a look at Murray just now, and then had gone on with his work as if he had not glanced.

This man was a ship's carpenter, as the other had been, and he was not an especially clever ship's carpenter. He was putting a short timber forward in the old boat. He had driven the long, black spikes through the front end, but now when he came to drive them into the other end that end would not fit. He was fussily and slowly chipping away the hard wood. Presently he forced the timber into its place and drove the spikes home. Then he glanced over his shoulder at a man who was cooking hash in the lee of a ship supply company's building.

"That hash ready?" he called.

"All ready," the man with the spider in his hand replied.

The carpenter clambered up to the dock. Murray followed him over to the cook. An appetizing odor rose from the mess in the spider. The cook, a lean young fellow of 20, with clear, happy blue eyes, regarded the stranger with an invitation in those eyes.

"Hungry?" he asked.

Murray had just dined plentifully, but he simulated hunger.

"Dip in," said the cook, and handed him a spoon and a tin dish.

Murray helped himself, without a word from the third man.

"Mighty good," he said, when he had finished a second helping.

The carpenter, still not having spoken, went back to his work. The young man rolled a cigarette and handed his tobacco to Murray.

"Workin'?" Murray asked.

"No; not yet. I'll be sailing as soon as this doggoned ice gets out of the lake."

He cast his pleasant glance out beyond the breakwater, where the ice still showed in white masses. Though it was late in March, little of the ice had gone out. The river, however, was free of it. The fish tugs were being overhauled and one towing tug was helping another downstream to their respective docks.

"It'll not be long," the young man added. "She's breaking up. You a sailor?"

For a moment Murray did not answer. He was watching the carpenter. The young man studied the profile which he presented. It was a good profile, with a thin, long nose, tightly closed lips, and an eye that looked out from a mesh of wrinkles.

"I haven't sailed for several years," Murray said. "I used to sail on salt water. I never been on the lakes and I thought I'd take a look around. Who's your sulky friend out there?"

The young man regarded the carpenter with a smile.

"He's a queer louse," he said. "Got a perpetual grouch about something. Always thinks he's getting the worst of it. I don't know him. Just been cooking his hash for him last few days."

"You're up against it?"

"Oh, I'll get along as soon as navigation opens up."

"Bunking with the carpenter?"

"Yeh."

"Come up to the hotel and I'll buy a drink," Murray said, rising from the timber on which he had been sitting.

The young man sprang up.

"Hey, Carter," he called to the carpenter, "we're going to the hotel to licker up! Sorry for you!"

Murray saw the man's hands twitch and his mouth work.

"There's the boy that fights the booze," the young man said as they climbed the hill. "Hot rum! He loves it! 'Most had the D. T.'s one night."

Murray wanted no further testimony. Dixon, dying that day three years ago, had called his man a "rum-guzzling coward." Because he was dying, Dixon's language had been mild.

"If he's drinking rum and looks as if he was afraid of his shadow, that'll be him," Dixon had said.

On the first floor of the sailors' hotel there was a dining room and in front of that a barroom, and adjoining the barroom a lounging room. In the latter there was one long table and two dozen dilapidated chairs. Kid Rollins, the young man of the cheery blue eyes, sat in one of the chairs, with his head on the table, sound asleep. Murray's liberality had known no limit, and the Kid had practiced self-denial for many a day.

Murray came out of the barroom perfectly sober, and going up to the Kid shook him by the shoulder. The Kid woke up as easily and slowly as a baby.

"I fell asleep," he said. "He come in yet?"

"He's in the barroom now, taking his first drink of rum," Murray answered.

The Kid got to his feet with a hand on the table.

"I got kind of drunk kind of quick," he said, with his cheerful smile.

They went into the barroom and the Kid hailed Carter. Carter nodded, his eyes still furtive. The Kid introduced Murray as a "friend o' mine." Murray bought three drinks, Carter taking hot rum each time.

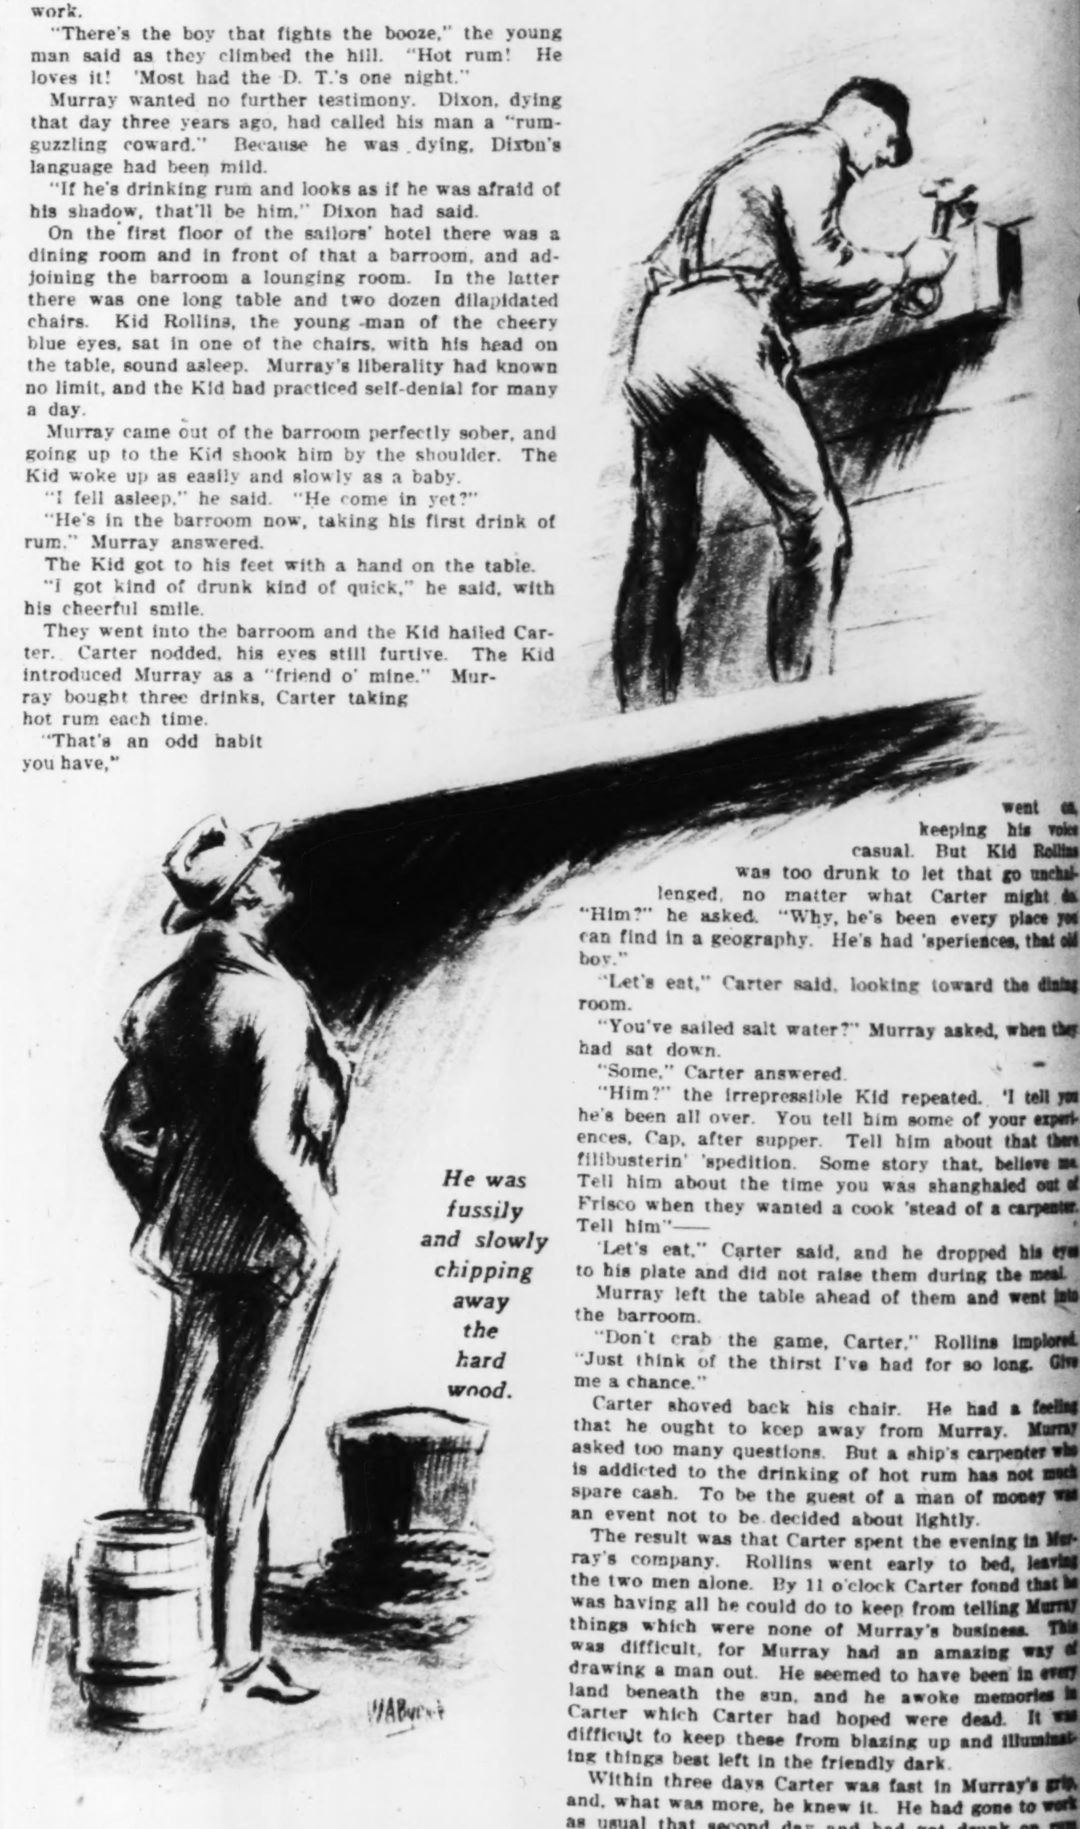
"That's an odd habit you have," Murray said. "Where'd you get it?" Carter started, as if the apparently innocent question had something back of it.

"Oh, I don't know," he mumbled.

"West Indies, maybe?"

"Oh, I don't know."

"Or maybe you've always sailed the lakes," Murray went on, keeping his voice casual. But Kid Rollins was too drunk to let that go unchallenged, no matter what Carter might do.



He was fussily and slowly chipping away the hard wood.

"Him?" he asked. "Why, he's been every place you can find in a geography. He's had 'speriences, that old boy."

"Let's eat," Carter said, looking toward the dining room.

"You've sailed salt water?" Murray asked, when they had sat down.

"Some," Carter answered.

"Him?" the irrepressible Kid repeated. 'I tell you he's been all over. You tell him some of your experiences, Cap, after supper. Tell him about that there filibusterin' 'spedition. Some story that, believe me. Tell him about the time you was shanghaied out of Frisco when they wanted a cook 'stead of a carpenter. Tell him"——

'Let's eat," Carter said, and he dropped his eyes to his plate and did not raise them during the meal.

Murray left the table ahead of them and went into the barroom.

"Don't crab the game, Carter," Rollins implored. "Just think of the thirst I've had for so long. Give me a chance."

Carter shoved back his chair. He had a feeling that he ought to keep away from Murray. Murray asked too many questions. But a ship's carpenter who is addicted to the drinking of hot rum has not much spare cash. To be the guest of a man of money was an event not to be decided about lightly.

The result was that Carter spent the evening in Murray's company. Rollins went early to bed, leaving the two men alone. By 11 o'clock Carter found that he was having all he could do to keep from telling Murray things which were none of Murray's business. This was difficult, for Murray had an amazing way of drawing a man out. He seemed to have been in every land beneath the sun, and he awoke memories in Carter which Carter had hoped were dead. It was difficult to keep these from blazing up and illuminating things best left in the friendly dark.

Within three days Carter was fast in Murray's grip, and, what was more, he knew it. He had gone to work as usual that second day and had got drunk on rum the second night. The third day, a day of March wind and rain, he did not go to work. He was saturated with rum by now, and ship's carpentering held no interest for him. Murray's stock of money still held, and Carter could sit with a glass of rum at his elbow hour after hour, listening to what Murray had to say.

Murray had talked unceasingly, telling vivid, flam-

buoyant stories of many men and many lands. Carter had essayed to match him once or twice. Murray listened to the first two or three sentences and then he broke in with a narrative of his own. It was exasperating to the furtive man because he knew that he had knocked about as much as Murray had; and he had had experiences which would pale most of Murray's. But he had to hold his tongue, lest he go too far.

Kid Rollins, however, was a prodding voice in the silence that Carter was trying to keep.

"Why don't you tell him some of your 'speriences?" Rollins insisted. "Gawd, you've had 'em."

Carter would have a moment of hesitation, and then the voice of Murray would go smoothly on. Carter would fidget in his chair, but he would listen, as he had been listening hour by hour.

The drinks which Murray took seemed only to loosen his tongue. He showed no other signs that the alcohol was in his brain. It was amazing, even to a seasoned drinker like Carter, what he could get away with. Once or twice, going to meals, Carter had been unsteady, while Rollins weaved back and forth waiting for someone else to lead the way to the dining room; but Murray sailed directly for the door, possibly rising a little on the swell, but no more.

On the third night they had been to supper and had come back to the barroom to resume their drinking. The continued excesses were particularly noticeable on Carter and Rollins now. Rollins was sleepily drunk. The prognosis in his case was easy. But Carter was exhilarated beyond the safety point. His eyes had lost some of their furtiveness. He was even able to look Murray in the eye with a kind of defiance.

Murray lit his pipe, gave a cigar to Carter, and began to talk. Rollins failed in his attempt to roll a cigarette and slumped down into his chair.

"Say," he said, as Murray presently paused to refill his pipe, "why don't you tell us a story, Carter? You was tellin' them to me when I was your buddy. Ain't I your buddy no more?"

He half rose and attempted to put his arm across Carter's shoulder. Carter shook him away, and he sank into his seat again.

"Why don't you tell us a story?" Murray asked, and Carter heard something in his voice which had not been there before, something pregnant with menace.

He looked at the changed man and saw a sneer on the thin lips. Hot rum had weakened Carter's judgment, and the words of a story that would make Murray sit up rushed to his lips. But he choked them back and swallowed them. It was all right to tell Rollins fragments of the story of the fillibustering expedition, but he mustn't get started on it when he was in a temper, else he might tell the truth.

"I don't know any stories that would interest you," he said, and lifted his glass.

"I'll tell you a story about a fillibustering experience," Murray said, gulping his whisky. "It's rather a curious story. Boat started for South America and never came back. Only two men ever reached shore."

He stopped abruptly. Carter made a noise in swallowing and put down his glass suddenly. He did not look at Murray. Outside the March wind was at its worst and it shook the old hotel.

"When my own mother died, my father married a South American woman—native of one of those turbulent little countries, Carter," Murray went on. "They had one child—my half-brother, of course. I was four years older than him, but we came to be pals. When I was 19 and he was 15 we ran away to sea. Father had sailed all over in his time, and it was in the blood. My brother was a big, dark fellow, and he easily passed for my age. We knocked about for a year. One day in London he said, 'Let's sail for God's country.' 'Where's that?' said I. 'Why, where my mother was born,' he said.

"His mother was a well-educated woman, and she had told us stories about her country and its people—how they were always having exciting revolutions down there. So I fell in with my brother's scheme. We landed at one of the seaports within a month or so. As soon as we left the boat we stepped into trouble. It was just beginning—it hadn't come to a head yet—but street brawls between the factions were constant. One began under our noses. My brother thought he had to take sides. When he got out of the fight he had a knife gash clear across his chin. He always carried a scar after that."

Murray paused, his hard eyes on Carter's face. Carter made as if to lift his glass, but his hand trembled so that he put the glass back on the table.

"We were in the midst of the revolution as soon as it broke," Murray went on. "As soon as the revolutionists learned who my brother's mother had been he was accepted as a trusted leader. He was in the thick of the rebel councils, and he dragged me in with him.

"Of course, the first thing they needed was arms and ammunition. There was only one way to get those—to bring them from the States. They raised the money to purchase them and to charter a boat. Because of my brother's familiarity with this country he was chosen to head the expedition. He took a few men with him, and we worked our way back to the States. We found when we reached home that my brother's mother had died, and that the shock had aged my father before his time. We talked it over—my brother and I—and we decided that he should go on with the expedition and I should remain with my father.

"My brother had a little difficulty in getting his arms and ammunition, as well as his boat. The Government of his country had somehow got wind of what was going on. Spies were dogging my brother's footsteps all the time. It took a good deal of ingenuity on his part to dodge them. But he at length got his boat loaded and down the coast and ready to leave. I went to see him off. We had dinner together and I bade him good-by. He thought it best that I shouldn't come to the wharf where the boat was moored, because he had to get there by a roundabout way.

"Well, the boat put out with no lights showing. But she never saw her port. Days afterward they found her at the bottom, five miles out. My brother and the crew were drowned—except two men—two men, Carter."

He paused again and filled his glass from the bottle at his side.

"Have some more rum," he told his chief listener.

The bottle clinked against the side of the glass when Carter poured his drink.

"It was not till next morning that word reached me," Murray resumed. "Then a man named Dixon—the second of the survivors—sent for me. From him I learned the story. The boat had gone but a short distance when she began to settle. Water rushed in fore and aft in such volume that it seemed a hopeless task to attempt to save her. But there was more than the mere loss of a ship at stake, and my brother and the crew set to work. My brother presently came running on deck.

" 'Why, she's been bored full of holes,' he screamed. 'Somebody's betrayed us.'

"She settled rapidly. My brother and the crew were tearing around like wild men.

" 'Where's that carpenter?' my brother screamed again in that awful voice.

"Just then the carpenter appeared from below. He had on a life preserver and he started to go over the rail.

" 'Stop him!' my brother ordered.

"The carpenter turned. He had a revolver in each hand.

" 'I'll shoot any man that moves,' he said.

"My brother laughed—a wicked laugh, Carter—and sprang at the carpenter. The latter shot him through the heart. Then menacing the rest of the crew with his revolvers, he went over the side. Dixon felt the boat going down beneath him. When he got out of the roar of water there was nothing in sight. Boat and crew were gone. A cask floated near Dixon and he threw his arm over it. They picked him up on the beach the next morning. He had been hurt about the head and internally, and he died soon after he had told me his story.

"So only one man really survived. And that was the ship's carpenter. He had sold out to the Government and had sent the ship to the bottom with all her crew."

"Didn't they never get him?" Rollins asked.

"Not yet."

Rollins cursed him violently.

"I'd bat him over the head myself if I got a chance," he said. "I'm going to bed."

He rose and lurched across the room to the stairway.

Murray waited till he was gone from earshot. Then he hissed one word:

"Scared!"

Carter tried not to look at the strained white face which was bending toward him—tried not to look at the hot blue eyes. But he failed. They drew him to them. He lifted his own face, now grown gray. He shuddered as he met the other man's eyes.

"Ah!" said Murray, drawing a deep breath.

Carter's glance wavered and fell.

"I'm going to bed," he whispered.

He rose weakly and got to the stairway. There he turned and looked back. The menacing eyes were still fixed on him. Slowly he mounted the stairs.

Three times before midnight Carter went to the head of the stairs and peered down. His grip was packed. He was ready for flight. But Murray was still in the same position at the table. The bottle was beside him, but at no time while Carter looked did Murray touch it. Ah, he was waiting.

The clock below stairs had just struck the midnight hour. Now holding his breath and now taking it in deep gasps, Carter was sitting in the darkness. He looked at the window, but he knew there was no fire escape and that he was three stories from the ground. There was a rap from hard knuckles. Carter rose and went to the door.

"I hear you," said Murray's voice. "Open the door."

Carter only leaned and listened.

"I'll break it in," Murray said. "I can do it."

Still Carter was motionless save for the convulsions of his chest. He heard Murray put his shoulder to the door. The lock held for a moment and then it gave way, the screws being pushed from the rotten wood. Murray slipped into the room and closed the door. Carter backed against the wall, feeling for a match.

"Don't strike a light," Murray said. "I want to tell you something and then I'll leave."

"Are you going to kill me?" Carter demanded, his voice tremulous.

"Why, certainly," Murray said. "What did you think?"

Carter collapsed into a chair.

"But I don't know that I shall do it tonight," Murray said. His tone grew judicial. "I've found you. There's no hurry. I'll kill you—of course, I'll kill you sometime—before long. But maybe not tonight. Got anything to say?"

"About what?"

Europe Getting Ready for War Against the Rat

ous epidemics of bubonic plague at Vera Cruz and Tampico, Mexico, but there, as in the United States ports, prompt isolation of the patients, disinfection measures and rat-killing campaigns quickly ended the trouble. This year, cases of the plague have been reported in Mexico and Argentina, as well as in Egypt, while thousands died from it in China.

Dr. Grubbs told the medical society that, according to the best estimate, this country now has one rat for every city dweller and 10 rats for every country dweller, and that the food of each rat costs approximately 1-2 cent a day, or $1.83 a year.

Another interesting statement by Dr. Grubbs was about the prolific nature of rats. Starting at the age of two months, he said, there are eight to 10 families a year, each consisting of from eight to 12 young.

He declared that it was upon the restriction of food accessible to rats, and the restriction of nesting places that efficient and economical measures against the race of rodents must be based. He also said the chief value of rat catching is to locate rat infection in advance of human cases, since in cases of plague, for example, the rat has the disease first, then the flea which lives upon him and then the human who is bitten by the flea.

By dissection, the presence of disease in a rat is easily ascertained, and should be the signal for the absolute extermination of all such animals on the premises where the sick one was caught, while the people living there should be put under a close surveillance or even quarantined if the authorities think best, until sufficient time for the disease to manifest itself has elapsed. The authorities should pull down as much of a building as is necessary in the work of "ratproofing" it, or order it torn down entirely.

These were the stringent measures employed at New Orleans and approved by experts generally. The visitation of the plague there, as in other American ports, was brief. But its reappearance in New Orleans after the 18-month period from April, 1917, to October, 1919, during which 50,000 rats were killed and examined without finding an infected one, should make authorities slow about declaring the infection definitely eradicated, Dr. Grubbs said. He advocated that in places once infected, rat control and surveys in some form should continue indefinitely.

One is reminded of the "Pied Piper of Hamelin" and similar functionaries of the Middle Ages by the proposition recently put forth by Dr. C. Y. White, director of the Laboratory of Hygiene, Philadelphia, who suggested a small permanent force of municipal rat catchers as a good way to cope with the situation. He said a community the size of Philadelphia could hardly hope to rid itself of rats entirely. But it is important, he said, for the city to know the condition of its rat population and this can be done by means of surveys.

In Dr. White's opinion, a force consisting of three or four rat catchers and an inspector could accomplish much in a year with the rat population in a place the size of Philadelphia. If they found an infected rat, then the corps could be enlarged and an attempt made to rid the city thoroughly of its rodents.

A recent extensive rat survey in the South cost from $1 to $1.30 a rat. In the smaller campaign in Philadelphia last fall they were able to catch a rat and dissect it for about 30 cents. The weight of opinion there was that it was far better to keep the rats out rather than to get them out after they came in.

Dr. M. C. Woodruff, chief diagnostician of the St. Louis Health Department, said he was heartily in favor of an anti-rat campaign here, as an economic measure.

"The annual board bill of the rats runs to enormous figures," declared Dr. Woodruff. "Besides what they eat, they destroy three or four times as much more. A year or two ago we decided to inaugurate a rat campaign in St. Louis and called a meeting to discuss plans for it. But only the Health Commissioner and myself attended the meeting, so we dropped the idea until there is more interest in it."

Incidentally, Dr. Woodruff said that the present plague in Russia is not of the bubonic but the pneumonic type, and very virulent, much more deadly than bubonic plague. In the pneumonic type the sufferers turn black from insufficient aeration of the blood and in reality die from suffocation. In bubonic plague, the lungs are not affected, only the glandular system of the body, characteristic lumps called "buboes" appearing in the region of the lymphatic glands nearest to the point at which the infection entered the body. Both kinds of plague are spread by the rat.

Students of the rat problem say it is sufficient for such purposes to recognize that health officers must deal with the gray, or burrowing rat, and the black, or climbing rat. Says one authority:

"All rats possess an intelligence that is uncanny, certain highly developed special senses and a strength and persistence which overcome many difficulties. Generally speaking, both kinds of rats are scattered all over the civilized globe, are intimately associated with man and feed upon everything that he produces as food for himself and his domestic animals."

The gray, or Norway rat (the burrower), is not nimble, but manages to board ships and travel to all ports. He kills for the love of killing, as well as for food, and fears no animal of his own size. He has a short tail, broad jaw and back, and is a heavily-built, muscular animal. He lives in burrows or near the ground, in or under a protecting structure.

The black rat is more slender, graceful and with a long tail. He can run well and climb fully. Being no match for the gray rat, he often in the walls and roofs of houses, or other which his enemy cannot go.

Experts declare that the spreading of disease the destruction of foodstuffs are not all the of which the rat is guilty. They say a large of damage is done by him while seeking food or gnawing apparently for the fun of it. Many a fire had been caused by rats, they say.

The experts even state that everyone who merchandise, except under exceptional circumst will find rat losses of some kind if he investi

"In short," as one investigator sums it up, should build out the rat."

During a rat campaign waged recently in a Eastern city, special attention was paid to in places where foodstuffs were stored or including food warehouses, animal abbatoirs, establishments, vegetable markets, meat markets, and oyster houses, groceries, bakeries, restaurants fertilizing plants. Such places, unless very managed, afford the rat a most bountiful ration favorable breeding places.

Some of the things which they found were as follows: Dirty floors, buildings with defective or foundations, broken wooden floors, unscreened ventilators; doors, windows and transoms left open night; doors and windows in poor repair; sidewalks; accessible vaults; defective plumbing; empty boxes, barrels and waste paper stored in cellars and vacant rooms.

Another important feature in rat control of any vicinity is the surrounding environment, according to the experience of these workers. Stables in a neighborhood, rickety buildings, carelessness in handling foods and in the disposal of waste matter, all assist the rat in his determined struggle for existence.

How Would You Solve This Case?

"How about Connell?" the chairman asked the prison Warden.

The Warden shook his head. "He refuses to say a word one way or the other."

The board, sorely puzzled, took the case under advisement. A week later they announced a decision. Luken's term had been commuted to 10 years. With good behavior, and that is certain, Lukens will be released in two years.

But because of the silence of Connell, the man who refuses to talk, the board could not grant the pardon which would have given Lukens his freedom immediately and restored him to the full rights of citizenship.

"A great injustice may have been done," commented the Pardon Board chairman. "Personally, I believe this may be the case. But only one man knows beyond a doubt. He refuses to talk. We have taken the only avenue open to us."

When he steps from the prison, once more a free man, Lukens says he will have only one regret. His father did not live to hear of the commutation of his son's sentence. He died two months ago, after fighting for five years for his boy.

"I can wipe from my memory the years of my sentence," said Lukens, "but I will never forget that my father died while I was still a lifer."

Lukens' father is said to have been wealthy. He spent much of his money in his son's behalf. Gov. Sproul of Pennsylvania was one of the men Lukens' father interested in his son's case. The Governor wrote to Gov. McKelvie of Nebraska urging the pardon.

But Lukens has one consolation. A gray-haired mother still lives in Germantown, Pa., and will be waiting for him to return when the prison doors swing open for him.

Strange Fates That Befell Dr. Stone and His Wife

chemistry, he studied at Goettingen University, Germany, where he received a degree of Ph. D. in 1888. He taught first at the Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station and later was a chemist at a similar station in Tennessee. He went to Purdue University in 1889 as professor of chemistry and in 1900 was made president of the institution.

It was in 1889 that Dr. Stone married his first wife, Victoria H., whom he had met while studying in Germany, and her arrival at Lafayette seemed to have opened for her husband an era of great happiness. She was a highly cultured woman. Just as Dr. Stone was known to scientists for his achievements in chemistry, so she became known to her little world for her brilliant education and literary attainments. She was admired for her social tact and was generally regarded as an ideal wife for a college president.

Most singular is the story of Mrs. Stone's fall under the spell of the mysterious Yoga cult. For years she had been reading theosophy and kindred subjects and was mildly interested in them. About that time Dr. George Moulton organized in Lafayette and the university settlement a class in Yoga philosophy. Many women and some men, in West Lafayette, the college town, joined the class and it became a fad with certain highly educated people. Moulton taught that the Yoga philosophy was the religion of the Indian Yogi, or soothsayers.

One of the leading features of this doctrine, as then explained, was "withdrawal," or separation, from kindred and friends. It was this feature that at last seized upon Mrs. Stone, as subsequent events showed.

The meetings of Dr. Moulton's class were held in several homes. Books on the subject were placed in the hands of Mrs. Stone and other members of the class, and their interest grew.

But the members of the class were warned not to make public any of the private and secret instructions on how to send telepathic messages, how to hypnotize, how to use the key of Karma Yoga and how to heal the sick. One of the injunctions in this respect was, "Do not become a laughing stock for your friends by telling them what you can do or how you can do it." It is said that Dr. Stone himself was slightly interested in the work of the class, but merely as a student and not as a convert.

But it was no emotional or impulsive action that caused Mrs. Stone to adopt the "withdrawal" feature of the cult and leave her family. Her determination was deliberate and she followed it after long contemplation, and, apparently, after having counted the full cost. About a year before her departure, in April, 1907, she announced to her husband that she was going to her old home in German Poland to visit her mother, who was old and feeble. Nothing was thought of this, nor, at first, of the length of her visit in Germany.

She had remained for six months on several previous visits, but presently, in letters to her husband, she finally made known her intention of never returning, saying that after due thought and consideration she had decided to continue her study of the Indian faith.

When Dr. Stone realized that his wife really had gone from him, he was crushed by his sorrow. He went before the board of the Presbyterian Church of which he was a member, and made public announcement that his wife had abandoned her family and her home.

"I can scarcely bear up under it," he said, "and I want your sympathy and prayers. I love my wife and would welcome her back. She is dear to me as ever and I am sorry for her. I hope that in a year or two she will come to her senses and return to me and my boys.

"I feel it my duty to tell you of her letter, but I wish to say for her that I believe she still respects me. I don't think she would say an unkind word of me. I hope that her mother love for her boys will triumph and lead her to undo a hasty act."

Tears were in the eyes of the deacons and elders who listened and they lost no time in extending to Dr. Stone a vote of faith and confidence. Dr. Stone also laid the facts before the trustees of Purdue University. The trustees realized what it meant to keep at the head of their institution a man whose wife had deserted him, but so unusual were the circumstances that the board voted unanimously to retain Dr. Stone as president.

For three years Dr. Stone waited, hoping that mother love for her sons would bring Mrs. Stone back, but no direct word came. After her "withdrawal" she spent some time in Germany pursuing her studies, but where she went from there, or even if she lives today, is not known. There was a rumor she had gone to an island in the Pacific Ocean and joined a colony of "sun worshipers." The members live on cocoanuts almost entirely and the clothing they wear is said to be of the variety and quality affected by the natives of the South Sea Islands. All attempts of Dr. Stone to get into communication with his wife were futile and after three years he obtained a divorce, deeming this the proper course to pursue.

A stanch friend and sympathizer through all his troubles was Miss Margaret Winter, who had come to Lafayette from Germany in 1902 and had made her home with the Stones, whose protegee she became. About seven years ago she and Dr. Stone were married, since which time she had always accompanied him on his summer outings and had participated with interest and pleasure in his undertakings, the last of which was so disastrous.

It seems a sinister stroke of fate that she who had known of his first deep sorrow and the unhappy cause thereof, and later had shared his responsibilities and triumphs as his wife, should have been an eyewitness to the sudden and violent close of his eventful and useful career.

THE AVENGER - -

"Oh, about anything. I don't care. Choose your own topic."

There was silence in the little bedroom. Then Carter had to take his breath to keep from smothering.

"Well, I sunk the ship," he confessed.

"And killed my brother and the rest of the crew?"

"Ah—they went down with the boat."

"You killed them?" The voice was relentless.

"Ah—yes, I killed them. The Government promised to pay me, but they never did. I been broke ever since. I been afraid."

"Afraid of what?"

Carter's teeth clicked.

"Afraid of this—afraid somebody would come after me."

Silence fell again. Carter could feel rather than see Murray sitting against the opposite wall, regarding him with those threatening eyes. Carter wanted to scream. His nerves were near the breaking point. At last he asked:

"Well, what're you going to do?"

Murray rose, his chair scraping on the floor. "I'm going to let you off tonight," he said. "I know you'll try to run away. But since I've found you I won't lose sight of you again. You'll run and you'll keep on running. The fear you've had won't be a circumstance to what you'll go through till I decide to land you once for all. I'll be near you when you think you've given me the slip. Just when you're beginning to hope you're safe I'll be at your elbow."

Carter heard him rise and cross the room.

"Keep away," he pleaded.

He could see Murray set himself now, every muscle in the lithe body drawn taut. Then Murray's bony fist crashed into his face. He went down in a heap. Murray laughed, recrossed the room and went out through the sagging door.

An hour afterward Carter gathered himself together and rose. Slipping to the head of the stairs, he saw that the barroom was empty. The night bartender was drowsing over the bar. Carter caught up his bag and stumbled down the stairs. He got by the bartender without rousing him. In the street he fairly ran toward the station.

"Ticket for Chicago," he told the agent. "When do I get a train?"

He was lucky. There was a train in 30 minutes. He slunk into the shadows and waited. The train whistled into the station. He ran across the platform. As he went up the steps of the train he looked back. Murray was standing on the platform, watching him with that awful expression in his hard eyes.

"He's after me," Carter breathed, as he sank into a seat in the smoker.

The train pulled out. Just before the station was lost to view Carter looked back. Murray was not in sight. Carter glanced behind him, but the coach door was closed.

"I wonder where he is?" Carter said to himself.

"Your friend has gone," Murray told Kid Rollins the next morning as he bought the Kid an "eye-opener."

"Where did he go?" Rollins asked. Murray did not answer.

Rollins gulped his whisky. He felt better. He raised his head and looked at Murray.

"Say," he said, "you've got something on that guy, haven't you? Are you after him? What're you going to do to him?"

"Keep him wandering," Murray said, harshly. "Keep him wandering till he thinks he has no place to lay his head. He knows I'm after him."

"Well, I guess you'll get him," said the Kid, soberly.

"I've got him now," Murray said. He picked up his bag. "Well, good-by, son. I'm off. See you again some time—maybe."

"Good-by," said the Kid, and he watched the tall form vanish through the door.

Murray walked up to the ticket agent in the station a few minutes later and tossed a $20 bill through the window.

"New York," he said, pleasantly. "New York—one way!"

The Cradle of English Liberty on the Auction Block

and to make war upon him unless he restored their rightful laws and liberties.

The following April the Barons again presented their demands to the royal Ministers, and these were taken to the King, then at Oxford. When Langton read aloud the demands, John angrily exclaimed:

"And why do they not also ask for my crown? By God's teeth! I will not grant liberties which would make a slave of me."

Then on May 5 the Barons formally renounced their allegiance to John, chose Robert Fitzwalter for their leader and marched upon London. John tried to postpone the crisis by granting a charter to the citizens of London and by offering to submit the quarrel to arbitrators under the presidency of the Pope. But neither expedient availed. London welcomed the baronial army with joy, other towns showed their sympathies and John had to yield. He agreed to meet the Barons at Runnymede.

Of the noblemen who attended the meeting, an old chronicle says: "It is not necessary to name them, for they consisted of all the nobility of the country." The conference lasted from June 15 to June 23. Despite the throng of hostile Barons, King John rode over to it each day from Windsor, attended only by a few followers.

The Barons at once presented their demands in a document usually known as the "Articles of the Barons," consisting of 48 articles, which John accepted and signed on the same day, and to them the great seal was affixed. On these articles Magna Carta was based, the work of converting them into a charter, regarded as a much more binding form of engagement, being taken in hand immediately. There were discussions over several points, but the charter was completed by June 19.

However, the four existing copies of Magna Carta are dated June 15, the day that John accepted the articles. The remainder of the meetings were used in making arrangements to carry out the reforms promised by the King in this great document.

The charter itself provided for an elected committee of 25 Barons whose duty was to compel John, by force if necessary, to keep his promises. He surrendered the city of London to the Barons, and the Tower to the neutral keeping of the Archbishop of Canterbury. King John asked the Barons for a charter that they, too, would keep the peace, but they would not give it.

John preserved his dignity in the presence of the Barons, according to the old chronicles, but when the affair was finished and the Barons had departed he flew into a terrible passion, cursing the "traitors" who had shorn him of so much power, tearing his hair and even rolling on the ground in his fury.

Some chapters of Magna Carta are meant to restrain the King from raising money by the harsh and arbitrary methods of the past. Others deal with the abuses of the King's privilege of acting as guardian of minors and their lands. Then come chapters for the protection of widows, who must receive their rightful inheritance, and not be compelled to marry. Then abuses in the administration of justice are reformed, such as provisions for hearing common pleas in a fixed place, and regulating the amount of fines.

Chapter XL says simply: "To no one will we sell, to no one will we refuse or delay, right or justice." Another chapter is thus rendered into English: "No freeman shall be arrested, or detained in prison, or deprived of his freehold, or outlawed, or banished, or in any way molested; and we will not set forth against him, unless by the lawful judgment of his peers and by the law of the land."

Other important chapters of Magna Carta say that the royal officials must know something of the law and be desirous of keeping it; that John will disforest all forest which have been made in his time; that he will restore hostages (having been in the habit of taking the children of powerful subjects as pledges for the good behavior of the parents); that certain royal favorites, mentioned by name, will be removed from office; that foreign mercenaries are to be banished; that John will make amends to his Barons for injuries in the past; and the final chapter repeats the promise of freedom to the English church, and of their rights and liberties to all.

These extracts from Magna Carta give an idea of what the Barons accomplished when they forced King John to sign that document at Runnymede or on Charter Island. And they explain the popular indignation at the plan to sell the historic ground.

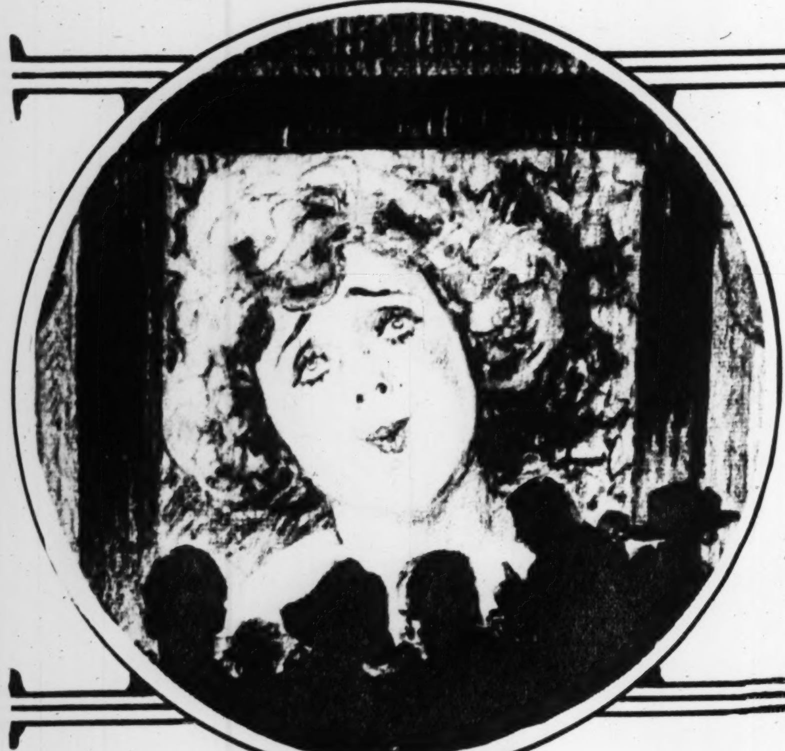
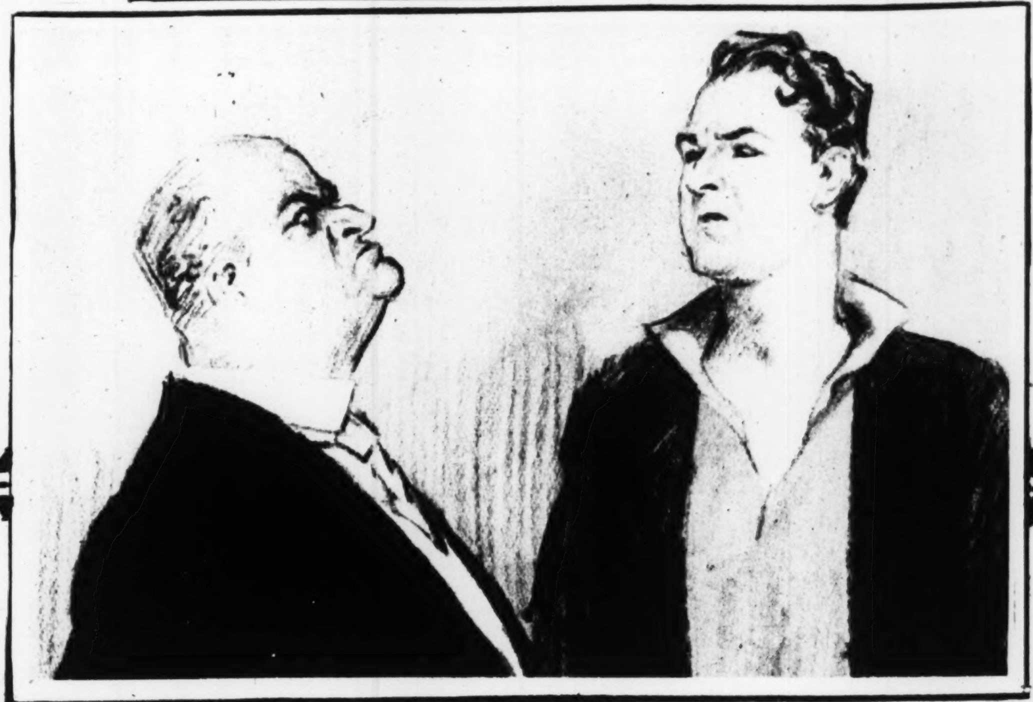
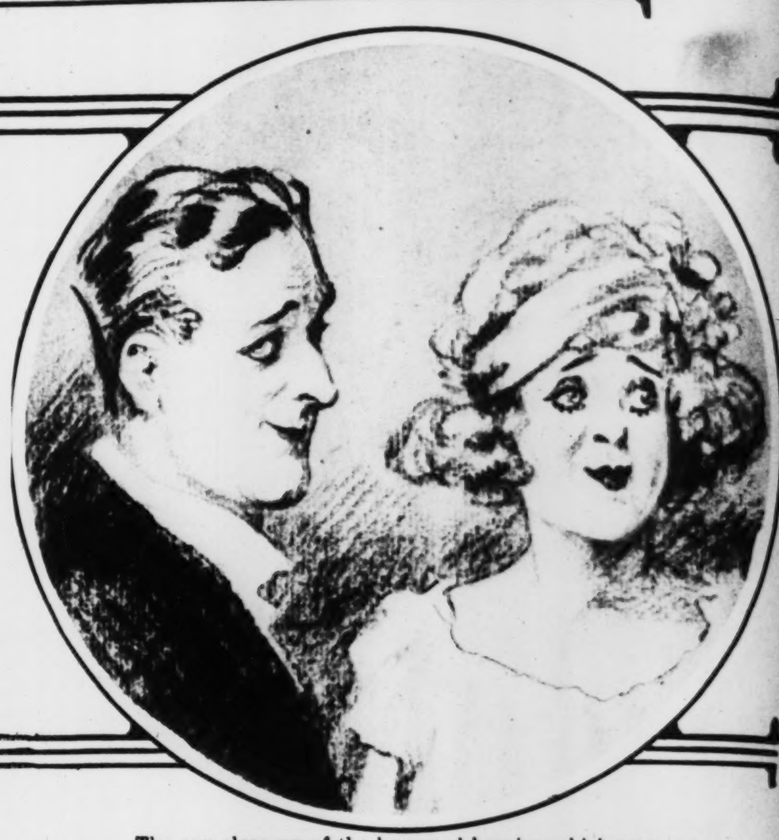
AMONG US MORTALS
THE CLOSE-UP
By W. E. HILL



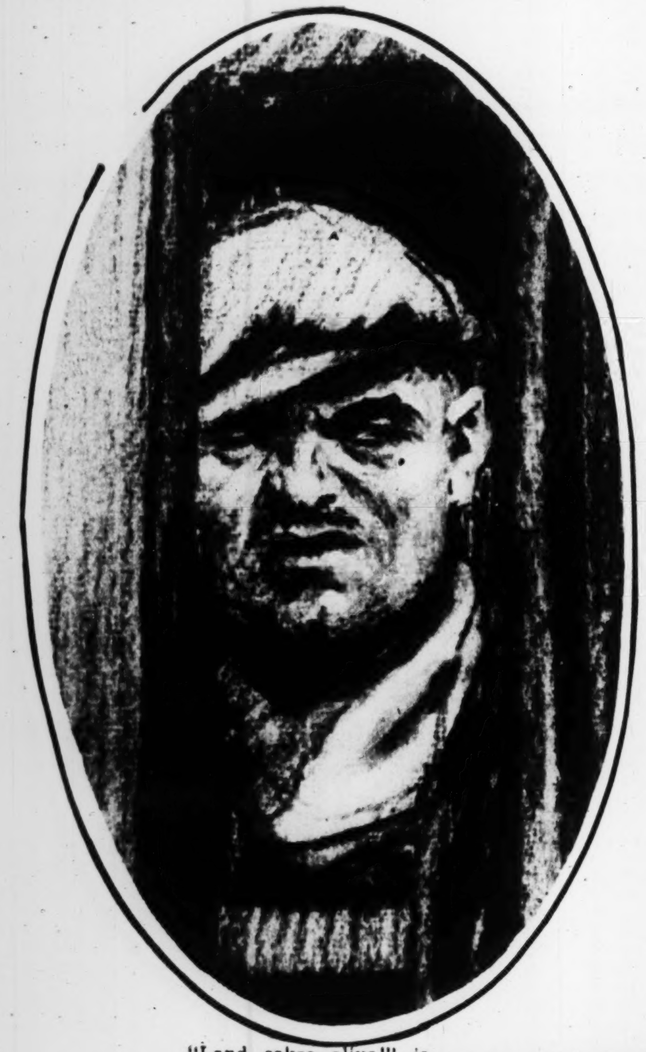
When the sweet young thing in the close-up purses up her lips sweetly, looks skyward and begins to wink fast—and does something that looks very much as though she were swallowing her spearmint—you may know then and there that she is registering Grade A love.



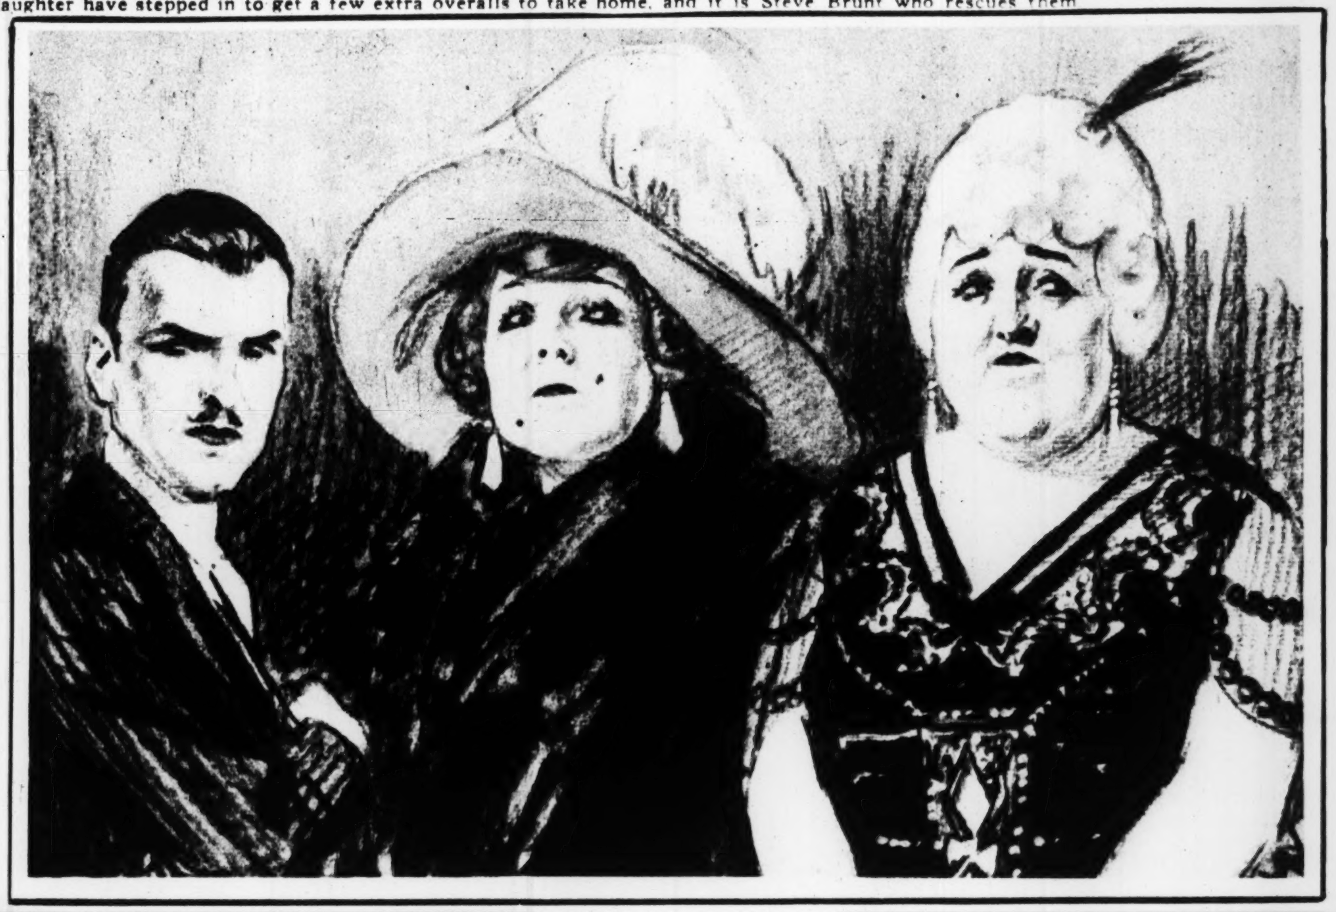
The capital and labor close-up, showing the awful struggle going on between the man of the peepul and the king of finance. The upper floorings of the overall factory are rotting away and the president of the company won't do anything about it, thus endangering the lives of a million employees. "You can't gain happiness by sacrificing human lives for the sake of your rotten, paltry dollars wrung by the sweat of honest toil from out the hearts of men!" So says Steve Brunt, foreman at the overall factory, when he comes to beg for at least one new floor so they won't all fall through. You can figure out the rest for yourself. The floors cave in—just the day that the president's wife and daughter have stepped in to get a few extra overalls to take home, and it is Steve Brunt who rescues them.



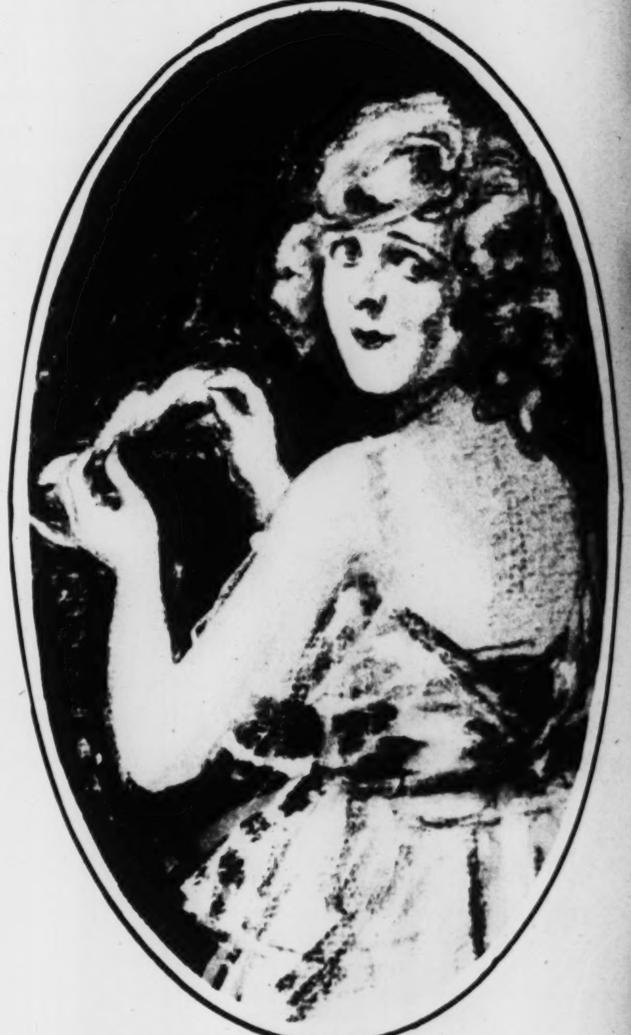
The coy close-up of the hero and heroine which comes near the end, just before the fade-out. All the misunderstandings are cleared up and the lovers are registering bashful reticence before the final clinch.



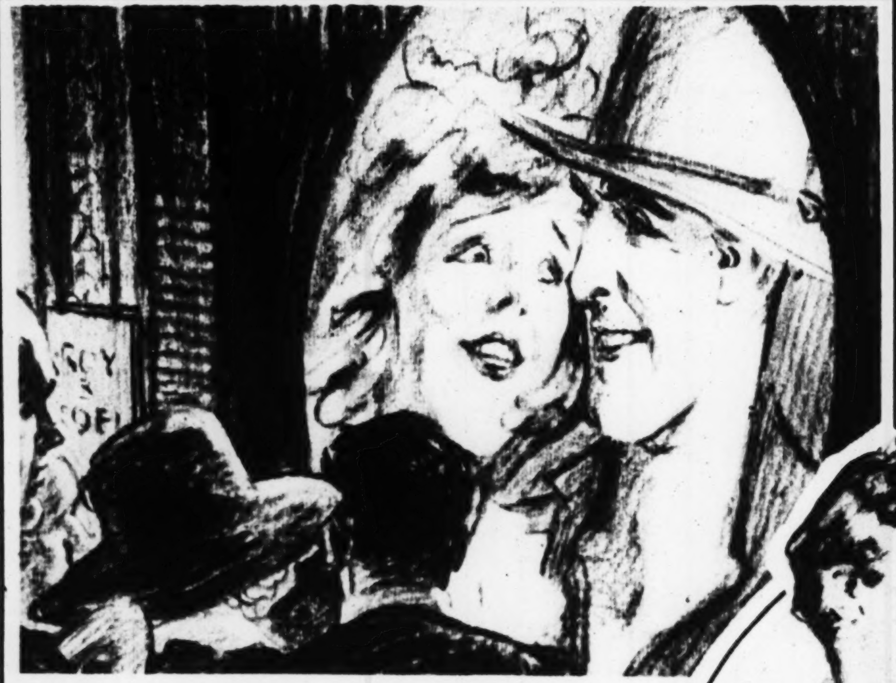
"Land sakes alive!" is not what the scenario writer had in the caption, but it's what the censors have seen fit to substitute for Black Bill's cuss words in the close-up where Black Bill swears to "get" some one, and get 'em right!



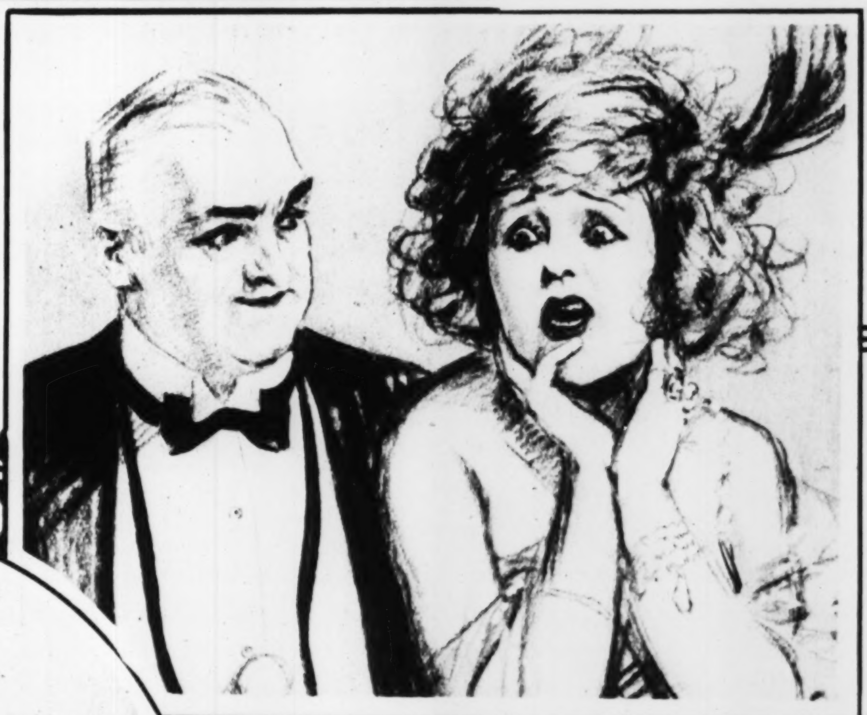
The high society close-up, showing three members of the very swellest Newport smart set giving the poor little heroine some dirty looks. The heroine is a hello girl. She is marrying the son of the house, not because he is heir to thirty million, but because she feels that at the bottom he is all right and can be made something of. In the next reel she is going to denounce the society smart set something awful! There will be a close-up of them all cringing.



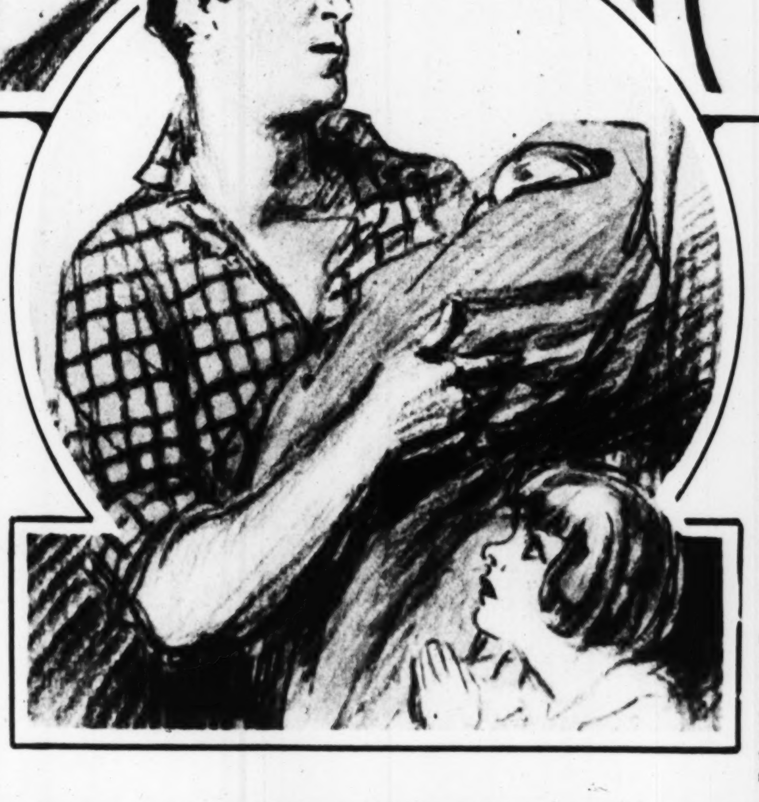
The educational film showing the process of making souvenir jelly moulds out of crepe paper.



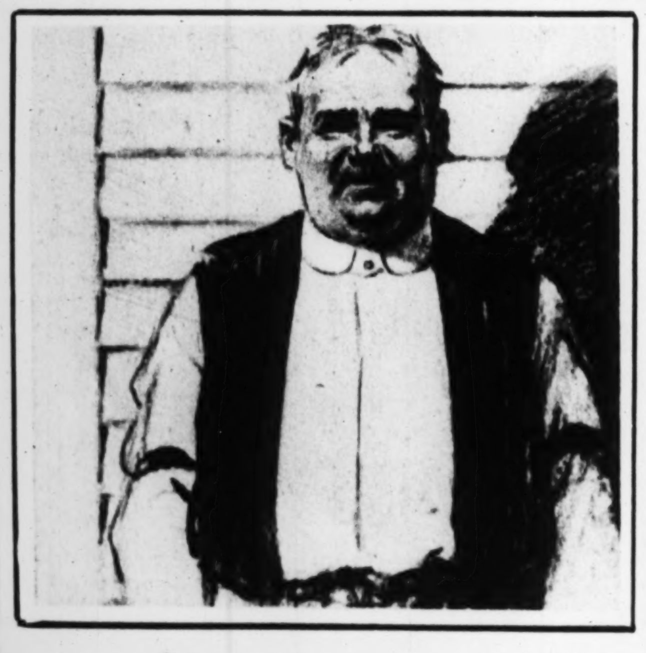
The fade-out—as seen from Box 9.



Harrison Van Rancid, bon vivant and wealthy clubman, has given Adora Randolph, of the Hot Dog cabaret, a ruby dog collar, a diamond necklace, a car, and now he is offering her a house on Long Island. "You drive me insane," says he. "I am mad for you, oh, how beautiful you are — I want you, I want you; will you come?" This is the first inkling Adora has had of Harrison's infamous intentions. Adora supposed all along he was just being kind and would see that under the rouge and powder and glitter she was just a simple little country girl with the softness of a June breeze in her eyes and hair—a good girl, who through it all had remained sweet and simple and pure and good. Adora tries appealing to his better nature, haltingly, lispingly, but it isn't any use. The hotness in his vicious eyes turned to cold distaste. Who will save Adora now!



Right—The wistful close-up, showing a great big rough man, a real bad one, being made good and noble and everything dne by two motherless waifs who come into his life on a cold, snowy night. (Business of looking heavenward and winking fast. Next he will bury his face in the baby and heave his shoulders up and down. This will prepare the audience for a cutback showing the days that were and all that might have been if the girl had been true.)



Left.—The news weekly close-up. This week we have with us Cap'n S. B. Falley, of Rose Bud, Kan., who found a $5 bill in a glass of quince jelly sent anonymously from South Bend, Ind.

"—Not One Gray Hair, Now"

"And my hair was quite gray a short time ago!

"It was falling out, getting brittle and stringy. My scalp was filled with dandruff and itched almost constantly.

"A few applications of Kolor-Bak produced a wonderful improvement. The itching stopped instantly. There was no more dandruff. And—marvel of marvels—it is now restored to its original color—not a gray hair shows anywhere!"

Kolor-Bak is not a dye or stain. It is colorless, stainless, harmless and restores original color to gray hair simply by putting hair and scalp in a healthy condition.

Send for our special trial offer; also Free Book on Hair which explains how Kolor-Bak restores gray hair to its original color.

Instant Beauty for Everyone Says that Famous Actress Viola Dana Who Tells What To Do

Just Make this Simple Test

MISS VIOLA DANA

New York—"I am often asked how I keep my complexion so fresh looking," says Miss Viola Dana, the Screen Classic Star, in a recent interview. "It's a simple process for anyone to have a smooth, velvety, rose-white complexion and unwrinkled skin if they will devote just a little time in caring for it. Cleanliness is absolutely necessary in developing a clear healthy skin. For this purpose use a good cleansing cream (Liska Cold Cream I have found to be the best), follow this by bathing the face with warm water, then rinse with cold water, dry thoroughly and apply Derwillo, a simple toilet preparation which can be obtained at any up-to-date drug or department store." This marvelous preparation instantly beautifies the complexion and its continued use makes the results permanent. You can form no idea what a wonderful effect it has upon the skin until you try it. Here is the best way to test it. Put it on one side of your face, then look in your mirror and note the surprising change. You will need no further argument to convince you that there is nothing like it for beautifying purposes. The instant results it gives is the reason for its popularity with actresses and those who realize the value of a rosy-white, smooth, clean complexion. It takes but little of your time compared to the splendid results it gives, and the fact that it is used and endorsed by leading beauty specialists speaks volumes for its efficacy. Derwillo is especially recommended for dark, sallow skin, tan, shiny nose, blackheads, coarse pores, freckles and numerous other facial blemishes. Many use it in preference to face powders or all other beautifiers as it is more life-like in appearance. Perspiration does not affect it, therefore it stays on better, does not rub off on clothing and its use cannot be detected. It is guaranteed absolutely harmless on the most delicate skin and will not stimulate or produce a growth of hair. Now that short sleeves are in vogue you will want beautiful hands and arms; there is nothing like Derwillo for this purpose. Over five hundred thousand girls and women are using it and they are just as enthusiastic over it as Miss Dana. It is rapidly becoming a regular fad and if you wish to have a complexion which will attract favorable comment everywhere, just give Derwillo a trial and you are sure to be delighted with it. Do not accept substitutes, then you will not be disappointed, as there is nothing "just as good," "better," or "just like it."

NOTE—Here is a fair, honest proposition by the druggists and department stores of this city. Get a bottle of Derwillo from any toilet counter, give it a trial for a few days and if you don't like it bring it back and get your money. Could anything be fairer? It is sold in this city by all up-to-date druggists and department stores, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and the Enderle Drug Co.
